C Herken vnto me, ye holy verteous chyldren brynge forthe fruyte, as the Roſe that is planted by the brokes of yͤ felde, and geue ye a ſwete ſmell as Libanus. D A mã nede to ſaye: what is this: what is yͭ: For at tyme conuenient they ſhall all beſought. At his commaũdement yͤ water was as a wall, and at the word of hys mouth the water ſtode ſtyll* In Gen.7.d. his commaundemente is euery thynge acceptable and reconciled, ⁊ his health cannot be miniſhed. The worckes of al fleſhe are before hym, and there is nothyng hyd from hys eyes. He ſeyth frõ euerlaſtyng to euerlaſtyng and there is nothynge to wonderfull, of hye vnto him. A man nede not to ſaye then, what is thys or yͭ: For he hath made al thynges to do good vnto man. His bleſſyng ſhall renne ouer as the ſtreame, ⁊ moyſture the earthe lyke a floude, of water. Like as he maketh yͤ water for drouth ſo ſhal hys wrath fall vpon yͤ Heathen.

E Oſe.1 *Hys wayes are playne ⁊ right vnto the iuſt but yͤ vngodly ſtomble at them. Rom. For the good are good thinges created from the begynnyng and euell thinges for the vngodly. *All thynges neceſſarie Eccle. for the lyfe of man are created from the beginning: water, fyre yron, ⁊ ſalt, meale, whete ⁊ hony, mylke, and wyne, oyle, ⁊ clothyng. *All theſe thinges are 1.T created for the beſt to the faythfull. But to the vngodlye ſhal al theſe thynges be turned to hurt ⁊ harme. There be ſpirites yͭ are created for vẽgeaũce, ⁊ in theyr rigourouſnes haue they faſtened their tormentes. *In the tyme of yͤ Mat.2 ende they ſhal pour out theyr ſtrength, and pacifie the wrath of him that made them. *Fyre, hayle, hunger, and deathe: Ecclo. all theſe thynges are created for vẽgeaunce. The teeth of wilde noiſome beaſtes, the ſcorpyons, ſerpentes, and the ſwearde are created alſo for vẽgeaũce, to the deſtruction of the vngodly.

They ſhalbe glad to do hys cõmaundementes: and when nede is, they ſhal be redy vpon earth: and when theyr houre is come, they ſhall not ouerpaſſe the commaundement of the LORDE.

Therfore haue I taken a good courage vnto me from yͤ begynnynge, and thoughte to put theſe thynges in wrytynge, ⁊ to leaue them behinde me. *Al Gene. the worckes of yͤ LORD are good ⁊ he geueth euery one in dueſeaſon, ⁊ when nede is, ſo yͭ a man nede not to ſay: thys is worſe then yͭ. For in dueſeaſon they are all pleaſaunte ⁊ good: And therfore prayſe yͤ LORDE with whole hert and mouth, ⁊ geue thãckes vnto his name.

The xl. Chapter.

¶ Manye miſeries lyght in a mans lyfe. All thynges paſſe awaye, but a fyrme and a ſtable fayth remayneth: Of the bleſſyng of the ryghteous, and prerogatiue of the feare of God.

A Greate trauaile is created for A all men, and an heuye yocke vpon all mens chyldren, from the daye that they goo out of theyr mothers wombe, til they be buryed in the earth the mother of al thinges: namely theyr thoughtes and imaginacions, feare of the herte, councell, meditacions, deſire and the day of death: from the hygheſt that ſytteth vpon the glorious ſeate, vnto the loweſt and mooſt ſymple vpon the earth: from hym that is gorgiouſly arayed, ⁊ weareth a crowne, vnto hym that is but homely, ⁊ ſimply clothed here is nothinge but wrathe, in vie, fearfulneſſe, vnquietneſſe, and feare of death, rygor, anger, ⁊ ſtryfe. And in yͤ nyght, when one ſhulde reſt and ſleape vpon hys bed, the ſlepe chaūgeth his vnderſtandinge ⁊ knowlege. A lytle or nothige is hys reſt. And in ſleape hys mynde (as when a man dothe lye in traunce) is trobled withe Imaginacion.

He feareth ⁊ is diſquieted in yͤ viſion
B of his hert, as one that renneth out of a battayle and in the tyme of health he awaketh and marueleth that the feare was nothynge. Such thinges happen vnto all fleſhe, both man and beaſt: but ſeuen folde to the vngodly. Morouer, death bloudeſheding, ſtryfe, ⁊ ſwearde, oppreſſion, hunger, deſtruction, and puniſhemente: *theſe thynges are al created agaynſte the vngodlye ād for theyr ſakes came the floude alſo. *Al that is of yͤ earth, ſhall turne to earth agayne: and all waters eble agayne into yͤ ſee. Al brybes and vnryghteouſneſſe ſhalbe put awaye, but faythfulnes ⁊ truth ſhall endure for euer. The ſubſtaunce and goodes of the vngodly ſhalbe dried vp and ſynke awaye as the water floude, and they ſhall make a ſounde lyke a great thonder in the rayne.

C Lyke as yͤ ryghteous reioyſeth whē he openeth hys hande, ſo ſhall yͤ traungreſſoures be faynte, when theyr goodes vaniſhe and conſume awaye. *The chyldren of the vngodlye ſhall not obtayne many brāūches. And yͤ vncleane rootes vpon the hye rockes, ſhalbe rooted oute before the graſſe by the water ſyde and vpon the ryuer banckes.

Fryndlyneſſe and liberalitie in the increaſe and bleſſynge of GOD, is lyke a paradiſe and garden of pleaſure: ſuche mercye alſo and kyndnes, endureth for euer. *To labour, ⁊ to be content wyth that a man hath, is a ſwete and a pleaſaunt lyfe, but ſweter thē they bothe is to haue the treaſure. To beget chyldrē and to repayre the citie maketh a perpetuall name, but an honeſte woman is more worth then them bothe. Wine and muſike reioyce the hert, but yͤ loue of wyſdome is aboue them both.

Pyppynge ⁊ harpynge make a ſwete
D noyſe, but a frendly tōge goeth beyond them both. Thyne eye deſireth fauoure ⁊ bewtye, but a grene ſede tyme, rather then them both. A frend and cōpanyon come together at opportunite but aboue them bothe is a wyfe that agreeth with her huſbāde. One brother helpeth another in yͤ time of trouble, but almes ſhall deliuer more then thē both. Gold ⁊ ſyluer faſten yͤ feete but a good councel is more pleaſaūte then them bothe. Tēporall ſubſtaunce ⁊ ſtrength, lyft vp the mynde: but the feare of the LORDE wanteth nothynge, ⁊ nedeth no helpe.

The feare of the LORD is a pleaſaūte garden of bleſſinge, ⁊ nothynge ſo bewtyfull as it is. My ſōne leade not a beggers life, for better it were to dye thē to begge. Who ſo loketh to another mans table, taketh no thoughte for his owne lyuinge howe to vpholde his lyfe, for he feadeth hym ſelfe wyth other mennes meate. But a wyſe ⁊ wel nurtered man wyll beware therof. Beggyng is ſwete in the mouth of the vnſhamefaſt, but in hys belly there burneth a fyre.

A man that hydeth his folyſheneſſe, is better then a man yͤ hydeth hys wyſedome. C Therefore be ye turned at my wordes: for it is not good in all thynges & alwaye to be aſhamed. True fayth muſte proue and meaſure it: Be aſhamed of whordome before father & mother: Be aſhamed of leaſyng before the prince & men of autorite: Of lyinge before the Judge & ruler. Rom.1.b. * As for yͤ truth of GOD & hys couenaunte, be not aſhamed thereof.

Be aſhamed to lye wyth thyne elbowes vpon yͤ breade: Be aſhamed to looke vpõ harlottes: Be aſhamed to turne awaye thy face frõ thy frende. Be aſhamed to take and not to geue. Be aſhamed alſo to looke vpon another manes wyfe, and to make anye tryflynge wordes with her mayden, or to ſtand by her beſyde. Be aſhamed to vpbrayde thy frende when thou geueſte anye thinge, caſte hym not in the teeth wythall.

A REhearſe not a thinge twyſe and dyſcloſe not yͤ wordes, that thou haſt heard in ſecrete. Be ſhamefaſt & well manered in dede, ſo ſhall euery man fauoure yͤ. Of theſe thynges be not thou aſhamed, and accepte no perſone to offende. Namelye, of theſe thinges be not aſhamed: Of the lawe of GOD, of the couenaunte of Judgement to brynge yͤ vngodly frõ his vngodlynes vnto ryghteouſnes: & to make him a good man: to deale faythfully wyth thy neyghboure & companion: to diſtribute the heritage vnto thy frendes: to be diligẽte to kepe trwe meaſure & weyghte: to be cõtente whether thou getteſt much or lytle: to deale trulye wyth temporall goodes in byinge and ſellyng: to bringe vp chyldren wyth diligence to correcte an euel ſeruaũte, to kepe that thyne is from an euel wife, to ſet a locke wher many handes are: what thou delyuereſt and geueſt oute to be kepte, to tell it, & to weye it: to wryte vp all thy oute geuynge & receauinge: to enfourme the vnlearned and vnwiſe: Of the aged that are Judged of the yonge: yf thou be diligent in theſe thynges, truly thou ſhalte be learned and wyſe, and accepte of all men.

B The daughter maketh the father to watch ſecretly: and the carefulnes that he hath for her, taketh awaye his ſlepe: yea, in the youthe leſte ſhe ſhulde ouergrowe hym: And when ſhe hath an huſbande, leſt ſhe ſhulde be hated: leſt ſhe ſhulde be defyled or rauiſhed in her virginite, or gotten wyth chylde in her fathers houſe: Or (when ſhe commeth to the man) leſt ſhe behaue her ſelfe not ryght, or cõtinue vnfruytefull. C It is better to be wyth an euell man, then wyth a frendlie wyfe that putteth one to ſhame & rebuke. I wyll remember the worckes of the LORDE, and declare the thynge that I haue ſene. In the wordes of the LORD are his worckes. The Sũne ouerloketh al thynges wyth hys ſhyne, & all hys worckes are ful of yͤ clearneſſe thereof. Hath not the

He ſeketh out yͤ grounde of yͤ deepe, ⁊ the herte of men, ⁊ he knoweth all theyr imaginacion ⁊ wiſedome. For yͤ LORD knoweth all ſciēce, ⁊ he loketh into the token of yͤ tyme. He declareth the thynges yͤ are paſte ⁊ for to come, ⁊ vncloſeth thynges that are ſecrete.

D ⁊ No thoughte maye eſcape hym, neyther may any worde be hid from hym. He hathe garnyſhed the hye excellente worckes of hys wyſedome, ⁊ he is from euerlaſtinge to euerlaſtinge. Unto him maye nothynge be added neyther can he be miniſhed, he hath no nede of any mans councell. O howe amiable are al hys worckes, and as a ſparke to looke vpon. They lyue all, ⁊ endure for euer: and when ſoeuer nede is, they are all obediente vnto hym. They are double, one agaynſte another: he hathe made nothynge that hath faute or blemyſhe. *He hath ſtablyſhed the ſtoodes of euery one: ⁊ who maye be ſatiſfied wyth hys glorie, when he ſeyth it.

¶The Sūme of the creacion of the worckes of GOD

A THe glorie of the hyght, is *the fayre and clere fyrmament, yͤ bewtye of the heauen is hys glorious clearnes. The Sunne when it appeareth, declareth the daye in the going out of it, a maruelous worke of the hyeſt: At noone it burneth the earth and who maye abyde for the heat therof: Who ſo kepeth an ouē whē it is hoote thre tymes moore doth the ſunne burne vpon the mountayes whē it bretheth out the fyrye beames and ſhynneth wyth the bryghtnes of it, it blindeth the eyes. Great is the LORDE that made it, and in hys commaundement he cauſeth it to runne haſtely.

*The Moone alſo is in all, ⁊ at conueniente ſeaſon it ſheweth the tymes ⁊ is a token of the tyme. *The token of yͤ ſolempne feaſt is taken of the Mone, a lyght yͤ mynyſhed ⁊ increaſeth agayne. The moneth is called after yͤ mone it groweth wōderouſly in her chaūginge. B The armie of heuen alſo is in yͤ hyght in the firmamēte of heauen: it geuethe a cleare and glorious ſhyne. Thys is yͤ clearneſſe of the ſtarres, the bewtyeful apparel of heauen, the apperel that the LORDE lighteneth in yͤ heyght. In hys holye worcke they continue in theyr order, and not one of them fayleth in hys watche. *Loke vpon the rayne bowe, and prayſe hym that made it: very bewtyfull is it in hys ſhyne. He compaſſeth the heauē aboute wyth hys cleareneſſe and glorie, the handes of the hygheſt hath bended it. Thorowe hys cōmaundemente he maketh the ſnowe to fall, and the thunder of hys iudgemente to ſmyte haſtely.

Gen.9.b.

Thorowe his commaundemente yͤ treaſures are opened, and yͤ cloudes fleas the foules. In hys power hath he ſtrengthned yͤ cloudes, ⁊ broken the hayle ſtones. C The moūtaynes melte at yͤ ſyghte of hym, yͤ wynde blowethe accordige to hys wil. The ſounde of hys thonder beateth yͤ earth and ſo doth the ſtorme of the North: the whorle wynde alſo lyghteth downe as a fethered foule: caſteth out ⁊ ſpredeth the ſnowe abrode: and as the greſhoppers that deſtroy all, ſo fallett it downe The eye marueleth at the bewtye of yͤ whyteneſſe thereof, ⁊ yͤ herte is afrayed at yͤ rayne of it. He poureth out yͤ froſt vpō earth lyke ſalte, ⁊ whē it is froſen, it is as ſharpe as the pricke of a thiſtle.

When yͤ colde North winde bloweth harde Chryſtall cōmeth of yͤ water. He lyghteth downe vpō all yͤ gatheringes together of water, ⁊ putteth on yͤ waters as a breaſt plate. He deuoureth yͤ mountaynes, ⁊ burneth the wildernes: ⁊ looke what is grene, he putteth it out lyke fyre. The medicine of all theſe is when a cloude commeth haſtely: ⁊ whē a dewe commeth vpon yͤ heate it ſhalbe refreſhed agayne. D In hys worde he ſtylleth yͤ wynde: In hys councell he ſeteth the depe, and (the LORDE) Jeſus planted it. They that ſayle ouer yͤ ſee, tell of the parelles ⁊ harmes thereof, ⁊ when we heare it wyth oure eares, we maruayle thereat. For there be ſtraūg wonderous worckes, diuerſe maner of nice beaſtes ⁊ whalfyſhes. Thorowe hi are al thinges ſet in good order, ⁊ parfourmed, ⁊ in his worde al thinges endure.

I ſpeake much, but I can not ſufficientely attayne vnto it, for he hym ſelfe onelye is the perfection of all wordes. We ſhulde prayſe the LORDE after all our power, for he is greate in all hys worckes. The LORDE is to be feared, yee, very greate is he,*and maruelous is hys power. Prayſe the LORDE, and magnifie hym as much as ye may, yet doth he farre excead all praiſe. O magnifie him wyth al your power,⁊ labour earneſtlye, yet are ye in nowyſe able ſufficiently to prayſe him. Who hathe ſene hym, that he myghte tell vs?

O howe greate, noble, and excellente was he, whē he left vp hys hand, and drowe out hys ſwearde agaynſte the cities: Who ſtod ſo manly before hym: For yͤ LORDE him ſelfe brought in the enemies. *Stode not the Sunne ſtyll at his commaundemente, & one daye was as long as two: He called vpon yͤ Hygheſt & mooſt myghtie, when yͤ enemies preaſed vpō him on euery ſyde, & yͤ LORD hearde hym wͭ yͤ hayle ſtones. ¶The prayſe of Nathan, Dauid, and Salomon.

A After warde in the tyme of Kynge Dauid there roſe vp a Prophet called Nathan: For lyke as the fat is taken awaie from the offeringe, ſo was Dauid choſen out of the children of Iſraell. He tooke hys paſtyme wyth the Lyons, and wyth kyndes and wyth beares lyke as wyth lambes *Slewe he not a Gyaūte when he was yet but yonge and tooke awaye the rebuke from hys people: What time as he toke yͤ ſtoone in hys hande, & ſmote downe proude Goliah wyth the ſlynge. Wyth hys whole herte dyd he prayſe the LORDE, and loued GOD that made hym. *He ſet ſyngers alſo before the aulter, and in theyr tune he made ſwete ſonges. — 2.Pa.

¶ Of Jeſias, Ezechias, Dauid, Jeremie, Ezechiel Zorobabel, Jeſus, Nehemiah, Enoch, and Joſeph.

A THe remembraunce of *Joſias is like as whẽ Apoticarie 4.Re.14.a and.23.b. 2.Paralip.34.a. maketh many precious ſwete ſmellyng thiges together. Hys remembraunce ſhalbe ſwete as hony in all mouthes and the playnge of Muſicke at a bancket of wine. He was appoynted to turne the people agayne and to take a waye all abominacions of the vngodlye. He dwelte in honoure & worſhyppe amonge hys people, and enlarged the entraunce of the houſe, and the court. He gaue lyghte as the mournynge ſtarre in the myddeſt of the cloudes, and as the Moone when it is full. He ſhyned as the Sunne in the temple of GOD. He is as bryghte as they raynebowe in yᵉ fayre cloudes, & floryſheth as ÿ floures and roſes in ÿ ſprynge of the yeare, and as lylyes by the ryuers of water. Like as the braunches vpon the mounte Libanus in ÿ tyme of Somer: as a fyre and incenſe ÿ is kyndled. Lyke as an whole ornamente of pure golde, ſet wt al maner of precious ſtones: and as an Olyue tree, that is fruytefull and as a Cypreſſe tree, whych groweth vpon hye.

When he put on the garmente of ho-

As the braunches of Cedretree vpon the mounte Libanus ſo ſtoode they rounde about hym. And as ÿ braunches of ÿ Olyue tree, ſo ſtoode all ÿ ſonnes of Aaron in theyr glorie, & the oblacions of ÿ LORDE in theyr handes before all the congregacion of Iſraell. And that he myghte ſufficiently perfourme his ſeruice vpon the aulter, and garnyſhe the offerynge of ÿ Hyeſte GOD, he ſtretched oute his hand, & tooke of the drinckofferynge, & poured in of ÿ wyne ſo he poured vpon the botome of ÿ aulter a good ſmell vnto the hyeſte Prince.

Then began the ſonnes of Aaron to C ſyng and to blowe wyth trompettes, & to make a great noyſe, for a remembraunce and prayſe vnto the LORDE, Thẽ were all ÿ people afrayde and fel downe to the earth vpon theyr faces to worſhyppe the LORDE theyr GOD and to geue thankes to the Almyghty GOD, They ſonge goodly alſo with theyr voyces, ſo that there was a pleaſaunte noiſe in the greate houſe of ÿ LORDE. And the people in theyr Prayer, beſought ÿ LORDE the Hygheſt, that he wolde be mercifull tyll the honoure of the LORDE were perfourmed, thus ended they theyr miniſtracion & ſeruice. Then wẽt he downe and ſtretched out his hãdes ouer the whoole multitude of the people of Iſrael, ÿ they ſhulde geue prayſe and thanckes oute of theyr lyppes vnto the LORDE, and reioyce in his name He beganne yet once alſo to praye, that he myghte openly ſhewe the thankeſgeuynge before ÿ Hygheſt, namelye thus O geue prayſe & thanckes (ye all) vnto the LORDE our GOD whych hath euer done noble and great thynges, whych hath increaſed our dayes from our mothers wombe, and dealte wyth vs accordynge to hys mercye: ÿ he wyl geue vs ÿ ioyfulneſſe of herte, & peace for our tyme in Iſraell. Whych faythfully kepeth hys mercye for vs euemore, & alway delyuereth vs in due ſeaſon.

There be two maner of people that D
I abhorre frõ my herte: as for the thyrde whome I hate, it is no people. They that ſyt vpon the mountayne of Samaria, the Paleſtines, and the foolyſhe people that dwel in Sichimis.

I Jeſus the ſonne of Sirach Eleazarus, of Jeruſalem, haue tokened vp theſe infourmacions and documentes of wyſdome and vnderſtandynge in thys booke, and poured out the wyſedome of my herte. Bleſſed is he that exercyſeth hym ſelfe therein: and who ſo taketh ſuch to hert ſhalbe wiſe for euer yf he do theſe thynges he ſhalbe ſtronge in all. For the lyghte of the LORDE leadeth hym.

The li. Chapter.

¶ A prayer of Jeſus the ſonne of Sirach.

I Wyll thancke the O LORDE and kynge, and prayſe the O A GOD, my ſauyour. I wyll yelde prayſe vnto thy name: for thou art my defender and helper, and haſt preſerued my bodye from deſtruction, from the ſnare of traytourous tõges, and from the lippes that are occupied with lyes. Thou haſte bene my helper, from ſuche as ſtoode vp agaynſt me, and haſt deliuered me after the multitude of thy mercye, and for thy holy names ſake. Thou haſte delyuered me from the roorynge of them that prepared them ſelues to deuoure me, out of the handes of ſuch as ought after my lyfe: from the multitude of them ÿ troubled me & wente aboute to ſet fyre vpõ me on euery ſyde, ſo that I am not brente in the myddes of the fyre: From the deepe of hel, from an vncleane tonge, from lyinge wordes, from the wycked kynge, and from an vnryghteous tong My ſoule ſhall prayſe the LORDE vnto death, for my lyfe drewe nyghe vnto hell downeward.

They cõpaſſed me rounde aboute on e- B uery ſyde, & there was no man to helpe me. I me I loked aboute me, yf there were any man that wolde ſocour me: but there was none. Then thought I vpon thy mercy, O LORDE, and vpon thyne actes that thu haſte done euer of olde: namelye: that thou delyuereſt ſuche as put theyr truſte in yͤ, and ryddeſt them oute of yͤ handes of the heathen. Thus lyfte I vp my prayer from the earth ⁊ praied for deliueraunce from deathe. I called vpon the LORDE yͤ father of my LORDE, yͭ he wolde not leaue me without helpe, in the day of my trouble, ⁊ in the tyme of yͤ proude: I wyll prayſe thy name continualye, yeldynge, honoure and thanckes vnto it: ⁊ ſo my prayer was heard. Thu ſaueđeſt me from deſtruction and delyuereſt me from the vnryghteous tyme. Therfore, wyll I acknowlege ⁊ prayſe the, and magnifie the name of the LORDE.

When I was yet but yonge, or euer C I went aſtraye, I deſired wiſedome openly in my prayer. I came therefore before the temple, and ſought her vnto the laſte. Thē floryſhed ſhe vnto me as a grape yͭ is ſoone rype. My hert reioyſed in her, then went my foote the ryghte waye: yee from youthe vp, ſoughte I after her. I powed downe myne eare and receaued her. I found me much wiſedome: ⁊ proſpered greately in her. Therefore wyll I aſcribe yͤ glorie vnto hym yͭ geueth me wyſedome: for I am aduyſed to do therafter. I wyll be gelous to cleaue vnto the thynge that is good, ſo ſhal I not be confounded. My ſoule hath wreſteled wyth her, and I haue bene diligent to be occupyed in her, I left myne hādes on hye, thē was my ſoule lyghtened thorowe wyſedome, that I knowledged my foliſhneſſe, I ordred my ſoule after her, ſhe and I were one herte from the begynnyng, ⁊ I founde her in clēneſſe, And therefore ſhall I not be forſaken.

My herte longed after her, and I gat D a good treaſure. Thorowe her yͤ LORDE hathe geuē me a newe tonge, wherwyth I wyl prayſe hym. * O come vnto me ye vnlearned and dwel in the houſe of wyſedome: withdrawe not your ſelues from her, but talke and comune of theſe thynges, for youre ſoules are very thryſtye. I opened my mouth and ſpake: O come ⁊ by wyſdome wythout any mony, bowe downe your necke vnder her yocke, ⁊ youre ſoule ſhal receaue wyſdome. She is hearde at hand, and is content to befounde. Behold wͭ your eyes* howe that I haue had but lytle laboure, ⁊ yet haue founde muche reſte. O receaue wyſedome, ⁊ ye ſhall haue plenteouſnes of ſyluer ⁊ golde in poſſeſſion. Let youre mynde reioyſe in hys mercye, and be not aſhamed of hys prayſe. Worcke hys worcke by tymes, and he ſhall geue you youre rewarde in due ſeaſon.

of the ymages, and decke theyr wyues ⁊ chyldren wythall. Whether it be good or euell that any man do vnto thẽ, they are not able to recompenſe it:
they cã neyther ſette vp a kyng nor put hym downe. In lyke maner they may neyther geue ryches, nor rewarde euel.
* Though a man make a vowe vnto them ⁊ kepe it not, they wyl not require Eccle.5.
it. They can ſaue no man from deathe, neyther deliuer the weake from the myghtie. They cannot reſtore a blynde man to hys ſyghte, nor helpe anye man at hys nede. They can ſhewe no mercy to the wyddowe, nor do good to the fatherleſſe.
Theyr goddes of wodde, ſtone, golde, and ſyluer, are but euen as other ſtones, that be hewen of yͤ mountayne.
They that worſhyp them, ſhalbe confounded. Howe ſhulde they than be taken for goddes? yee, howe dare men call them goddes? And though the Caldees worſhypped them not, hearinge yͭ they were but dõme ⁊ could not ſpeake yet they thẽ ſelues offre vnto Bell, and wolde fayne haue hym to ſpeake: as who ſaye, they coulde fele yͭ may not moue.
And when the thyng is wel knowẽ, yet they can not forſake them, as thing that haue no ſenſe. A greate ſorte of wemẽ gyrde wyth coardes, ſytte in yͤ ſtretes, and burne oliue beries. Now yf one of them be conueyed awaye, and lie wyth any ſuch as come by: ſhe caſteth her neyghbours in yͤ teth, becauſe they are not ſo worthely reputed, nor ther coard broken. Whatſoeuer is done for thẽ, it is but in vaine ⁊ loſt. Howe maye it thẽ be ſaid or thoughte, that they are F goddes? Carpenters and goldeſmithes make them, nether be they any other thynge but euen what the worckemen wyll make of them. yee, the goldeſmythes them ſelues that make them, are of no longe continuaunce. Howe ſhuld then yͤ thynges that are made of them, be goddes? Vayne therfore are the thinges (yee, verye ſhame is it) that they leaue behynde them for theyr proſperitie.
For aſſoone as there commeth any warre or plage vpon them, then the preaſtes imagine where they maye hyde them ſelues wyth them. Howe can men thynke then, that they be goddes, whyche neyther may defende them

ſelues from warre, nor delyuer them from miſfortune: For ſeyng they be but of wood, of ſtone, of ſyluer & of golde: al people and kynges ſhall knowe hereafter that they be but vayne thynges: yee, it ſhalbe openly declared, that they be no goddes: but euen ẏ very workes of mens handes, & that GOD hath nothyng to do wyth them. It is manifeſte then that they are no goddes, but the worckes of mens handes, & no worcke of GOD in them. They can ſet no kinge in the lande, nor geue rayne vnto men. They can geue no ſentence of a matter, nether defende ẏ lande frõ wrõge. For thei are not able to do ſomoche as a crowe ẏ flyeth betwyxte heauen & earthe.

When there happeneth a fyre into ẏ G houſe of thoſe goddes of wodde, and ſyluer, and of golde, the preſtes wil eſcape and ſaue them ſelues, but the goddes burne as the blokes therin. They cannot wythſtand any kynge or battell: howe may it then be thoughte or grauñted, ẏ they be goddes of wodde, of ſtone, of golde, and ſyluer, may nether defende them ſelues frõ theues nor robbers: yee, the very wycked are ſtrõger then they. Theſe ſtryppe them oute of theyr apparell, that they be clothed withall, theſe take theyr golde and ſyluer from them, & ſo get them away: yet can they not helpe them ſelues. Therfore it is moch better for a man, to be a kynge, & ſo to ſhewe hys power: or els a profitable veſſel in a houſe, wherin he ẏ owethe it, myghte haue pleaſure: yee, or to be a dore in a houſe, to kepe ſuche thynges ſafe as be therryn, thẽ to be ſuch a vayn god. The Sunne, the moone, and al the ſtarres, ſeynge they geue theyr ſhyne & lyghte, are obedient, and do men good. When the lyghtenynge glyſtereth, all is cleare. They wynde bloweth in euery countre, & whan GOD commaũdeth the cloudes to go rounde about ẏ whole worlde, they do as they are bydden, whan ẏ fyre is ſent downe from aboue & commaunded, it burneth vp hylles & woddes. But as for thoſe goddes, they are not lyke one of theſe thynges, neyther in bewtye, neyther ſtrẽgth. Wherfore, men ſhulde not thyncke nor ſaye ẏ they be goddes, ſeynge they can neither geue ſentence in iudgemente, nor do mẽ good. For ſo muche nowe as ye are ſure, ẏ they be no goddes, then feare thẽ not. For they can neyther ſpeake euell H nor good for kynges. They can ſhewe no tokens in heauen for the Heathen, neyther ſhyne as the Sunne, nor geue lyghte as the Moone: yee, the vnreaſonable beaſtes are better then they, for they can get them vnder the rofe, and do them ſelues good. So can ye be certified by nomaner of meanes, that they be goddes: therfore feare them not. For lyke as a ſcarcrowe in a garden of herbes kepeth nothĩg, euẽ ſo are theyr goddes of wodde, of ſyluer and golde: and lyke as a white thorne in an orcharde, that euerye byrde ſyttethe vpon: yee, lyke as a dead bodye that is caſte in the darcke. Euen ſo is it with thoſe goddes of wodde, ſyluer and golde. By the purple and ſcarlet whyche they haue vpon them, & ſoone faydeth awaye: ye maye vnderſtande, that they be no goddes: yee, they them ſelues ſhalbe conſumed at the laſte, whyche ſhalbe a great confuſion of the lande. Bleſſed is the godly man, that hath no images and whorſhyppeth none, for he ſhalbe farre from reprone.

The Hiſtorie of Suſanna wyche is the thyrtene Chapter of Daniel after the Latin.

THere dwelt a man in Babylon called Joachim, yͭ tooke a wyfe, whoſe name was Suſanna, the daughter of Helcia, a verye fayre woman and ſuche one as feared GOD. Her father ⁊ her mother alſo were godly people, and taught theyr doughter accordynge to the lawe of Moſes. Nowe Joachim (her huſband) was a greate ryche mã, and had a feyre orchard ioynynge vnto hys houſe. And to hym reſorted the Jewes comenly, because he was a man of reputacion amonge them. The ſame yere were there mad two iudges, ſuche as the LORDE ſpeaketh of: All yͤ wyckednes of Babylon commeth from the elders (that is) from the iudges, which ſeme to rule the people. Theſe cam oft to Joachims houſe, and all ſuch as had anye thynge to do in the lawe came they thether vnto them. A

B Nowe when the people came againe at after none, Suſanna went into her huſbandes orcharde, to walke. The elders ſeynge thys yͭ ſhe wente in daylye to walke, they burned for luſt of her: yee, they were almoſt out of theyr wittes, ⁊ caſt downe theyr eyes, that they ſhuld not ſe heauen, nor remember that GOD is a righteous Judge. For they were bothe wounded wyth the loue of her, neyther durſt one ſhewe another his grefe. And for ſhame, they durſt not tel her theyr inordinat luſt, yͭ they wold fayne haue to do wͭ her. yet they layde waite for her earneſtly frō daie to daye, yͭ they myghte at the leſt haue a ſyghte of her. And the one ſayde to the other: Up, let vs go home, for it is dyner time. So they wente theyr waye from her.

When they returned agayne, they came together, enquiringe out the matter betwyxte them ſelues: yee, the tolde the other of hys wycked luſt: Then appoynted they a tyme when they myghte take Suſanna alone.

C It happened alſo yͭ they ſpyed oute a cōueniente tyme, when ſhe wente forth to walke (as her maner was) and no bodye wyth her, but two maydens, and thought* to waſhe her ſelfe in the garden, for it was an hote ſeaſon: And ther was not one parſone there, except the two elders yͭ had hyd them ſelues to behold her. So ſhe ſaid to her maydens: go fet me oyle and ſope, and ſhut the orcharde dore, yͭ I maye waſhe me. And they dyd as ſhe bad them, and ſhut the orcharde dore and wente oute them ſelues at a backe doore to fet the thynge yͭ ſhe had cōmaunded: but Suſanna knewe not, that the elders laye there hyd wythin. Nowe when the maydēs were goone forthe, the two Elders gat them vp and came vpon her, ſayinge: nowe yͤ orcharde dores are ſhut, that no man can ſe vs: we haue a luſt vnto the, therfore conſente vnto vs, and lye with vs.

2.Re.11.d.

D Yf thou wylte not, we wyll brynge a teſtimonie all agaynſte the, that there was a yonge felowe wyth yͤ, and that thou haſt ſente away thy maydens frō the for the ſame cauſe. Suſanna ſyghed, and ſayde: Alas. I am in trouble on euery ſyde. Though I folowe youre mynde, it wyll be my deathe, and yf I conſente not vnto you, I cannot eſcape your handes. Well, it is better for me, to fall into youre handes wythout the dede doynge, then to ſynne in yͤ ſyghte of the LORDE: and with that, ſhe cryed out wyth a loud voyce: the elders alſo cryed oute agaynſte her.

Then ranne there one to yͤ orcharde dore and ſmote it open. Nowe when yͤ ſeruauntes of the houſe hearde yͤ crye in the orcharde they ruſhed in at yͤ backe doore, to ſe what the matter was. C So when the elders tolde them, yͤ ſeruauntes were greatly aſhamed, for why: there was neuer ſuche a reporte made of Suſanna. On the morowe after, came yͤ people to Joachim her huſbande, and the two elders came alſo, ful of myſcheuous imaginacion agaynſte Suſanna, to bringe her vnto death, and ſpake thus before yͤ people. Sende for Suſanna the daughter of Helcias, Joachims wyfe. And immediatly they ſente for her. So ſhe came wyth her father and mother, her chyldren and all her kynred. Nowe Suſanna was a tender perſone and meruelous fayre of face. Therefore the wycked men cōmaunded to take of the clothes from her face (for ſhe was couered) that at the leſt they might ſo be ſatiſfied in her bewty. Then her frendes: yee, and all they that knewe her, began to wepe.

These two elders ſtode vp in yͤ myddeſt of yͤ people, *⁊ layde theyr handes vpon Suſanna, whych wepte ⁊ loked vp towarde heauen, for her herte had a ſure truſte in the LORDE. And the elders ſayde: As we were talkinge in the orcharde alone thys woman came in wͭ her two maydens whome ſhe ſente awaie from her, and ſpared the orcharde dores: wyth yͭ a yonge felowe (whyche there was hid) came vnto her, and laye with her. As for vs, we ſtode in a corner of the orcharde. And when we ſawe thys wyckedneſſe, we ranne to her: and perceaued, that they had medeled together. But we coulde not hold hym, for he was ſtronger then we: thus he opened the doore and gat hym awaye. F

Nowe when we had taken thys woman, we aſked her what yonge felowe this was: but ſhe wolde not tell vs. Thys is yͤ matter, ⁊ we be wytneſſes of yͤ ſame. The comen ſorte beleued them: as thoſe yͭ were yͤ elders and Judges of yͤ people, and ſo they condemned her to death. Suſanna cryed oute wyth a loude voice and ſayde: O euerlaſtinge GOD,* thou ſercher of ſecretes, thou that knoweſt all thynges afore they come to paſſe: thou wotteſt, that they haue borne falſe wytneſſe againſt me, and beholde, I muſt dye, where as I neuer dyd ſuch thynges, as theſe men haue malicioūſly inuented agaynſt me. And the LORDE heard her voyce. For when ſhe was led forth to death, the LORDE rayſed vp yᵉ ſpirite of a yōge childe, whoſe name was Daniel, whyche cryed wᵗ a loude voyce: * I am cleane frō thys bloud. Then al the people turned them towarde hym, and ſayde: What meane theſe wordes, that thou haſt ſpokē? Daniel ſtode in the myddeſte of them and ſayde: Are ye ſuche fooles, O ye chyldrē of Iſrael, yᵗ ye can not diſcerne nor knowe the truth? ye haue heare cōdemned a daughter of Iſrael vnto death, ⁊ knowe not the truth wherefore. Go ſyt on Iudgemente agayne, for they haue ſpoken falſe wytneſſe agaynſte her.

Wherfore the people turned agayne in all the haſte. And the elders (that is the principal heades) ſayde vnto hym: come ſyt downe here amonge vs and ſhewe vs thys matter, ſeynge GOD hath geuen yᵉ as greate honoure as an elder. And Daniel ſayde vnto them: * Put theſe two aſyde one from another, ⁊ then ſhall I heare them. When they were put aſonder one frome a nother, he called one of them ⁊ ſayd vnto hym O thou cankered carle, yᵗ haſte vſed thy wyckednes ſo long: thyne vngracious dedes (whych thou haſt done afore) are nowe come to lyghte.

For thou haſte geuen falſe Iudgemētes, thou haſt oppreſſed the innocent, ⁊ letten the gyltye go free where as yet the LORDE ſayth. *The innocente and righteous, ſe thou ſlay not. Well, than yf thu haſte ſene her, tel me vnder what tree ſaweſt thou them talkynge together. He aunſwered: vnder a Molbery tree. And Daniell ſayde: very well, nowe thou lyeſt euen vppon thyne owne heade. Loo, the meſſaunger of the LORDE hath receaued the ſentence of hym, to cut the in two. Then put he hym aſyde, ⁊ called for the other, ⁊ ſayd vnto hī O thou ſeede of Canaā, but not of Iuda: Fayrenes hath dyſceaued the, and luſt hath ſubuerted thyne herte. Thus dealte ye afore wᵗ the daughters of Iſrael, and they (for feare) conſented vnto you: but the daughter of Iuda wolde not abyde youre wyckedneſſe. Nowe tel me than vnder what tree dydeſt thu take them ſpeakinge together? He aunſwered: Under a Pomegranate tree. Then ſayde Daniel vnto him: very wel nowe thou lyeſt alſo euen vpon thyne owne head. The meſſenger of the LORDE ſtandeth waitinge with yᵉ ſwearde to cut the in two, and to ſlay you both.

Wyth that all the whole multitude gaue a greate ſhoute, and prayſed GOD whyche al waye delyuered them that put theyr truſte in hym. And they came vpon the two elders, whome Daniel hath conuict wᵗ theyr owne mouth that they had geuen falſe wytneſſe, and dealte with them, euen lykwyſe as they wolde haue done wᵗ theyr neyghbours: yee, they did accordyng to the lawe of Moſes, ⁊ put them to death. Thus the innocente bloude was ſaued the ſame daye. Pſal. 17.a Deu.19.d. Pro.19.a

Then Helcia and hys wyfe prayſed GOD for theyr daughter Suſāna, with Ioachim her huſbande and all the kynred: that there was no diſhoneſtie founde in her. Frō that daye forth was Daniel had in greate reputacion in the ſyghte of the people.

The Hiſtorie of Bel and of the Dragon/

whych is the forthene Chapter of Daniell after the Latin.

WHEN kynge Aſtiages had gone to ſee hys fore fathers Cyrus his nephowe optaynde the kyngdome wythe whome Daniel was familiare in ſo muche that he did eate at the kynges table, and was had in reuerence aboue all hys frendes. There was at Babylon an Image, called Bel: and there were ſpent vpon hym euery daye twelue cakes, fortye Shepe, ⁊ ſyxe greate pottes of wyne. Hym dyd the kynge worſhyppe him ſelfe, and wente daylye to honoure hym: but Daniel worſhypped his A ped his owne GOD. And the kynge ſayde vnto hym: why doeſt not thou worſhyppe Bell? He anſwered and ſayde: *Becauſe I may not worſhyppe thynges that be made wyth handes, ‡ But the lyuynge GOD, which made heauen and earth, and hathe power vpon al fleſhe. The kynge ſayde vnto hym: thynckeſt thou not that Bell is a lyuynge GOD? Or ſeeſt thu not howe muche he eateth ⁊ dryncketh euery daye? Daniel ſmileth and ſayd: O kinge, diſceaue not thy ſelfe, for thys is but made of claye wythyn, and of metall wythoute *neyther eateth he euer anye thynge.

Then the kynge was wroth, ⁊ called for hys preſtes, and ſayd vnto them: yf ye tell me not who is thys, yͭ eateth vp theſe expenſes, ye ſhall dye: but yf ye cã certifie me yͭ Bel eateth them, thẽ Daniel ſhal dye, for he hath ſpoken blaſphemie agaynſte Bel. And Daniel ſayd vnto yͤ king: let it ſo be, accordinge as thu haſt ſayde: The preaſtes of Bell were lxx. beſyde theyr wyues and chyldren. And the kynge went with Daniel into yͤ temple of Bel. So Bels preſtes ſayde: Loo, we wyl go oute, and ſette thou the meate there (O kyng) ⁊ poure in yͤ wyne, then ſhut the dore faſt, and ſeale it with thyne owne ſygnet: and tomorowe when thou commeſt in, yf thu fyndeſt not that Bell hath eaten vp al, we wyll ſuffre deathe, or els Daniel that hath lyed vpon vs. The preſtes though them ſelues ſure ynoughe, for vnder yͤ aultare they had made a priuie entraunce, and there went they in euer, and dyd eate vp what there was.

So when they were gone forth, the kyng ſet meates before Bell. Now Daniel had commaunded hys ſeruauntes to brynge aſſhes, ⁊ theſe he ſyfted thorowout al the temple, yͭ the kyng myght ſe. Then went they out, and ſparred the dore, ſealinge it with the kynges ſignet and ſo departed. In the nyght came yͤ preeſtes, with theyr wyues and chyldren (as they were wonte to do) ⁊ dyd eate and dryncke vp al. In yͤ mornyng by tymes at the breake of the daye, the kynge aroſe, and Daniel with him. And the kyng ſayde: Daniel, are the ſeales whole yet? He anſwered: yee (O kynge) thei be whole. Nowe as ſoone as he had opened the dore, the kyng loked vnto the aultare, and cryed with a loude voyce: Great art thou (O Bel) ⁊ with yͤ, is no diſceyte. Then laughed Daniel, and helde the kyng that he ſhoulde not go in, and ſayde: Beholde the pauement, make well whoſe foote ſteppes are theſe? The kynge ſayd: I ſe the foote ſteppes of men, women, ⁊ chyldrẽ.

Therfore the kyuge was angrye, and toke the preſtes, with theyr wyues and chyldren, and they ſhewed hym the priuie dores, where they came in, and dyd eat vp ſuche thynges as wer vpon the aulter. For the wiche cauſe the kynge ſlue thẽ, *⁊ deliuered Bel into Daniels power whiche deſtroyed hĩ ⁊ his tẽple.

And in that ſame place there was a greate dragon, whiche they of Babilõ worſhypped. And the kyng ſayde vnto Daniel: ſayeſt thou, that thys is but a good of metall alſo? lo, he lyueth, he eateth ⁊ dryncketh: ſo that thou canſte not ſaye, yͭ he is no lyuynge god, therfore, worſhyppe hym. Daniel ſayde vnto the kynge: I wyll worſhyppe the LORDE my GOD. *he is the true lyuyng GOD: as for thys, he is not the GOD of lyfe. But geue me leaue (O kynge) and I ſhall deſtroye thys dragon wythout ſweard or ſtaffe.

The kynge ſayde: I geue the leaue. Then Daniel toke pith, fat, and heary wol, ⁊ did ſeth them together ⁊ made lõpes thereof: thys he put in the dragons mouth, ⁊ ſo the dragon bruſt in ſunder, ⁊ Daniel ſayd: lo, there is he: whom ye worſhipped. When they of Babylon herde that, they toke greate indignaciõ and gathered them together agaynſte the kinge, ſayinge. The king is become a Iew, and he hath deſtroyed Bell, he hath ſlayne the dragõ, ⁊ put the preſtes to death. So they came to the kyng, ⁊ ſaide: let vs haue Daniel, or els we wyl deſtroy the and thyne houſe.

Nowe when the kynge ſawe, yͭ they ruſſhed in ſo ſore vpon him, and that neceſſitie conſtrayned hym, *he deliuered Daniel vnto them whych caſt hym into the lions den, wher he was vj. dayes In the denne there were ſeuen Lions and they had geuẽ them euery day two bodies and two ſhepe: whych then were not geuen them, to the intente yͭ they myghte deuour Daniel.

There was in Iewrye a Prophete called Abacuc, whych had made pottage, and brokẽ breade in a deepe platter, and was goynge into the felde, for to brynge it to the repers. But the Angel of the LORDE ſayde vnto Abacuc, go cary the meate yͭ thou haſte into Babylon, vnto Daniel, whyche is in yͤ Lions denne. And Abacuc ſaide: LORDE I neuer ſawe Babilon: and as for the denne, I knowe it not. Then the Angel of the LORDE toke hym by the toppe, ⁊ beare hym by the heare of the head and (thorowe a myghtye wynde) ſet him in Babilon vpon the denne. And Abacuc cryed, ſaynge: O Daniel thou ſeruaunte of GOD, haue, take the breakefaſte, yͭ GOD hath ſente the. And Daniel ſayd: O GOD haſt thou thought vpon me: well, thou neuer fayleſt them that loue the. So Daniel aroſe, and did eate: and the Angel of yͤ LORD ſet Abacuc in his owne place agayne immediatly.

6 Upō the ſeuēth daye, the kynge wente to be wepe Daniel: and when he came to the denne he loked in: and beholde, Daniel ſat in the myddeſt of the Lions. Then cryed the kynge wyth a loude voyce, ſayinge: great art thu O LORDE GOD of Daniel:* ⁊ he drewe hym out of the Lions denne.‡ As for thoſe that were the cauſe of hys deſtruction he did caſt thē into yͤ denne, ⁊ they were deuoured in a moment befor his face.

After thys, wrote the kynge vnto all people, kynredes, and tōges, that dwelte in al coūtryes, ſayinge: peace be multiplied with you. My commaundemente is in all the dominion of my realme: yͭ men feare and ſtande in awe of Daniels GOD* for he is the lyuynge GOD whyche endureth euer: hys kyngedome abydeth vncorrupte, and his power is euerlaſtynge. It is he that can delyuer ⁊ ſaue: he doth wonders and maruelous worckes in heauen and in earth, for he hathe ſaued Daniel from the power of the Lions.

*After two yeares the kynge ſente 2.Mac.

whyche came to Ieruſalem with a greate multitude of people, ſpeakyng peaciable wordes vnto thē, but al was buylded they the citie of Dauid wyth

& vngodly men to kepe it, ſtoared it wͭ weapens and vytayles: gathered yͤ goodes of Ieruſalem and laied thē vp there: thus became it a theuiſhe caſtel.

And thus was done to laye wayte foꝛ the people that wente into the Sanctuarie, and foꝛ the cruel deſtruction of Iſrael. Thus they ſhed innocente bloude on euery ſyde of the Sanctuarie, ⁊ defyled it: In ſo muche that yͤ citezyns were faine to departe, and the citie became an habitacion of ſtraungers, beyng deſolat of her owne ſeede, foꝛ her owne natiues were fayne to leaue her. *Her Sanctuarie was cleane waſted her holy dayes were turned into mournyng, her Sabbothes were had in diriſiõ, ⁊ her honoure bꝛought to naughte. Looke howe great her gloꝛie was afoꝛe, ſo greate was her confuſion, and her Ioye turned into ſoꝛowe.

E *Antiochus alſo the kyng ſent out a commiſſion vnto all hys kyngedome, yᵗ all the people ſhulde be one. Then they lefte euery man hys lawe, and all the Heathen agreed to the commaūdemēt of kynge Antiochus: yee, many of the Iſraelites conſented there vnto offeryng vnto Idols, and defyling the Saboth. So the kinge Antiochus ſent his meſſeaungers with his commiſſion vnto Ieruſalem, and to all the cities of Iuda: that they ſhulde folowe the lawes of the Heathen, and foꝛbad ether burnte offeringe, meat offering: oꝛ peace offerynge to be made in the temple of GOD, and that there ſhulde no Sabboth noꝛ hye feaſt day be kept: but commaunded yᵗ the Sanctuarie ⁊ the holy people of Iſrael ſhulde be defiled. He commaunded alſo yᵗ there ſhulde be ſet vp other aulters, tempels, and Idols: to offer vp ſwines fleſhe, and other vncleane beaſtes, yᵗ me ſhulde leaue theyꝛ chyldren vncircūciſed, to defyle theyꝛ ſoules wᵗ al maner of vncleneſſe ⁊ abominacions yᵗ they myghte foꝛget the lawe, and chaunge all the holye oꝛdinaunces of GOD: ⁊ that whoſoeuer wolde not do accoꝛdynge to the commaundement of kyng Antiochus: ſhulde ſuffer death. In lyke maner commaūded he thoꝛowout al his realme, and ſet rulers ouer the people, foꝛ to cõpell them to do theſe thynges, cõmaundynge yͤ cities of Iuda to do ſacrifice vnto idols

F Then wente the people vnto yͤ Heathen by heapes, foꝛſoke the lawe of the LORDE, and committed muche euel in the lande: yee, and chaunged oute the ſecret Iſraelites, whych had hyd them ſeluen in coꝛners ⁊ pꝛiuie places. The fyftene daye of yͤ mooneth Ciſleu in the hundꝛed ⁊ fyue ⁊ foꝛtye yeare, ſet kyng Antiochus an abommable Idoll of deſolacion vppon the aulter of GOD, and they buylded alters thoꝛowoute al the cities of Iuda on euerye ſyde befoꝛe yͤ dooꝛes of the houſes, and in the ſtretes were they bꝛent incenſe, and dyd ſacrifice. Iere.36.e *And as foꝛ the bokes of the law of GOD, they bꝛente them in the fyꝛe, ⁊ rente them in peces. Acto.19.b. Whatſoeuer he was that had a booke of the Teſtamente of the LORDE founde by hym, yee, whoſoeuer endeuoured him ſelfe to kepe the lawe of the LORDE, the kynges cõmaundemente was, that they ſhuld put him to death. And thorowe hys autorite they executed theſe thinges euery Mooneth vpon the people of Iſrael that were founde in the cities.

G 2.Mac.6.b *The fyue and twentye daye of the Moneth, what tyme as they dyd ſacrifice vpon the aulter (whyche ſtoode in the ſteade of the aulter of the LORDE) accoꝛdynge to the commaundement of kinge Antiochus, they put certaine women to death, whych had cauſed theyꝛ chyldꝛen to be circumſid: Not onlye yᵗ, but they hanged vp the chyldꝛen by yͤ neckes thoꝛowoute all theyꝛ houſes, ⁊ ſlewe the circumciſers of them.

Yet were there many of the people of Iſraell, whych determayned in them ſelues, that they wolde not eate vncleane thynges: but choſe rather to ſuffer death, thē to be defyled wyth vncleane meates: So becauſe they wolde not bꝛeake the bleſſed lawe of GOD, they were cruelly ſlayne. And thys greate tyꝛannie increaſed verie ſoꝛe vpon the people of Iſrael.

The ij. Chapter.

¶The mournynge of Mattathias and hys ſonnes foꝛ the deſtruction of the holy citie. They refuſe to do ſacrifice vnto Idols. The zele of Mattathias foꝛ the lawe of GOD: They are ſlayne and wyl not fyghte agayne becauſe of the Sabboth day. Mattathias dyinge commaundeth hys ſonnes to ſtycke by the woꝛde of GOD after the exãple of the fathers

A Ioſeph Antiquit.li.12, cap.7. IN thoſe dayes there dyd ſtande vp one Mattathias yͤ ſonne of Ihon the ſonne of Simeon the pꝛeaſt (out of yͤ kinred of Ioarib of Joarib) from Jeruſalem, and dwelte vpon the mounte of Modin, and had v. ſonnes, Jhon called Gaddys, Simon called Thaſi: Judas, otherwyſe called Machabeus: Eleazer, otherwiſe called Abaron: & Jonathas, whoſe ſyrname was Apphus. Theſe ſawe yͤ euell yͭ was done among the people of Juda, & Jeruſalem. And Mattathias ſayde: Woo is me, alas yͭ euer J was borne, to ſe this miſerie of my people, & yͤ peteous deſtruction of yͤ holy citie: & thus to ſyt ſo ſtil, it being deliuered into yͤ handes of yͤ enemies. 1. Mac. 6.a *Her Sanctuarie is come into the power of ſtraungers: her Temple is, as it were a man that hath loſt hys good name: Her precious ornamentes are caryed awaye captiuie. Her old men are ſlayne in the ſtretes, & her yonge men are fallen thorowe the ſwearde of the enemies.

What people is it, that hath not ſome poſſeſſion in her kyngdome? Or who hath not gotten ſomme of her ſpoyles? All her glorie is taken a waye. She was a fere woman and nowe ſhe is become an hande mayde.

B Beholde oure Sanctuarie, oure bewtye & honoure is waſted awaye, & defyled yͤ Gentiles. What helpeth it vs thē to lyue? And Mattathias rente his clothes, he & hys ſonnes, & put ſackecloth vpon them, and mourned very ſore.

Then came the men thyther whyche were ſente of kynge Antiochus, to compell ſuche as were fled into the citie of Modin, for to do ſacrifice, and to burne incenſe vnto Jdolles, and to forſake the law of GOD. So, many of the people of Jſraell conſented and enclined vnto them, but Mattathias and his ſōnes remayned ſtedfaſte. Then ſpake yͤ commiſſioners of kynge Antiochus, & ſayd vnto Mattathias: Thou arte a noble man, of hye reputacion & greate in thys citie, hauinge fayre chyldrē and brethren. Come thou therefore fyrſte, and fulfyl the kinges commaundemente, lyke as all the Heathen haue done, yee and the men of Juda, & ſuch as remayne at Jeruſalem: ſo ſhalt thou and thy chyldren be in the kynges fauour and enryched wyth gold, ſyluer, and greate rewardes.

Mattathias anſwered, & ſpake wͭ a loude voyce: Though al naciōs obey yͤ kīg Antiochus, & fal away euery mā from keping the lawe of theyr fathers: though thy conſente to hys cōmaundemētes yet wil J & my ſonnes & brethrē not fall from the lawe of our fathers. GOD forbyd we ſhulde, that were not good for vs* that we ſhulde forſake yͤ Actes.5 lawe & ordynaunces of GOD, & to agre vnto the commaundemente of kynge Antiochus. Therefore we wyll do no ſuche ſacrifice, neyther breake the ſtatutes of oure lawe *to goo another Pro.4 way. And whē he had ſpoken theſe wordes, there came one of yͤ Jewes, which openly in the ſyght of al, did ſacrifice vnto the Jdolles vpon the aulter in the citie of Modin, accordyng to the kynges commaundemente.

C When Mattathias ſawe thys, it greued hym at yͤ herte, ſo that hys raynes ſhoke with all, and hys wrath kyndled for very zeale of the lawe. Wyth yͭ he ſtarte vp, and killed the Jewe beſyde yͤ alter: yee, and ſlewe the kynges commiſſioner, that compelled hym to do ſacrificie, and deſtroyed yͤ ſame time: ſuch a zeale had he vnto the lawe of GOD* Num.2 Lyke as Phineas dyd vnto Zambri yͤ ſonne of Salomi. And Mattathias cried wyth a lowde voyce thorowe the citie ſayinge. Whoſo is feruent in the lawe, and wyll kepe the couenaunte, let hym folowe me. *So he and hys ſonnes 2. Mac. fled in to the mountaynes, and lefte all that euer thy had in the citie. Manye other godlye men alſo departed into the wylderneſſe wyth theyr chyldren theyr wyues and theyr catell, and remayned there: for the tyranny increaſed ſore vpon them.

D Nowe when the kynges ſeruauntes, and the hooſt, whych was at Jeruſalē in yͤ citie of Dauid hearde yͭ certayne men had broken the kynges commaundement, and were gone theyr waye to the wyldernes into ſecret places, and yͭ there were many departed after them: they folowed vpon them, to fyght againſte them, on the Sabboth day and ſayde wyll, ye yet rebel? Get you hence and do the commaundement of kynge Antiochus, and ye ſhal lyue. They aunſwered: Ioſue.1 * We wyll not go forth, nether wyl we do the kynges cōmaundement to defyle the Sabboth daye. Then beganne they to fyghte agaynſte them: neuertheleſſe, they gaue thē none other aunſwere, neyther caſte they one ſtone at them.

at thẽ, nor made faſte theyr preuie places, but ſayd: we wyll dye all in our innocẽcie, heauen and earth ſhall teſtefie with vs that ye put vs to death wrongfully. Thus they fought agaynſt them vpon the ſabboth, and ſlewe both men and cattel, theyr wyues ⁊ theyr childrẽ nombre of a thouſande people.

When Mattathias and hys frendes hearde thys, they mourned for them E ryght ſore and ſayde one to another: If ſo be that we all do as our brethren haue done, and fyght not for our lyues ⁊ for our lawes agynſt the heathen, then ſhall they the ſoner rote vs out of the earth. So they concluded among them ſelues at the ſame time: ſayeng, what ſoeuer he be yͤ cõmeth to make battayle wt vs vpon the Sabboth day, we wil fyght agaynſte him ⁊ not dye al, as our brethren yͤ were murthered ſo haynouſly. Upon thys came the Sinagoge of the Jewes vnto yͤ ſtronge men of Iſrael, all ſuche as were feruent in yͤ lawe. And all they that were fled for perſecucion, came to helpe them, ⁊ to ſtande by them: In ſo muche that they gathered an hoſt of men, ⁊ ſlue yͤ wycked doers in theyr gelouſy and the vngodly men in theyr wrath. Some of yͤ wicked fled vnto the heathen, and eſcaped.

Thus Mattathias and his frendes went aboute, and deſtroyed yͤ aulters and circumciſed yͤ chyldren, that had not yet recieued circumciſion: as many as they founde within the coaſtes of Iſrael: and folowed mightely vpon the children of pryde, ⁊ this acte proſpered in theyr hãdes: In ſo muche, yͤ they kepte the lawe agaynſte the power of the Gentiles ⁊ the kynges: and gaue not ouer theyr dominiõ vnto wicked doers

f After thys, when yͤ tyme drue on faſt that Mattathias ſhulde dye, he ſayd vnto hys ſonnes: Nowe is pryde and perſecucion increaſed, nowe is the tyme of deſtruction ⁊ wrathfull diſpleaſure: wherfore (O my ſonnes) be ye feruente in yͤ lawe, ⁊ ieoparde your lyues for the Teſtament of yͤ fathers, call to remembraũce what actes our fathers dyd in theyr time, ſo ſhall ye receue greate honour and euerlaſtyng name. *Remembre Abraham, was not he founde faythfull in temptacion, and it was reckened vnto hym for ryghteouſnes: ⁊ Joſeph in tyme of hys trouble kepte the commaundement, ⁊ was made a LORDE of Egipte. *Phineas our Num.25.e.

And thus ye maye cõſidre thorowout G all ages ſyns the worlde began, yͤ who ſoeuer put theyr truſt in GOD, were not ouercome. Feare not ye then yͤ wordes of an vngodly man. For hys glorie is but donge and wormes: to day is he ſet vp, and to morowe is he gone: for he is turned into earth, and his memorial is come to nought. Wherfore, (O my ſõnes) take good hertes vnto you, and quyte your ſelues like men in the lawe, for yf ye do yͤ thinges yͤ are cõmaunded you in yͤ lawe of yͤ LORD your GOD, ye ſhal obtayne greate honour therin.

And beholde, I knowe that your brother Simon is a mã of wyſedome: ſe yͤ ye gyue eare vnto hym alwaye, he ſhal be a father vnto you. As for Judas Machabeus, he hathe euer bene myghty ⁊ ſtronge from his youth vp: let hym be your captayne, ⁊ ordre the battayle of the people: thus ſhall ye bryng vnto you all thoſe that fauour the lawe, and ſe yͤ ye auenge yͤ wrong of your people and recompence yͤ heythen agayn ⁊ applyce your ſelues whole to yͤ commaundement of yͤ lawe. So he gaue thẽ hys bleſſing ⁊ was layde by hys fathers: ⁊ dyed in the hundreth. xlvj. yeare at Modyn, where his ſonnes buryed him in hys fathers ſepulchre, ⁊ all Iſraell made greate lamentacion for hym.

A Iosu.8.9. ca.12. THen ſtode vp Iudas Machabeus in hys fathers ſtede, ⁊ al hys brethren helped hym and ſo dyd al they that helde wyth hys father, and fought with cherefulnes for Iſrael. So Iudas gat hys people greate honour. He put on a breſtplace as a Gayaunte, and arayed him ſelfe wͭ his harneſſe, and defended yͤ Hooſte wͭ his ſwearde. In his actes he was lyke a Lion, ⁊ a Lions whelpe roarig at his pray* He was an enemie to yͤ Psal.101.d. wycked, and hunted them out: ‡ and 1.Mac.8.c. brent vp thoſe that vexed hys people: So that hys enemies fled for feare of hym, and al the worckes of vngodlines were put to trouble: ſuche luke ⁊ proſperitie was in hys hande. Thys greued diuers kinges, but Iacob was greatly reioyſed thorowe his actes, and he gat hym ſelfe a great name for euer.

He went thorowe yͤ cities of Iuda, deſtroyeng the vngodlie out of them, turning away the wrath from Iſrael, and receyuing ſuch as were oppreſſet: and yͤ fame of him went vnto the vttermoſt parte of the earth. Then Appolonius (a price of Sizia) gathered amighty great hoſt of the heythen, and out of Samaria, to fyght a gaynſte Iſraell. Which when Iudas perceyued, he wēt agaynſt hym, and ſlewe hym, ⁊ a great multitude wyth him, yͤ remnaunt fled, ⁊ he toke theyr ſubſtaunce. Iudas alſo toke Appollonius owne ſwearde, and fought wyth it all hys lyfe longe.

Nowe when Seron (another prince B of Syria) herde ſaye, that Iudas had gathered vnto hym the congregacion and churche of the faythful, he ſayde: I wyll get me a name ⁊ a prayſe thorowout yͤ realme: for I wyl go fyght wͭ Iudas and them yͤ are with him, as many as haue deſpyſed the kinges commaundemēt. So he made him ready, ⁊ there wente with him a greate myghty hooſt of the vngodly, to ſtande by him, ⁊ to be auenged of the children of Iſrael. And when they came ny vnto Bethorō, Iudas went forth agaynſt them with a ſmal cōpany. And when his people ſawe ſuche a great hooſt before thē, they ſayde to Iudas: Howe are we able (beyng ſo fewe) to fyght agaynſte ſo great a multitude ⁊ ſo ſtronge, ſeyng we be ſo wery, ⁊ haue faſted al thys daye.

1.Re.14.a. *But Iudas ſayde: It is a ſmall matter for many to be ouercome wͭ fewe: yea, there is no difference to the GOD of heauen, to delyuer by a great multitude or by a ſmal company: * for yͤ victory of the battayle ſtandeth not in the 2.Pa.14 multitude of the hoſt, but the ſtrength commeth from heauen. Beholde, they come agaynſt vs with a preſumtiouſe ⁊ proude multitude, to deſtroye vs, our wyues ⁊ our children, and to robbe vs. But we wyll fyght for our lyues, and our lawes ⁊ the LORDE hym ſelfe ſhal deſtroye them before our face: therefore be not ye afrayde of them.

C As ſoone as he had ſpoken theſe wordes, he leape ſodaynly vpon thē. Thus was Seron ſmytten, and his hooſt put to flyght, ⁊ Iudas folowed vpon them beyonde Bethoron vnto the playne felde: where there were ſlayne eyght hundred men of them, and the reſidue fled into the lande of the Philiſtines. Then all the Heathen on euery ſyde were afrayde of Iudas and his brethren: ſo yͤ the rumour of him came vnto the kynges eares, for all the Gentyles coulde tel of the warres of Iudas.

D So when kynge Antiochus hearde theſe tydynges, he was angry in hys mynde: wherefor he ſente forth, and gathered an hooſt of hys whole realme, very ſtrong armies: ⁊ opened hys treaſury ⁊ gaue his hooſt a yeares wages in hande, commaundyng them to be ready at all tymes.

Neuertheleſſe, when he ſawe, yͤ there was not money ynough in his treaſuryes, and yͤ thorowe the diſcorde ⁊ perſecucion, whych he made in the lande (to put downe yͤ lawes yͤ had bene of olde tymes) his cuſtomes ⁊ tributes of yͤ lande were miniſhed: he feared that he was not hable for to beare the coſtes ⁊ charges any longer, nor to haue ſuche gyftes, to gyue ſo liberally as he did afore, more thē the kynges that were before hym.

Wherefore, he was heuy in hys mynde, and thought * to go into Perſides, 1.Mac for to take tributes of the land, ⁊ ſo to gather muche money. So he lefte Lyſias (a noble man of the kynges bloud) to ouerſe the kynges buſyneſſes, from the water Euphrates vnto yͤ borders of Egypte: and to kepe well hys ſonne Antiochus, tyl he came agayn.

Moreouer, he gaue hym halfe of hys hooſt and

the hooſt and Elephantes, cõmitted vnto hym euery thyng of hys mynde, concernynge thoſe whych dwell in Juda and Jeruſalem: that he ſhuld ſende oute an armye agaynſt them, to deſtroye & rote out the power of Iſrael, & the remnaũt of Jeruſalem: to put out theyr memorial from yͤ place, to ſet ſtraũgers for to enhabite theyr quarters, & parte theyr lande amonge them: Thus the kynge toke the other parte of the hooſt, and departed from Antioche (a citie of his realme) ouer the water of Euphrates, in the hundred and xlvii. yeare, & went thorowe the hyghe countryes.

*And Liſias choſe vnto hym Ptolomie the ſonn of Doriminus, Nicanor & Gorgias mightie men, & the kynges frẽdes. Theſe he ſent with fortye thouſande foote men, & ſeuen thouſande horſemen, for to go into the lande of Juda, & to deſtroye it, as the kynge commaunded. So they wente forth with al theyr power, & came to Emaus into yͤ playne felde. When the marchauntes hearde yͤ rumoure of them, they & theyr ſeruauntes, toke verye much ſyluer & golde, for to by the chyldren of Iſrael to be theyr bond men: There came vnto them alſo yet mo men of warre on euery ſyde, out of Syria, and from the Philiſtines.

f Now when Judas and hys brethrẽ ſawe that trouble increaſed, and that yͤ hooſt drewe nye vnto theyr borders, cõſidringe the kynges wordes which he commaunded vnto the people: namelye that they ſhulde vtterlye waſt and deſtroye them: They ſayde to another: Let vs redreſſe the decaye of our people, let vs fyghte for oure folke and for oure Sanctuarie. Then the congregaciõ were ſone readye gathered to fyght to praye, and to make ſupplicacion vnto GOD for mercye and grace.

*As for Jeruſalem, it laye voyde & was as it had bene a wilderneſſe. There wente no man in or out at it, and the Sanctuarie was troden downe. The aleauntes kepte the caſtell, there was the habitacion of yͤ Heathẽ. The myrth of Jacob was taken away, the pype & the harpe was gone from amonge thẽ.

The Iſraelytes gathered them together & came to Maſpha before Jeruſalem: for in Maſpha was the place* where they prayed afore time in Iſrael. So they faſted that daye, and put ſackeclothes vpon them, and caſte aſhes vpon theyr heades, rente their clothes, and layde forthe yͤ bookes of the lawe (whereout the Heathen ſought the lykenes of theyr ymages) & brought the preaſtes ornamentes, yͤ fyrſtlynges & yͤ tithes. They ſet ther alſo yͤ *abſtainers (which had fulfilled theyr dayes) before GOD, and cryed with a loude voyce, towarde heauẽ, ſaying: What ſhall we do with theſe? & whether ſhal we carye thẽ awaye? For thy Sanctuarie is troden downe & defiled, thy preaſtes are come to heuyneſſe and diſhonoure: and beholde, the Heathẽ are come together for to deſtroye vs. Thou knoweſt what thynges they imagine againſt vs. How maye we ſtand before thẽ, excepte thou (O GOD) be oure helpe? Num. 5.b

They blewe out the trompet alſo wͭ a lowde voyce. Then Judas ordeined *captaines ouer the people: ouer thouſandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fifty, and ouer ten. But as for ſuch as buylded them houſes, maryed wyues, planted them vyneyardes, and thoſe that were fearful: he cõmaunded them euery man to go home agayne, accordinge * to the lawe. So the hooſt remoued, & pitched vpon the ſouthſyde of Emaus. And Judas ſayde: Armye youre ſelues, be ſtrõg (O my chyldrẽ) make you redy againſt tomorowe in the mornynge, yͭ ye maye fyght wͭ theſe people, whych are agreed together to deſtroye vs and our Sanctuarie. Better is it for vs to dye in battayle, then to ſe oure people & our Sanctuarie in ſuch a miſerable caſe. Neuertheleſſe, as thy wyll is in heauẽ, ſo be it.

The iiii. Chapter.

¶ Judas goeth agaynſte Gorgias, which lyeth in wayt. He putteth Gorgias and hys hoſte to flyght, Liſias inuadeth Jewry, but Judas dryueth hym oute. Judas purifieth the Temple and dedicateth the aulter.

Then toke Judas fyue thouſande men of fote, and a thouſand of the beſte horſemen, and remoued by nyghte, to come nye where the Jewes hooſte laye, and ſo to ſlay them ſodenlye. Nowe the men that kepte the caſtel, were the conueyers of them. Then aroſe Judas to ſmyte the chefe and principal of the kynges hoſte at Emaus, for the armye was not yet come together. In the meane ſeaſon came Gorgias by nyghte into Judas tentes:

A Ioſephus li. 12. capi. 10.

tes:⁊ when he founde no man there, he ſoughte them in the Mountaynes, and thought they had ben fled away, becauſe of hym. But whē it was daye, Judas ſhewed hymſelfe in the felde wyth thre thouſande men onelye, whych had nether herneſſe nor ſwerdes to theyr myndes. But on the other ſyde, they ſawe yͤ the Heathē were myghtye and wel harneſſed, and theyr horſemen aboute thē, and all theſe well experte in feates of warre. Then ſayde Judas to the men yͤ were with hym: Feare ye not the multitude of thē, be not afrayde of theyr violente runnynge: remember, howe oure Exo.14.f fathers were delyuered *in the red ſee, when Pharao folowed vpon thē wyth a great hooſte. Euen ſo let vs alſo crye nowe towarde heauen, and yͤ LORDE ſhall haue mercy vpon vs, ⁊ remember the couenaunte of oure fathers: yea, ⁊ deſtroye thys hoſt before your face this daye: And all the Heathen ſhal knowe, that it is GOD himſelfe, whych delyuereth and ſaueth Jſraell.

B Then yͤ Heathen lyfte vp theyr eyes, and when they ſawe that they were cōmynge agaynſt them, they wente out of theyr tentes into the battayle: and they that were wyth Judas, blewe vp the 2.Mac.7.d trōpettes. *So they buckled together, and the Heathen were diſcomfited and fled ouer the playne felde: but the hynmoſte of them were ſlayne. For they folowed vpō them vnto Aſſaremoth, and into the feldes of Jdumea towarde Azot and Jamnia: ſo that there were ſlayne of them vpon a thre thouſande men. So Judas turned agayne wyth hys hooſt, and ſaide vnto the people: Be not gredy of the ſpoyles, we haue yet a battayle to fyght, for Gorgias ⁊ hys hooſt are here by vs in the mountaynes, but ſtande ye faſt agaynſt youre enemies, and ouercome them, then maye ye ſafly take the ſpoyles.

C As Judas was ſpeakynge theſe wordes, beholde there appered one parte of them vpon the mount. But when Gorgias ſaw that they of hys partye were fled, and the tentes brent vp (for by the ſmocke they myght vnderſtande what was done) they perceauinge thys, were verye ſore afrayde: ⁊ when they ſawe alſo yͤ Judas and hys hooſte were in the felde ready to ſtryck battayle, they fled eueryone into the lande of the Heathē.

So Judas turned agayne to ſpoyle the tentes, where thy gat much golde ⁊ ſyluer, precious ſtones, purple ⁊ greate rycheſſe. Thus they wente home, ⁊ ſonge a Pſalme of thanckeſgeuyng, ⁊ praiſed GOD in heauen: *for he is gracious Pſal. and hys mercye endureth for euer. Pſal. And ſo Jſraell had a greate victorie in that daye. Nowe all the Heathen that eſcaped, came ⁊ tolde Liſias euery thynge as it happened. Wherfore Liſias was ſore afrayed, and greued in hys mynd, becauſe Jſrael had not gottē ſuch myſfortune, as he wolde they ſhuld, nether as the kynge commaunded. The nexte yeare folowynge gathered Liſias thre ſcore thouſande choſen men of foote, and fyue thouſande horſemen to fyght agaynſte them.

So they came into Jewry, ⁊ pytched D theyr tētes at Bethoron, where Judas came agaynſt them with ten thouſand men. And when he ſawe ſo greate and myghtye an hoſte, he made hys prayer, ⁊ ſayde: Bleſſed be thou (O ſauyoure of Jſraell) *whych deddeſte deſtroye the 1.Re violente power of the Gyaunte, in the hande of thy ſeruaūte Dauid, *and ga- 1.Re ueſt the hooſt of the Heathen into the hāde of Jonathas (the ſonne of Saul) ⁊ of his weapon bearer. Put thys hoſt nowe into the hande of thy people of Jſrael, and let them be confounded in theyr multitude and horſemen. Make them afrayed, and diſcōforte the boldneſſe of theyr ſtrength, that they maye be moued thorow there deſtruccion. Caſt thē downe thorow the ſwearde of thy louers, then ſhall all they yͤ knowe thy name, prayſe the wyth thankeſgeuynge. So they ſtroke the battaile, and there were ſlayne of Liſias hooſte fyue thouſande men. Then Liſias ſeyng the diſcomfytyng of his men, and the manlineſſe of the Jewes, how they were ready, eyther to lyue or dye lyke men: He went vnto Antioch, ⁊ choſe out men of warre: that when they were gathered together, they myghte come agayne into Jewry. Then ſayd Judas and hys brethren, beholde, oure enemies are diſcomfited: Let vs now go vp, to clenſe ⁊ repare the Sanctuarie.

*Upon thys all the hooſte gathered E them together, and went vp into moūte 2.M Sion. Nowe when they ſawe the Sanctuarie layed waſte, the Aulter defiled, the doores bꝛent vp ẏ ſhꝛubbes growynge in the courtes, lyke as in a woode oꝛ vpon mountaynes: yea, and ẏ the pꝛeaſtes Celles were bꝛoken downe: They rent theyꝛ clothes, mad great lamentacion, caſte aſhes vpon theyꝛ heedes, fell downe flatte to the grounde, made a greate noyſe wyth ẏ trompettes, and cryed towarde heauen.

Then Judas appoynted certayne men to fyghte agaynſt thoſe whych were in the caſtel tyll they had clenſed the Sanctuarie. So he choſe pꝛeaſtes that were vndefiled, ſuch as had pleaſure in the lawe of GOD: and they clenſed the Sanctuarie: and bare oute the defyled ſtones into an vncleane place. And foꝛ ſo muche as the aulter of buꝛnteoffrynges was vnhalowed, he toke aduyſemente, wat he myght do wythall, ſo he thought it was beſt to deſtroye it (leſte it ſhulde happẽ to do them any ſhame) foꝛ the Heathen had defyled it, ⁊ therefoꝛe thy bꝛake it downe. As foꝛ ẏ ſtones they layed them vp vpõ the mountayne by the houſe, in a conueniente place: tyll there came a Pꝛophete, to ſhewe what ſhulde be done wyth them.

*So they tooke whole ſtones, accoꝛdinge to the lawe, and buylded a newe aulter, ſuch one as was befoꝛe, ⁊ made vp the Sanctuarie wythin and without, and halowed the houſe and ẏ courtes. They made newe oꝛnamentes, and bꝛoughte the candelſticke, the aulter of incenſe, and the table into the temple. The incenſe layed they vpõ the aulter, and lyghted the lampes whych were vpon the candelſtyck, ẏ they myght burne in the tẽple. They ſet ẏ ſhewebꝛeade vpon the table, ⁊ hanged vp the vayle, and ſet vp the temple, as it was afoꝛe.

And vpon the fyue ⁊ twentye daye of the nynthe moneth, whych is called the moneth of Caſleu, in the hundꝛed and eyghte ⁊ foꝛtye yeare, they roſe vp by tymes in the moꝛnyng, foꝛ to do ſacrifice (accoꝛding to the lawe) vpon the newe burntoffrynge aulter ẏ they had made: after the tyme and ſeaſon that the Heathen had defiled it. The ſame daye was it ſet vp agayne, with ſõges, pypes, harpes and cimbales.

And all the people fell vpon theyꝛ faces, woꝛſhyppynge and thãckynge the GOD of heauen, which had geuẽ them the victoꝛie. *So they kepte the dedicacion of the alter eyght dayes, offrynge burnte ſacrifices and thanckeofferynges wyth gladneſſe. They deckte the tẽple alſo with crownes and ſhyldes of golde, and halowed the poꝛtes ⁊ celles, and hanged dooꝛes vpon them. Thus there was verie greate gladneſſe amonge the people, becauſe the blaſphemie of the Heathẽ was put waye. So Judas and hys bꝛethꝛen wyth the whole congregacion of Iſrael oꝛdeined, * that ẏ tyme of dedicacion of the aulter ſhulde be kepte in hys ſeaſon frõ yeare to yeare, by the ſpace of eyghte dayes, from ẏ fyue ⁊ twenty daye of the moneth Caſleu, wyth myꝛthe and gladneſſe. Iohn 10.e

And at the ſame tyme buylded they vp the mount Sion wyth hye walles ⁊ ſtrong towers round about: leſt the Gẽtiles ſhulde come and treade it downe, as they dyd afoꝛe. Therefoꝛe Judas ſet men of warꝛe in it, to kepe it, ⁊ made it ſtronge, foꝛ to defende Bethſura: that ẏ people myght haue a refuge agaynſt the Edomites. 1.Ma. 6.b.f

The v. Chapter.

¶ Judas vanyſhed the Heathen that go aboute to deſtroy Iſrael, and is holpẽ of hys brethꝛen Simon and Jonathas. He ouerthꝛoweth the citie of Ephꝛõ, becauſe they denyed him paſſage thoꝛow it.

IT happened alſo that when ẏ Heathen round about hearde, how ẏ the aulter ⁊ the Sãctuarie were ſet vp in theiꝛ olde eſtate, it diſpleaſed thẽ very ſoꝛe, wherefoꝛe they thoughte to deſtroye ẏ generacion of Jacob that was amõge them: In ſo much ẏ they beganne to ſlay ⁊ to perſecute certayne of the people. *Then Judas fought agaynſt the chyldꝛen of Eſau in Idumea, ⁊ agaynſt thoſe whych were at Arabathane) foꝛ they dwelte rounde aboute ẏ Iſraelites) where he ſlew ⁊ ſpoiled a great multitude of thẽ. He thought alſo vpon the malice ⁊ vnfaythfulneſſe of ẏ chyldꝛẽ of Bean, how they were a ſnare ⁊ a ſtopp vnto ẏ people, ⁊ howe they layd wayte foꝛ thẽ in ẏ hye waye. Wherfoꝛe he ſhutte vp them into toweres, ⁊ came vnto them, deſtroyed them vtterlye and burnte vp theyꝛ towers, with all that were in them. A Ioſephus libro 12.c.12 Exe.25.c and 35.a 2.Mac.10.c

Afterwarde wente he agaynſte the chyldꝛẽ of Ammon, whereof he founde a myghtye power and a greate multitude of people, wyth Timothie theyꝛ captayne. So he ſtroke manye battayles with them, whyche were deſtroyed before him. And whē he had ſlayne them, he wāne Gazer ẏ citie, wyth ẏ townes belonginge therto, ⁊ ſo turned agayne into Iewrye. The Heathen alſo in Galaad gathered them together agaynſte ẏ Iſraelites ẏ were in theyr quarters, to ſlay them: but they fled to the caſtell of Datheman ⁊ ſente letters to Iudas and his brethren, ſayinge: The Heathē are gathered agaynſt vs on euery ſyde, to deſtroye vs, ⁊ nowe they make them readie for to come, ⁊ laye ſeege to the caſtell, where vnto we are fled, ⁊ Timothie is captayne of theyr hooſte: come therefore and delyuer vs oute of theyr handes: for there is a greate multitude of vs ſlayne alredye. yea, and oure brethren that were at Tubyn, are ſlayne, ⁊ deſtroyed (well nye a thouſand men) and theyr wyues, theyr chyldren, and theyr goodes haue the enemies led awaye captiue.

B Whyle theſe letters were yet a redinge, beholde, there came other meſſengers from Galile with rente clothes: whych tolde euen the ſame tydynges, ⁊ ſayde that they of Ptolemais, of Tyrus ⁊ of Sidon were gathered againſt them, and that all Galile was fylled wͭ 2.Mac.8.c. enemies, to deſtroye Iſraell. *When Iudas and the people hearde this, they came together (a great congregacion) to deuiſe, what they myght do for their brethren, that were in trouble, and beſeeged of theyr enemies. And Iudas ſayde vnto Simon hys brother: choſe the oute certaine men, ⁊ go delyuer thy brethren in Galile: As for me and my brother Ionathas, we wyl go into Galaadythym. So he lefte Ioſephus the ſonne of Zacharie, and Azarias to be Captaines of the people, and to kepe the remnaunte of the hooſte in Iewry, and commaunded them ſayinge: Take the ouerſyghte of thys people, and ſe that ye make no warre againſt the Heathen, vntyll the tyme we come agayne. And vnto Simon he gaue thre thouſande men, for to go into Galile, but Iudas himſelf had eyghte thouſande in Galaadythym.

C Then went Simon into Galile, and ſtroke diuers battayles with the Heathen: whom he diſcomfyted, ⁊ folowed vpon them vnto ẏ porte of Ptolemais. And there were ſlayne of the Heathen almooſte thre thouſande men. So he toke the ſpoyles of them, ⁊ caryed awaye the Iſraelites that were in Galile and Arbatis, wyth theyr wyues, theyr chyldren, and all that they had, ⁊ broughte them into Iewry wyth great gladnes. Iudas Machabeus alſo and hys brother Ionathas wente ouer Iordan, ⁊ trauayled iij. dayes iourney in the wylderneſſe: Where the Nebuthytes met them, and receaued them louyngly, ⁊ tolde them euerye thynge that had happened vnto theyr brethren in Galaadythym, ⁊ howe that many of them were beſeeged in Baraſa, Bozor, Alymys, Caſphor, Mageth and Carnaim (all theſe are ſtronge walled and myghtye greate cities) and that they were kepte in other cities of Galaad alſo: ⁊ tomorow they are appoynted to bring theyr hooſt vnto theſe cities, to take thē, and to wynne them in one daye.

So Iudas and hys hooſt turned in all the haſte in ẏ wylderneſſe towarde Bozor, ⁊ wanne the citie, ſlewe al ẏ males with the ſwerde, toke al theyr goodes, and ſet fyre vpon the citie. And in the nyght they toke theyr iourney from thence, and came to the caſtel. And by tymes in the morning when they loked vp, beholde, there was an innumerable people bearynge ladders and other inſtrumentes of warre, to take the caſtell and to ouercome them.

When Iudas ſawe that the battayle beganne, ⁊ that the noyſe thereof went vp, and range into heauen, ⁊ that there was ſo greate a crye in the citie: He ſayde vnto hys hooſte: fyght this daye for youre brethren. And ſo came behynde theyr enemies in thre companies, and blewe vp the trompettes, and cryed in theyr prayer to GOD.

But as ſoone as Timothes hooſt perceaued ẏ Machabeus was there, they fled from hym, and the other ſlew them downe ryghte ſore: ſo ẏ there was kylled of thē the ſame daye, almooſt eyght M. men. Then departed Iudas vnto Maſpha, layde ſeege vnto it, ⁊ wanne it, ſlewe all the males in it, ſpoyled it, ⁊ ſet fyre vpon it: From thence wente he and tooke Caſbon, Mageth, Boſor, ⁊ the other cities in Galaad.

*After thys gathered Timothie another hooſt, whych pytched theyr tentes before Raphon beyōde ẏ water. Iudas alſo ſente to eſpye the hooſte, and they broughte hym worde agayne, ſayinge: All the Heathen that be rounde aboute vs, are gathered vnto hym, and yͤ hooſt is verie greate. yee, they haue hyred yͤ Arabians to helpe them, and haue pytched theyr tentes beyonde the water ⁊ are redy to come and fyghte agaynſt yͤ. So Judas wente on to mete them.

And Timothie ſayde vnto yͤ captaynes of hys hooſte: when Judas and his hooſte come nye yͤ ryuer: yf ye go ouer fyrſte, we ſhal not be able to wythſtāde hym, for why: he wyll be to ſtronge for vs. But yf he dart not come ouer ſo yͤ he pitche hys tēte beyonde yͤ water: thē wyll we go ouer, for we ſhalbe ſtronge ynoughe agaynſte him. Nowe as ſone as Judas came to yͤ ryuer, he appoynted certayne ſcribes of the people, and commaunded them, ſayinge: ſe that ye leaue none behynde vpon thys ſyde of the ryuer, but let euery man come to yͤ battayle. So he wente fyrſte ouer vnto them, and hys people after hym.

And al the Heathen were dyſcomfyted before hym, and let theyr weapons fall, ⁊ ranne into the temple that was at Carnim. Whyche citie Judas wāne, and burnte the temple wyth al yͤ were in it: So was Carnaim ſubdued, and myghte not wythſtande Judas. Then Judas gathered al the Iſraelites that were in Galadathym, from the leaſte vnto the mooſte, wyth theyr wyues ⁊ theyr chyldrē (a verye great hooſte) for to come into the lande of Iſraell.

E *So they came vnto Ephrō, which was a myghtie great and ſtronge citie, and laye in theyr waye. For they could not go by it, nether of the ryght hande nor of the lefte, but muſte go thorowe it. Neuertheleſſe they that were in the citie wolde not let thē go thorowe, but walled vp the portes wyth ſtones. And Judas ſent vnto them wyth peaceable wordes ſaying: Let vs paſſe thorowe youre land, yͤ we maye go into oure owne countree: there ſhal nobodye do you harme, we wyl but onelye go thorowe on foote. But they wolde not let thē in.

Wherefore Judas cōmaunded a proclamacion to be made thorowoute yͤ hooſte, yͤ euery mā ſhuld kepe his order: ⁊ ſo they dyd theyr beſte lyke valeaūte mē.

And Judas beſeeged the citie al that day and all that nyght, and ſo wanne it: where they ſlew as many as were males, and deſtroyed the citie, and ſpoyled it, and wente thorowe all the citie ouer thē that were ſlayne. Then wente they ouer Jordayne into the playne felde before Bethſam. And Judas helped thoſe forwarde that came behinde, and gaue the people good exhortacion al yͤ waye thorowe, tyll they were come into the lande of Juda. Thus they wente vp vnto the mount Syon, where they offred with myrth* and thanſgeuyng: because ther were none of them ſlayne, but came home agayne peaceably. 2.Par.20.d

Nowe what tyme as Judas and Jonathas were in the lande of Galaad, ⁊ Simeon theyr brother in Galile before Ptolamays: Then Joſephus the ſonne of Zachary and Aſarias yͤ captaynes, hearynge of the actes that were done and of the battayles that were ſtrycken, ſayde: Let vs get vs a name alſo, and go fyghte agaynſte the Heathen that are rounde a boute vs.

F So they gaue theyr hooſte a cōmaundemēt, ⁊ went toward Jamnya. Then came Gorgias and hys men oute of the citie, to fyghte agaynſt them: Joſephus alſo and Aſarias were chaced vnto the borders of Jewry, ⁊ ther were ſlayne yͤ daye of yͤ people of Iſrael, two M. men: ſo yͤ there was a greate miſerie among the people * and all becauſe they were not obediente vnto Judas ⁊ his brethren, but thought they ſhulde quite them ſelues manfully. Neuertheleſſe they cam not of the ſeed of theſe mē, by whome Iſrael was helped. But yͤ men that were wyth Judas, were greatelye commended in the ſyght of al Iſrael, and al the Heathen, were ſoeuer theyr name was heard vpon, and the people came vnto them, byddynge them welcome. 2.Ma.5.b.

After thys wente Judas forthe with hys brethren, and foughte againſte the chyldren of Eſau, in yͤ lande that lyeth towarde the ſouth where he wanne yͤ citie of Ebron, ⁊ the townes that lye beſyde it: and as for yͤ walles and towre rounde aboute it, he brente them vp.

Then remoued he to goo into yͤ lāde of the Phylyſtines, and wente thorowe Samaria. At the ſame time were there manye Preaſtes ſlayne in the battayle, whyche wylfullye and wythoute aduyſemente wēte oute for to fyghte, to get them honoure. And when Judas came

Deut.6.a to Azot in the Phyliſtines lande, he brake downe theyr aulters, brēt the Images of theyr Iolles, ſpoyled the cities, & came agayne into the lande of Iuda.

The vi. Chapter.

Antiochus wyllinge to take the citie of Elymas for a praye, is dryuen awaye of the cytezyns. He falleth into ſyckeneſſe and dyeth. Hys ſonne Antiochus is made kynge. The beſeege of the tower of Sion. Eupator commeth into Iewry with a greate armye. The boldneſſe of Eleazar.

A NOwe when kyng Antiochus Ioſephus capi.15. li.12. Antiq. trauayled thorowe yͤ hye countries, he hearde that Elymas
in Perſia was a noble and plenteous citie in ſyluer and golde, and that there was in it a verye ryche temple:
where as were clothes, cote armoures and ſhyldes of golde, whyche Alexandre the ſonne of Philip kynge of Macedonia (that raygned fyrſt in Grekelande) had left behynde hym. Wherefore he wente aboute to take the citie & to ſpoyle it, but he was not able: for the citezins were warned of it, and fought with him. And he fled and departed wᵗ great heuyneſſe, and came agayne into Babylon. Moreouer, there came one whych broughte hym tydynges in Perſide, 1.Mach.3.c and 4. that hys hooſtes, whyche were in the lāde of Iuda, were dryuen awaye, and how that Liſias wente forthe fyrſte with a great power, and was dryuē awaye of the Iewes: howe yͭ they had wonne the victorie, and gotten greate

Ioſeph. ca. 14.li.12. howe they had broken downe the abhominacion 1.Mach.1.f * which he ſet vp vpon yͤ aulter at Ieruſalem, & fenſed the Sanctuarie wyth hye walles, lyke as it was afore:
yee, and Bethſura his citie alſo.

So it chaunſed, that wen the kynge
B had herde theſe wordes, he was afrayed, and greued verie ſore. Wherefore he layde hym downe vpon hys bed, and fell ſycke for verie ſorowe: & all becauſe it had not happened as he had deuyſed.
And there continueth he long, for hys grefe was euer mor and more, ſo yͭ he ſawe he muſt nedes dye. Therefore he ſente for hys frendes, and ſayde vnto them: the ſlepe is gone from myne eyes, for the verie ſorowe & vexacion of hert that I haue. For when I cōſider in my mynd the great aduerſitie that I am come vnto, and yͤ floudes of heuyneſſe whych I am come in, where as afore tyme I was ſo mery, & ſo greatlye ſet by (by reaſon of my power.) Agayne, conſidringe the euell that I haue done at Ieruſalem, from whence I tooke all yͤ

it, and ſente to fetche awaye the inhabitours of Iewrye wythout anye reaſon why: I knowe that theſe troubles are come vpon me for the ſame cauſe. And beholde, I muſt dye wyth great ſorow, in a ſtraunge lande. Then called he for one Philip a frende of hys, whome he made ruler of all hys realme, and gaue hym the Crowne, hys roobe, and hys ringe: that he ſhulde take hys ſonne Antiochus vnto hym, and brynge hym vp, tyll he myghte raygne hym ſelfe. * So 2.Ma the kynge Antiochus dyed there, in the hundred and fortye & nyne yeare. Whē Liſias knewe yͭ the Kynge was deed, he ordeined Antiochus his ſonne (whō 1.Ma he had broughte vp) to raigne in hys fathers

nowe they that were in the caſtel (at Ieruſalem) kepte in the Iewes rounde aboute the Sanctuarie, & ſoughte euer of the Heathen.

Wherefore Iudas thoughte to deſtroye C them, & called all the people together, that they myghte laye ſeege vnto them. So they came together in the hūdred & fyftye yeare, and beſeeged them, laying forth theyr ordinaunce and inſtrumentes of warre. Then certayne of them that were beſeeged, wente forth (vnto whome ſome vngodly men of Iſraell ioyned them ſelues alſo) & wente vnto yͤ kynge, ſayinge: How longe wyll it be, or thou punyſhe and aduenge our Therfore our people fell from vs, & whereſoeuer they founde anye of

& they haue not onelye medled

And yf thou doeſt not preuēte thē ryghte ſone, they wyl do moare thē theſe, and thou ſhalte not be able to ouercome
thē. * Whē yͤ kinge herde thys, he D was very angrye, & called all hys frendes, 1.M the captaines of hys fote men, and of all of al hys horſemen together. He hyred men of warre alſo oute of other realmes & out of the Iles of the ſee, whyche came vnto hym. And ÿ nombre of hys hooſte was an hũdred thouſande foote men, & twentye thouſande horſemen, & two and thyrtye Elephantes wel exercyſed in battayl. *Theſe came thorowe Idumea vnto Bethſura, & beſeeged it alonge ſeaſon, and made dyuers inſtrumentes of warre agaynſte it. But the Iewes came out and brente them, and foughte lyke men. Then departed Iudas from the caſtell at Ieruſalem, and remoued the Hooſt towarde Bethzacaran ouer agaynſte the kynges armye.

So the kynge aroſe before the daye, E and broughte the power of hys hooſte into the way to Bethzacaran, where ÿ hooſtes made them redaye to the battayle, blowynge ÿ trompettes. And to prouoke ÿ Elephantes for to fight they ſhewed them the ſap of red grapes and molberyes, and deuyded the Elephantes amonge the hooſt: ſo that by euerye Elephant there ſtood a thouſande men well harneſſed, and helmettes of ſtele vpon theyr heades. yee, vnto euery one of the Elephantes alſo were ordeyned fyue hundred horſemẽ of ÿ beſt, whiche wayted on ÿ Elephant, goynge wherſoeuer he went, and departed not from
hym. Euerye Elephante was couered with a ſtrõge towar of wood, where vpon were two and thyrty valeaunt mẽ with weapens to fyghte, and wythyn was a man of Inde to rule the beaſte.

As for the remnaũte of the horſemen, he ſet vpon both ÿ ſydes in two partes wyth trompettes, to prouoke the hoſt, & to ſtyrre vp ſuche as were ſlow in the army: And when the ſunne ſhone vpon theyr ſhyldes of golde & ſtele, ÿ mountaynes glyſtered aganne at them, and were as bryght as ÿ creſſettes of fyre.
The kynges hooſte alſo was deuyded, one part vpon the hye mountaynes, the other lowe beneth: ſo they went on takynge good hede: & kepyng theyr order And all they that dwelt in ÿ land, were afrayed at ÿ noyſe of theyr hooſte, whẽ the multitude wente forth, and when the weapens ſmot together, for ÿ hooſte was bothe greate and myghtye. Iudas alſo and hys hooſte entred in to ÿ battayle, and ſlewe ſyxe hundred men of ÿ kynges armye. Nowe when Eleazar the ſonne of Saura, dyd ſe one of ÿ Elephantes deckte wyth the kynges badge, and was a more goodlye beaſte then the other: he thoughte the kynge ſhulde be vpon hym, and ieoparde hym ſelfe to delyuer hys people, and to get hym a perpetuall name. Wherefore he ranne wt a corage vnto the Elephãte in the middeſt of the hooſt, ſmytinge them downe of both ſydes, and ſlewe manye aboute hym. So wente he to the Elephantes fete, and gat hym vnder hym, and ſlew hym, then fell the Elephante downe vpon hym, & there he dyed. Iudas alſo and his men ſeynge the power of the kynge and the myghtye volence of hys hooſte departed from them. And the kynges armye wente vp agaynſte them towarde Ieruſalem, and pytched theyr tentes in Iewry beſyde mounte Sion. Moreouer, the kynge tooke truce with them that were in *Bethſura. 1.Mac.4.g 6.d.

But when they came oute of the citie 2.Mac.11.
(becauſe they had no vittayles within, 15.d. and the land laye vntylled) the kynge F tooke Bethſura, and ſet men to kepe it:
and turned hys hoſte to the place of the Sanctuarie, and layd ſeege to it a gret whyle. Where he made all maner ordinaunce, handebowes, fyre dartes, rackettes to caſt ſtoones, ſcorpions to ſhote, arowes, and ſlynges. The Iewes alſo made ordinaunce agaynſte theyrs, and foughte alonge ſeaſon.

But in the citie there were no bitayles, for it was the ſeuenth yeare of the warres, and thoſe Heathen that remayned in Iewry, had eathen vp all theyr ſtoore. And in the Sanctuarie were fewe mẽ lefte, for the hungre came ſo vpon them, ÿ they were ſcatered abrode euery man to hys owne place.

So whẽ Lyſias hearde that Philip (*whom Antiochus the kyng while he 2.Mac.6.b. was yet liuyng had ordeyned to bryng vp Antiochus hys ſonne, that he myghte be kynge) was come agayne oute of Perſia, and Media, wyth the kynges hooſte, and thoughte to optayne ÿ kyngedome.
He gat hym to the kynge in all the haſte, & to the captaynes of ÿ hooſt, and ſayde, we decreaſe daylye, & oure G vytayles are but ſmall: Agayne, ÿ place that we lay ſeege vnto is very ſtronge, and it were oure parte to ſe for the realme. Let vs agre wyth theſe men, & take truce wyth them, & wyth al theyr people, ⁊ graunt thē to lyue after theyr lawe, as they dyd afore. For they be greued, ⁊ do al theſe thynges agaynſte vs, becauſe we haue dyſpyſed theyr lawe. So the kynge and the princes were contente, and ſente vnto them to make peace, and they receaued it. Nowe whē the kynge and the prynces had made an othe vnto them, they came oute of the Caſtell, and the kynge wente vp to mount Sion. But when he ſawe that the place was well defenced, he brake hys oth that he had made, and cōmaunded to deſtroy the wall round aboute. Then departed he in all the haſte, and returned vnto Antioch, where he foūde Philip hauynge dominion of the citie. So he fought agaynſt hym, ⁊ toke the citie agayne in hys handes.

The vij. Chapter.

¶ Demetrius raygned after he had kylled Antiochus, and Liſias. He trobleth the chyldrē of Iſrael thorowe the counſayle of certayne wycked perſons. The prayer of the preſtes agaynſt Nicanor. Judas kylleth Nicanor, after he had made his prayer.

A IN the hundred and one ⁊ ſyftie yeare came Demetrius yͤ ſonne of Seleucus from the citie of Rome wyth a ſmall cōpanie of men, vnto a citie of the ſee coaſte and there he bare rule. And it chaūſed that when he came to Antioch the citie of hys progenitoures, hys hooſte tooke Antiochus ⁊ Liſyas, to bryng thē vnto hym. But when it was told hym, he ſayd: let me not ſe theyr faces: So the hooſte put them to death. Now when Demetrius was ſet vpon the throne of hys kyngdome, there came vnto him wycked and vngodlye men of Iſraell whoſe captayne was Alcimus, yͭ wold haue bene made hye preaſte: Theſe mē accuſed the people of Iſraell vnto the kynge, ſayinge: Judas and hys brethren haue ſlayne thy frendes, and dryuē vs oute of oure owne lande. Wherfore ſende nowe ſome man (to whome thou geueſt credence) that he maye go and ſe al yͤ deſtruction, whiche he hath done vnto vs and to the kynges lande, and let hym be puniſhed wyth all hys frendes and fauoures.

B Then the kynge choſe Bachides a frend of hys, whych was a mā of great power in the realme (beyonde yͤ great water) and faythfull vnto the kynge, and ſente him to ſe the deſtruction that Judas had done. And as for that wycked Alcimus, he made him hye preaſte, and commaunded hym to be aduenged of the chyldren of Iſrael. So they ſtode vp, and came with a greate hooſt into the lande of Juda, ſendinge meſſaungers to Judas and hys brethren, and ſpeakynge vnto them wyth peaceable wordes: but vnder diſceate. * Therefore Judas and his people beleued not theyr ſayinge, for they ſawe that they were come wyth a greate hooſte. 1.Mach.

After thys came the Scribes together vnto Alcimus and Bachides, truſtynge the beſte vnto them. And fyrſte the Aſſideans required peace of them, ſayinge: Alcimus the preaſt is come of the ſeede of Aaron, howe cā he diſceaue vs? So they gaue them louing wordes and ſwore vnto them, and ſaide: we wil do you no herme neither youre frendes and they beleued them. But the verye ſame daye toke they iij. ſcore mē of thē and ſlewe them accordynge to the wordes that were writtē. *They haue caſt the fleſh of they ſayntes, ⁊ ſhed theyr bloude rounde aboute Jeruſalem, and there was no man yͭ wold burie them. Pſal.79. C So there came a greate feare ⁊ dreade amonge the people, ſayinge: there is nether truth nor ryghteouſneſſe in them, for they haue broken the appoyntemēte ⁊ oth that they made. And Bachides remoued hys hooſt from Jeruſalem, and pytched his tente at Betzeka: were he ſent forth ⁊ toke many of them yͭ had forſaken him. He ſlewe many of the people alſo ⁊ caſt thē into a great pyt. Then committed he the lande vnto Alcimus ⁊ left men of warre wyth to helpe hym. And Bachides hym ſelfe wente vnto the kyng. And thus Alcimus defended his hyghe Preaſte hode, and all ſuche as vexed Iſrael reſorted vnto hym: In ſo much that they optayned the lande of Juda, and dyd much euell vnto the Iſraelites.

Nowe when Judas ſawe all the myſchefe that Alcimus and hys company had done (yee, more then the Heathen them ſelues) vnto yͤ Iſraelites. He wēte forthe rounde aboute all yͤ borders of Jewrye, and puniſhed thoſe vnfaythful rennagates, ſo yͭ they came nomore oute into yͤ countre. So whē Alcimus ſawe that Judas and hys people had gootten the vpper hande, and that he was not hable to abyde them, he went agayne to the kyng, and ſayd all the worſt of them that he coulde. Then the kynge ſent Nicanor one of hys cheſe princes (whych beare euel wyl to Iſrael) and commaunded hym, yͭ he ſhuld D vtterlye deſtroye the people.

15.a *So Nicanor came to Jeruſalem wyth a great hooſt, and ſent vnto Judas and his brethren with frendly wordes (but vnder dyſceat) ſayinge: there ſhalbe no warre betwyxt me and you: I wyll come with fewe men, to ſe howe ye do, wyth frendeſhyppe. Vpō thys he came vnto Judas, ⁊ they ſaluteth one another peaceably, but the enemies were appointed to take Judas by vyolence. Neuertheleſſe, it was tolde Judas, yͭ he came vnto him but vnder diſceate: wherefore, he gat him awaye frō him, ⁊ wolde ſe hys face nomore, When Nicanor perceaued that hys councell was bewrayed, he wente out to fyght agaynſt Judas, beſyde Capharſamala wher there were ſlayne of Nicanors hoſt fyue thouſande men: and yͤ reſidue fled vnto the caſtell of Dauid.

E After thys came Nicanor vp vnto moūt Syon: and the Preaſtes wyth yͤ elders of the people went forth to ſalute hym peaceably, and to ſhewe hym yͤ burnteſacrifices that were offred for yͤ kynge. But he laughed them and the people to ſcorne, mocked them, defyled theyr offeringes, and ſpake dyſdaynefullye: yee, and ſwore in hys wrath, ſaying, *yf Judas and his hooſt be not delyuered now into my handes, as ſoone as euer I come agayne (⁊ fare well) I ſhall burne vp thys houſe. Wyth that, went he oute in agreate anger. Then yͤ preaſtes came in, and ſtoode before the aulter of yͤ temple, wepynge, ⁊ ſayinge

*For ſo much as thou (O LORDE) haſt choſen thys houſe, that they name myghte be called vpon therein, and yͭ it ſhulde be *an houſe of prayer and peticion for thy people. Be aduenged of thys man and hys hooſt, and let them be ſlayne with the ſweard, remember the blaſphemies of them, ⁊ ſuffer them, not to continue anye longer.

When Nicanor was gone from Jeruſalem, he pytched hys tente at Bethoron, and there an hooſte with hym oute of Syria. And Judas came to Adarſa wyth thre thouſande men, and made hys prayer vnto GOD, ſayinge: O LORDE, *becauſe the meſſengers of kynge Senacherib blaſphemed the, the Aungel wente forthe, ⁊ ſlewe an hūdred foure ſcore ⁊ fyue thouſand of thē Euenſo deſtroy thou this hooſte before vs to daye, yͭ our people maye knowe howe that he hat blaſphemed thy Sāctuarie, and puniſhe him accordyng to hys maliciouſnes. Eſai.37.f. 2.Mac.8.d and.15.d. 4.Re.19.g

And the hooſtes ſtroke the felde, the thyrtene daye of the moneth, *Adar, ⁊ Februarii Nicanors hooſte was diſconfyted, *⁊ 2.Mac.15.b he him ſelfe was fyrſt ſlayne in the battayll. When Nicanors men of warre ſawe yͭ he was killed, they caſt awaye theyr weapons and fled, but yͤ Jewes folowed vpon them an whole dayes iourney frō Adazar vnto Gazara, blowinge with the trompettes ⁊ makyng tokens after thē. So the Jewes came forth of al the townes there about ⁊ blewe out theyr hornes vpon them, ⁊ turned agaynſte them. Thus were they al ſlayne, and not one of them lefte.

Then they toke theyr ſubſtaunce for F a pray and ſmote of Nicanors heade ⁊ hys ryghte hand (* whych he held vp 2.Mac.14.c ſo proudly) ⁊ brought it with them and hanged it vp afore Jeruſalem. Wherefore the people were exceadingly reioyſed, and paſſed ouer that daie in greate gladnes. And Judas ordeyned, that yͤ ſame day (namelye the thyrteneth daye of the moonethe Adar ſhulde be kepte in myrth euerye yeare. Thus the land of Juda was in reſt a lytle whyle.

The viij. Chapter.

¶ Judas conſideringe the power and godly policie of the Romans maketh peace with them. The reſcripte of the Romans ſent vnto the Jewes.

JUdas heard alſo the fame of A the Romans that they were myghtie ⁊ valeant men and agreable to al thynges yͭ are required of them, ⁊ make peace wyth all men, which come vnto thē, ⁊ howe they were doughtye men of ſtrenght. Beſides that, it was told him of theyr battailes, ⁊ noble actes which they dyd in Galacia, howe they had conquered thē ⁊ brought them vnder tribute: ⁊ what great thinges they had done in Spane howe yͭ wᵗ theyr wiſedome and ſober behauoure they had wonne the mynes of ſyluer ⁊ gold, yͭ are there, ⁊ obtayned al the lande, wyth other places farre frō them: howe they had dyſconfited and ſlayne downe the kynges yͭ came vpon them, from the vttermoſt parte of the earth, ⁊ howe other people gaue them tribute euery yeare. Howe they had ſlayne and ouercome Philippe ⁊ Perſes kynges of Cethin, and other mo (in battel) which had brought theyr ordinaunce agaynſt them: howe they diſconfyted great Antiochus kynge of Aſia (that wolde nedes fight wͭ them) hauynge an C. and. xx. 1.Mac.1.a. *yee, ⁊ to fynde them good ſuretyes and pledge: beſydes al thys, howe they had taken from hym Judia, Media, ⁊ Lidia (hys beſt landes) and geuen thē to kinge Eumenus. Againe, howe they perceauinge that the Grekes were cōmynge to vexe them: ſente agaynſte thē a captayne of an hooſte, whyche gaue them battayle, ſlewe many of them, led 1.Mac.1.a. awaye theyr wyues, and chyldren captiue, ſpoyled them, toke poſſeſſion of theyr lande, deſtroyed theyr ſtrōge holdes, ⁊ ſubdued them to be theyr bondemen, vnto thys daye. Moreouer, howe that as for other kyngedomes and Jles whyche ſometyme wytſtoode them they deſtroyed them, and broughte thē vnder theyr dominiō. But helped euer theyr owne frendes, and thoſe yͭ were confederate with them, and conquered kyngdomes, bothe farre ⁊ nye, ⁊ yͭ who ſoeuer heard of their renowne was afrayed of thē: for whome they wold helpe to their kyngedomes, thoſe raigned, ⁊ whome it liked not thē to raigne, they put hī downe. And howe they were cocome to great preheminence hauynge, no kynge amonge thē, nether any man clothed in purple, to be magnified therthorowe, but had ordeined them ſelues a parlyment, wherin there ſat iij. And howe that euery yeare they choſe a Mayre to haue the gouernaunce of all theyre lande to whome euerye was obedient, and ther was neyther euell wyll nor diſcencion amonge them.

C Then Judas choſe Eupolemus the ſonne of Jhon, the ſonne of Jacob, and Jaſon the Sonne of Eleazer, and ſent them vnto Rome, for to make frendeſhip ⁊ a bonde of loue with them, that they myghte take from them the bondage of the Grekes, for the Jewes ſawe that the Grekes wolde ſubdue the kyngdome of Jſrael. So they went vnto Rome (a very great iourney) ⁊ came into the parlamente, and ſayde: Judas Machabeus wyth hys brethren and yͤ people of the Jewes hathe ſente vs vnto you, to make a bonde of frendeſhyp ⁊ peace wͭ you, and ye to note vs as youre louers and frendes. And the matter pleaſed the Romaynes right wel, wherfore it was wrytten vp: of yͤ whych the Romaines made a wrytynge in tables of braſſe, ⁊ ſent it to Jeruſalem: yͭ they myght haue by them a memorial of the ſame peace, and bonde of frendſhyp after thys maner. GOD ſaue the Romaynes ⁊ yͤ people of yͤ Jewes, both by ſee ⁊ by lande, and kepe the ſwearde ⁊ enemy from them for euermore. yf there come fyrſt any warre vpon the Romaynes or anie of their frēdes thorowout al theyr dominion, the people of the Jewes ſhal helpe thē (as the tyme requyreth) and yͭ wͭ al theyr hertes. Alſo they ſhall nether geue nor ſende vnto theyr enemyes vitayles, weapēs, money nor ſhyppes: but fulfyll thys charge at the Romaynes pleaſure, ⁊ take nothinge from them therfore. Agayne, yf the people of the Jewes happen fyrſt to haue warre, yͤ Romayns ſhall ſtande by thē wyth a good wyll, accordynge as yͤ tyme wyll ſuffre. Nether ſhall they geue vnto yͤ Jewes enemyes, vytayles, weapens, mony, nor ſhyppes. Thus are yͤ Romaynes cōtent to do, ⁊ ſhall fulfyll theyr charge wythoute anye diſceate.

D Accordynge to theſe artycles, yͤ Romaynes made the bonde wyth the Jewes. Nowe after theſe artycles (ſayde they) yf anye of the partyes wyl put to them, or take any thynge from thē they ſhall do it wyth the conſente of both: ⁊ whatſoeuer they adde vnto thē, or take from them, it ſhal ſtande faſte. And as touchynge the euell that Demetryus hath done vnto the Jewes, we haue wrytten vnto hym ſayinge: wherefore layeſt thou thy heuy yocke vpon the Jewes oure frendes and louers? yf they

The ix. Chapter.

¶After the death of Nicanor Demetrius ſendeth hys army agaynſt Judas. Judas is ſlayne. Jonathas is put in the ſtead of his brother. The ſtrife betwene Jonatas & Bachides. Alcimus is takē wit the palſye, and dyeth. Bachides returneth agayne vnto the king. He commeth vpon Jonathas by the coūcel of certaine wicked perſons, and is ouercome. The truce of Jonathas with Bachides:

A In the meane ſeaſon whē Demetrius hearde that * Nicanor and hys hooſte was ſlayne in the felde, he proceded further to ſende Bachides & Alcimus agayne into Jewrye, and thoſe ẏ were in ẏ ryght wynge of hys hooſte: wᵗ him. So they wente forth by the waye that leateth vnto Galgala, & pytched theyr tentes before Meſaloth wiche is in Arbellis: & wanne ẏ citie and ſlewe much people. In ẏ fyrſte Moneth of ẏ .C. and two yeare, they brought theyr hooſt to Hieruſalē, & roſe vp, & came to Berea, with twentie thouſande footemē, and two .M. horſemen.

Nowe Judas had pytched his tente at Laiſa, with thre thouſande choſe mē. And when they ſawe the multitude of the other armye ẏ it was ſo great, they were ſore afrayed, & manye conuayed thē ſelues oute of ẏ hooſt. In ſo much that there abode no mo of them but eyght hundred men. Judas ſawe ẏ hys hoſt fayled him, and that he muſte nedes fyght: it brake hys herte, ẏ he had no time to gather them together: wherefore the man was in extreme trouble Neuertheleſſe, he ſaide vnto them: that remayned wᵗ him. Up, let vs go againſt oure enemyes, per aduenture we ſhalbe able to fyght with them. But they wolde haue ſtopped him, ſaying: we ſhal not be able, therefore let vs now ſaue oure liues, & turne againe to oure breathren, and then wyll we fyghte agaynſt them, for we are here but fewe.

And Judas ſayd: GOD forbyd ẏ we ſhulde fle frō them. Wherefore, yf our B tyme be come: let vs manfully dye for our brethren, and let vs not ſtayne our honour. Then the hoſt remoued oute of ẏ tentes, and ſtode agaynſt them. The horſmen are deuided in two partes, the ſlyngcaſters and archers went before ẏ hoſt: & al ẏ myghtie mē were formoſt in ẏ felde. Bachides him ſelfe was in ẏ ryght winge of ẏ battel, & ẏ hoſt drewe nye in two partes, & blewe ẏ trompets They of Judas ſyde blewe ẏ trōpetes alſo, & ẏ earth ſhoke at ẏ noyſe of ẏ hooſtes, & thei ſtroke a felde from ẏ morow tyl nyghte. And whē Judas ſawe that Bachides hoſt was ſtrongeſt of ẏ ryghte ſyde, he toke wyth hym all the herdy men, and brake ẏ ryght winge of theyr ordre, & folowed vpon thē vnto ẏ mout Azot. Nowe whē they whyche were of the lyfte wynge, ſawe that the ryghte ſyde was dyſcomfyted, they perſecuted Judas & them ẏ were wyth him. Then was there a ſore battayl, for many were ſlayne and wounded of both the parties. Judas alſo him ſelfe was killed, & ẏ remnaunt fled. So Jonathas & Simon toke Judas theyr brother, and buryed hym in hys fathers ſepulchre in ẏ citie of Modin. And al the people of Iſrael made great lamētacion for hym, & mourned longe, ſayinge: Alas, ẏ thys worthye ſhulde be ſlayne, whyche delyuered the people of Iſrael. As for other thynges partaynyng to the battayles of Judas, the noble actes that he dyd & of hys worthyneſſe: they are not wrytten, for they were very manye.

*And after the death of Judas, wycked men came vp in all the coaſtes of Iſraell, & there aroſe all ſuche as worcke vngodlyneſſe. In thoſe dayes was there a greate dearthe in the lande, & al the countre gaue ouer them ſelues and theirs vnto Bachides. So Bachides choſe wycked mē & made them Lordes in the lande. Theſe ſought out & made ſearch for Judas frēdes, & brought thē vnto Bachides: which aduēged hi ſelf vpō them wᵗ greate dyſpyte. And there came ſo great trouble i Iſrael, as was not ſence the tyme that no prophete was ſene there. C

Then came al Judas frendes together, & ſaid vnto Jonathas: for ſo much as thy brother Judas is dead, ther is none lyke hym to go forth agaynſt our enemyes, agaynſt Bachides, and ſuch as are aduerſaries vnto oure people. Wherfore, thys daye we choſe ẏ for hi, to be oure prynce, & captayne to ordre oure battayl. And Jonathas toke the gouernaunce vpon him at ẏ ſame tyme & ruled in ſteade of his brother Judas. whē Bachides gat knowlege therof he ſoughte for ty ſle him. But Jonathas and Symon hys brother, perceauynge yͭ, fledde into the wyldernes of Thecua D wyth all theyr companye, and pytched their tētes by yͤ waterpole of Haſpher.

Whych when Bachydes vnderſtode, he came ouer Jordaine with al his hoſt vpon the Sabboth day. Nowe had Jonathas ſent his brother Jhon (a captaine of the people) to praye hys frendes yͤ Nabuthites, that they wolde lende them theyr ordinaunce, for they had muche. So yͤ children of Jambry came out of Madaba, & tooke Jhon & all yͭ he had, & wēt theyr waye with all. Then came worde vnto Jonathas & Simō his brother, yͭ the children of Jambrye made a great maryage, and broughte the bryde from Madaba wyth greate pompe: for ſhe was daughter to one of the nobleſt prynces of Canaan. Wherfore they remembred the bloud of Jhō theyr brother, & wente vp, & hyd themſelues vnder yͤ ſhadowe of yͤ moūtaine

So they lyft vp theyr eyes, & loked and beholde there was much ado & grete repayre: for the brydegrome came forth, and hys frendes and hys brethrē mete them with tympaynes, inſtrumētes of muſike, & many weapons. Thē Jonathas & they that were wyth hym, rooſe out of theyr lurkynge places agaynſt them, and ſlewe many of them. As for the remnaunt, they fled into the mountaynes, and they toke al their ſubſtaunce. Thus the Maryage was turned to mourninge, & the noyſe of theyr melodye in to lamentacion. And ſo whē they had auēged yͤ bloud of theyr brother, thei turned againe vnto Jordane

E Bachides hearynge thys, came vnto the very border of Jordane with a greate power vpon yͤ Sabboth daye. And Jonathas ſayde to hys companye, let vs get vp, and fight agaynſt our enemies: for it ſtandeth not wyth vs to daye as in tymes paſt: Beholde, our enemyes are in our waye, yͤ water of Jordane vpon the one ſyde of vs, with bāckes fennes and wodes of the other ſyde, ſo that there is no place for vs to departe vnto. *Wherefore crye nowe vnto heauen, yͭ ye may be delyuered from yͤ power of our enemyes. So they ſtroke yͤ battel. And Jonathas ſtretched oute hys handes to ſmyte Bachides, but he fled backewarde. Then Jonathas and they that were wyth hym, leapte into Jordane, & ſwymmed ouer Jordane vnto him & there were ſlayne of Bachides ſyde that daye a M. men.

1.Par.10.a
1.Mac.3.d.

Therfore Bachides with hys hoſte turned agayne to Jeruſalem, and buylte vp the caſtles & ſtronge holdes that were in Jewrye, Jerycho, Emaus, Bethoron, Bettel, Thamnata, Phara, and Topo, wyth hygh walles, wyth portes and wyth lockes: and ſet men to kepe them, that they myght vſe theyr malice vpon Iſrael. He walled vp the cytye Bethſurath, Gazarach, and the caſtel, and prouided them wyth men and vytayles. He toke alſo the cheſeſte mens ſonnes in yͤ countrye for pledges, & put thē in yͤ caſtel at Jeruſalē to be kepte.

Afterwarde in the hundred fyftye & thre yeare in the ſeconde moneth Alcimus commaunded, that the walles of the inmoſte Sanctuarie ſhulde be deſtroyed, and the buyldynges of the prophettes alſo. And when he beganne to deſtroye them, the thinges yͭ he wēt aboute, were hindred, for he was ſmytten wyth a palſye, and hys mouth ſhut to that he could no more ſpeake, nor cōmaunde any of his houſe: concernynge F hys buſynes. Thus dyed Alcymus in greate miſeri at yͤ ſame tyme. And whē Bachides ſawe yͭ Alcimus was dead, he turned againe to the kyng and ſo yͤ lande was in reſte two yeares. Then all the vngodlye men helde a councell, ſayinge: Behold Jonathas and his cōpany are at eaſe & dwell without care. Wherfor, let vs bryng Bachides hether, & he ſhal take thē al in one neight.

So they went and gaue Bachides thys coūcel which aroſe to come with a great hooſt: and ſent letters preuelye to hys adherentes, whych were in Jewrye, to take Jonathas & thoſe that were with him: but they myght not, for yͤ other had gotten knowlege of theyr deuyce. And Jonathas toke fyftye mē of the countrye (whych were the ryngleaders of them) and ſlewe thē. Then Jonathas and Simon wyth theyr cōpany departed vnto the citie Bethbeſſen, whych lyeth in the wyldernes, and repayred the decaye thereof, and made it ſtrōge. When Bachides knewe this he gathered al his hooſt, and ſente worde to them that were of Jewry. Then came he and layde ſege to Bethbeſſen, and foughte agaynſt it a longe ſeaſon, and made inſtrumentes of warre. Nowe Jonathas lefte his brother Simō in the citie, and wente forth him ſelfe into ẏ countrie, ⁊ came with a certayne nombre and ſlewe Odares and his brethren and the children of Phaſeron in theyr tētes: ſo that he began to be ſtrōge, and to increaſe in power.

As for Symon ⁊ hys company, they went oute of the citie, and brente vp ẏ inſtrumētes of warre, and foughte agaynſt Bachides, and diſcomfited him And Bachides was ſore vexed, becauſe his councel and trauel was in vayne wherfore he was wroth at the wicked men (ẏ gaue hym councel to come into theyr lande) and ſlewe many of them. Then purpoſed he with hys companie to go awaye into his owne coūtry whereof whē Jonathas had knowlege, he ſent ambaſſidours vnto him, for to make peace wyth hym, and that he ſhulde delyuer him his pryſoners againe. To ẏ whyche Bachides conſented gladly, and dyd accordyng to hys deſyre: yee ⁊ made an othe, ẏ he ſhulde neuer do him harme al the daies of his life. So he reſtored vnto him all the pryſoners that he had taken oute of ẏ lande of Juda, and then turned ⁊ went his waye into hys owne lāde, neyther proceaded any further to come vnto ẏ borders of Juda. Thus Iſraell had nomore warre, and Jonathas dwelt at Machemas, ⁊ beganne there to gouerne the people, ⁊ deſtroyed ẏ vngodly mē out of Iſrael.

The x. Chapter.

Demetrius deſyreth to haue peace with Jonathas. Alexāder moueth warre agaynſt Demetrius. Demetrius is ſlayne. The frendeſhyppe of Ptolomeus and Alexander.

A In the hundred and threſcore yeare, came Alexander: the ſōne of noble Antiochus ⁊ tooke Ptolomays, whoſe cytyzyns receaued hym, and ther he raygned. When Demetrius hearde therof, he gathered an exceadinge great hooſt and wente forthe agaynſte him to fyghte. Wherefore Demetrius ſēte letters vnto Jonathas, with louyng wordes and prayſed hym greatly. For he ſayde we wyl fyrſt make peace with hym, before he bynde hym ſelfe wyth Alexāder againſt vs: elles he ſhal remembre, the euel ẏ we haue done agaynſt hym, hys brother and his people. And ſo he gaue Jonathas leaue to gather an hooſt to make weapons, ⁊ to be confederate wᵗ him, ⁊ commaūded the pledges ẏ were in the caſtell to be delyuered vnto hym.

B Then came Jonathas to Jeruſalem, ⁊ red the letters in the audience of al ẏ people: and of them ẏ were in ẏ caſtle. And therefore were they ſore afrayed, becauſe they hearde ẏ the kinge had geuen them licence to gather an hooſte. Thus were ẏ pledgers deliuered vnto Jonathas, whych reſtored thē to theyr elders. Jonathas alſo dwelte at Jeruſalē, ⁊ beganne to buylde vp and to repayre the citie, cōmaundynge ẏ workemen to wal it: ⁊ the mount Syon roūd about wᵗ fre ſtone, to be a ſtrong holde, ⁊ ſo they dyd. As for the Heathen ẏ were in the caſtels whych Bachides had made vp, they fled: ſo ẏ euery mā lefte ẏ place, ⁊ went into his owne coūtre. Onelye at Bethſura remayned certayne of the Jewes, whyche had forſaken ẏ lawe and commaūdementes of GOD, for Bethſura was theyr refuge.

Nowe whē kynge Alexander hearde of ẏ promiſes that Demetrius hadde made vnto Jonathas, and whē it was tolde him of ẏ battayles ⁊ noble actes, whyche he and his brethren had done, ⁊ of ẏ great trauayles ẏ thy had taken he ſayde: where ſhall we fynde ſuch a man? Well we wyl make him oure frende, ⁊ be confederate wᵗ him. Vpon thys he wrote a letter vnto hym: wyth theſe wordes: Kyng Alexander ſaluteth hys brother Jonathas. We haue hearde of the, ẏ thou art a valeaunt man and mete to be our frend: werfore thys day we ordayne ẏ to be our hygh Preaſt of thy people and to be called ẏ kinges frend. (Vpon thys he ſent hym a purple clothyng, ⁊ a krowne of golde) that thou mayeſt conſider what is for our profyt, and kepe frendſhyp towarde vs.

C So in the ſeuenth moneth of the hūdred and thre ſcore yeare vpon the ſolempne feaſte day of the tabernacules, Jonathas put the holy rayement vpon him. Then gathered he an hoſt and made many weapons. Whych when Demetrius hearde, he was maruelous ſorye, and ſayde: Alas, what haue we done, that Alexander hath preuented vs in gettynge the frendeſhyppe of the Jewes for hys owne defence.

yet wyl I wryte louyngely vnto thē alſo: yee, and promyſe them dignities and rewardes yͭ they maye be of my ſyde. Wherupon he wrote vnto them theſe wordes: Kynge Demetrius ſendeth gretinge vnto the people of the Iewes Where as ye haue kepte your couenaunt toward vs, and contynued in oure frendeſhyp, not enclynynge to oure enemyes, we were glad, whē we hearde therof. Wherfore remayne ſtyll, and be faythfull to vs: ⁊ we ſhall well recompenſe you for yͤ thynges yͭ ye haue done our party: we ſhal releaſe you of many charges, ⁊ geue you rewardes. And nowe I dyſcharge you ⁊ all yͤ Iewes frome tributes; I forgeue you yͤ cuſtomes of ſalt, ⁊ releaſe you of yͤ crowne taxes of yͤ thryd part of yͤ ſede, ⁊ halfe of yͤ frute of trees whyche is myne owne dutye. Theſe I leaue for you from thys daye forth: ſo that they ſhal not betakē D of the lāde of Iuda, nor of yͤ thre cities whych are added therunto out of Samaria ⁊ Galyle from thys daye forthe for euermore. Ieruſalē alſo wͭ al thynges belongynge therto, ſhalbe holy ⁊ fre: yee the tythes ⁊ trybutes ſhal pertayne vnto you. As for the power of yͤ caſtel whyche is at Ieruſalē, I remyt ⁊ geue it vnto yͤ preaſt yͭ he maye ſet in it ſuch men, as he ſhal choſe to kepe it. I frelye delyuer al yͤ Iewes yͭ are pryſoners thorowoute all my realme, ſo yͭ euery one of them ſhalbe free frō payig and tribute, yee, euen of theyr cattel.

All the ſolempne feaſtes, Sabothes, new mones, the dayes appoynted the thre dayes before ⁊ after yͤ feaſt, ſhalbe fre for all the Iewes in my realme, ſo yͭ in them no man ſhal haue power to do anye thynge, or to moue any buſynes agaynſt anye of them in anye maner of cauſe. There ſhal thyrty thouſande alſo of the Iewes be wrytten vp in yͤ kinges hoſt, ⁊ haue theyr wages payed as al other menne of warre of the kynges ſhuld haue, ⁊ of them ſhalbe ordeyned certayne to kepe yͤ kynges ſtronge holdes: yee ⁊ ſome of them ſhalbe ſet ouer the kynges buſyneſſe, yͭ they may faythfullye deale with yͤ ſame. The Iewes alſo ſhal haue princes of theyr owne, ⁊ walke in theyr owne lawes as yͤ kyng hath cōmaunded in the lande of Iuda.

And the thre cities that are fallen vnto Iewry from yͤ countre of Samaria and Galile: ſhal be taken as Iewrye, ⁊ be vnder one: nether be ſubiecte to anie ſtraunge Lorde, but to the hye preaſt. As for Ptolomays ⁊ the lande pertaynynge therto, I geue it vnto the Sanctuary at Ieruſalem, for the neceſſarie expenſes of the holy thynges, Moreouer, I will geue euerye year fyftene E thouſande ſycles of ſyluer out of yͤ kynges checker (whych partayneth vnto me) to yͤ worcke of the temple: yee, ⁊ loke what remayneth (whyche they that had our matters in hand in tyme paſte haue not payed,) yͤ ſame ſhal they geue vnto them alſo. And beſydes all thys yͤ fyue thouſande ſycles whych they toke yearly of yͤ rētes of yͤ Sanctuary, ſhal belonge vnto the preaſtes yͭ do ſeruice.

Item whoſoeuer they be, that fle vnto yͤ temple at Ieruſalem or wythin yͤ lyberties therof where as they are fallen into the kynges daunger for anye maner of buſynes, they ſhalbe pardoned, ⁊ all yͤ goodes yͭ they haue in my realme, ſhalbe fre. For the buyldynge alſo and repayrynge of the worke of yͤ Sanctuarye, expēſes ſhalbe geuē oute of yͤ kinges Checker: yee, and for yͤ makynge of the walles rounde aboute Ieruſalem, for the breakynge downe of yͤ olde, and for yͤ ſettynge vp of the ſtrōge holdes in Iewrye, ſhal yͤ coſtes ⁊ charges, be geuē oute of yͤ kiges Checker.

hearde theſe wordes, they gaue no credence vnto them, neyther receaued thē for they remēbred the greate wyckedneſſe that he had doone vnto Iſrael; ⁊ howe ſore he had vexed them. Wherefore, thei agreed vnto Alexander, for he was a prince that had dealte frendly with them ⁊ ſo they ſtoode by hym alwaye.* Then gathered Kyng Alexan Ioſeph.c der a great hooſt, ⁊ brought hys army 6.li.13.
agaynſt Demetrius. So the two kynges ſtocke battayle together, but Demetrius hoſte fled, ⁊ Alexander folowed after, and fell vpon them. A myghtye ſoore felde was it, contynuing tyl yͤ Sōne wente downe, and Demetrius was ſlayne the ſame daye.

And Alexāder ſente Ambaſadoures F vnto Ptolomy the kynge of Egypte wͭ theſe wordes, ſayinge: Forſomuch as I am come agayne to my Realme, and am ſette in the throne of my progenitoures, and haue gotten the dominion

overcomed

ouercomed Demetrius, conquered the lande and ſtricken felde wᵗ hym, ſo that we haue diſconfited both hym and hys hooſt, and ſyt in the throne of his kyngdome: Lette vs nowe make frendeſhyppe together, geue me thy daughter to wyfe: ſo ſhall I be thy ſonne in lawe, ⁊ bothe geue the rewardes, and her greate dignitie. Ptolomie the kynge gaue annſwere, ſayinge Happie be the daye wherein thou arte come agayne, vnto the lande of thy progenytours, and ſette in the throne of theyr kyngdome. As now wyll I fulfyl thy wrytyng: but mete me a Ptolomays, that we maye ſe one another, ⁊ ẏ I may mary my daughter vnto the, according to thy deſyre. So Ptolomy went out of Egypt with hys daughter Cleopatra, and came vnto Ptolomays in the Clxij. yeare where kinge Alexander mette hym, and he gaue Alexander his daughter Cleopatra, and maryed them at Ptolomais wᵗ great worſhyppe, like as the maner is of kinges to be. Then wrot kyng Alexander vnto Jonathas, that he ſhulde come ⁊ mete hym. So he wente honorabli vnto Ptolomais ⁊ there he mete the two kinges, and gaue them greate preſentes of golde and ſyluer, and founde fauoure in theyr ſyghte.

G And there came together againſt Jonathas certayne wycked men ⁊ vngracious perſons of Iſrael, makyng complaintes of hym, but ẏ kynge regarded them not. As for Jonathas, the kynge commaunded to take of hys garmētes ⁊ to clothe him in purple, ⁊ ſo they dyd. Then the kinge appoynted hym to ſyt by hym, ⁊ ſayde vnto hys Princes: Go with hym into the myddeſt of the citie, and make a proclamacion that no man cōplayne agaynſt hym in anie matter, ⁊ that noman trouble hym for any maner of cauſe.

So it happened: that when his accuſers ſawe the worſhyppe whyche was proclaymed of hym, and ẏ he was clothed in purple, they fled euerychone. And ẏ kinge made muche of hym, wrote him among hys chefe frendes, made hym a Duke, ⁊ partaker of his dominion. *Thus Jonathas went agayne to Jeruſalem with peace ⁊ gladnes. In ẏ hundred.lxv. yere came Demetrius, ẏ ſōne of Demetrius, frō Creta in to hys fathers lāde: whereof when Alexāder heard tel, he was ryghte ſorye, ⁊ returned vnto Antioch. And Demetrius choſe *Appolonius (whych had ẏ gouernaunce of Celoſyria) to be hys captayne. 1.Mac.5.d.

So he gathered a greate hooſt, and came vnto Jamnia, and ſent worde vnto Jonathas, the hie Preſt, ſaying: Dareſt thou withſtāde vs, thy ſelfe alone? As for me, I am but laughed to ſcorne ⁊ ſhamed, becauſe thou prouedeſte thy ſtrength agaynſt vs in ẏ mountaines. Nowe therfore, yf thu truſteſt in thyne owne ſtrength come downe to vs in ẏ playne felde, ⁊ there let vs proue our ſtrenght together: thou ſhalte fynde, ẏ I haue valeaunt men of warre wyth me, and ſhalt knowe whom I am, and the other that ſtande by me.

Whyche ſaye: that youre foote is not H able to ſtande before our face, for thy fathers haue bene twyſe chaſed into theyr lāde. And nowe, howe wylte thu be able to abyde ſoo greate an hoſt of horſmen and fotemen, in ẏ felde where as is neyther rocke, ſtone, nor place to fle vnto? When Jonathas hearde the wordes of Appollonius, he was moued in hys mynde: wherefore he choſe ten thouſand men, and went out of Jeruſalem, ⁊ Simon hys brother met hym for to helpe hī. And they pytched theyr tentes at Joppa, but the citie kept him forth, for Joppa was an holde of Appollonius: Then Jonathas laide ſeege to it, and they that were in the citie for very feare let hym in, and ſo Jonathas wāne Joppe. Appollonius hearinge of thys, toke.iij. thouſāde horſmē, wᵗ a greate hooſt of fote and went as though he wold go to Azotus, and came immediatly into ẏ playne felde: becauſe he had ſo many horſemen, ⁊ put hys truſte in them. So Jonathas folowed vpō hym to Azotus and there they ſtroke ẏ battayl. Nowe had Appolonius lefte a thouſande horſemen behinde them preuely in ẏ tentes. And when Jonathas knewe that ſuch wayte was layde behynd them, they went rounde aboute ẏ enemies hoſt, and ſhotte dartes at the people from ẏ mourning to ẏ euening. As for Jonathas people, they kepte theyr order as he had cōmaūded thē, ⁊ ẏ enemyes horſes were euer labourīge

Then broughte Simon forth hys hooſt, ⁊ ſet them agaynſt the foote men For ẏ horſemen were wery alredy. So I he dyſconfited them, and they fled. And they that were ſcatered in the feld gat them to Azotus, and came into the tēple of Dagon theyr Idol, yͤ they myghte there ſaue theyr lyues. But Jonathas ſet fyre vpon Azotus and al the cities round about it, and toke theyr 1.Mac.11.a goodes and*brente vp the temple of Dagon, with al them that were fled into it

Thus were ſlayne and brent wel nye viij. M. men. So Jonathas remoued yͤ hoſt from thence and brought them to Aſcolon: where the men of the citie came forth, & met hym wyth greate worſhyppe. After thys wēt Jonathas and his hooſte agayne to Jeruſalem, wyth greate ſubſtaunce of good. And when kynge Alexāder hearde theſe thynges, he thoughte to do Jonathas moare worſhippe and ſente him a colar of golde, as yͤ vſe is to begeuen vnto ſuch as are of the kinges next bloude. He gaue hym alſo yͤ citie of Accaron (whyth the landes belonging thereto) in poſſeſſiō.

The xi. Chapter.

¶The diſcencion betwixt Ptolomeus and Alexāder hys ſonne in lawe. The death of Alexander. Demetrius raygneth after the death of Ptolomeus. Sion is beſeged of Jonathas. Demetrius ſeinge that no man reſiſted hym, ſendeth hys armie agayne. Triphon moueth Antiochus agaynſt Demetrius. Demetrius is deliuered by the ſuccour of Jonathas. After hys deliueraunce he breaketh hys couenaunt that he had made.

A AND the kynge of Egypte gathered an hooſte (lyke yͤ ſande that lyeth vpon the ſee ſhore) and many ſhyps Ioſeph.ca. 7.li.13. * and went aboute thorowe dyſceate to optayne the kyngedome of Alexander, and to ioyne it vnto hys owne realme. Vppon thys he toke his iourney in to Siria, & was letten into yͤ cities, & men came forth to mete hym, for kinge Alexander had cōmaunded them ſo to do becauſe he was hys father in lawe. Nowe when Ptolomie entred into anye citie, he lefte men of warre to kepe it, & thys he dyd thorowe out al the citi 2.Mac.1[illegible].c es. And when he came to Azotus *thei ſhewed hym the temple of Dagon & Azotus that was brent vp, with yͤ other thynges which wer deſtroyed, yͤ deade bodyes caſt abroade, & the graues that they had made by yͤ waye ſyde, for ſuch as were ſlayne in the feld. And tolde yͤ kynge that Jonathas had done al theſe thynges, to the intente they myghte gett him euel wil. But the kynge ſayd not a word theretho. And Jonathas mete the kinge wͭ great honour at Joppa, where they ſaluted one another, & toke theyr reſte. So when Jonathas had gone wyth yͤ kinge vnto the water that was called Eleutherus he turned agayne to Jeruſalem.

Nowe Ptolomye had gotten the dominion of the cities vnto Selucia vpō B yͤ ſee coaſt, imagininge wicked coūcels agaynſte Alexander and ſente Ambaſadours vnto Demetrius, ſayinge: Come let vs make a bonde betwixte vs ſo ſhal I giue the my doughter that Alexander hath, & thou ſhalt raygne in thy fathers kingdome. I repent that I gaue Alexāder my doughter, for he goeth aboute to ſlaye me. And thus he ſlaundred Alexander, becauſe he wolde haue had hys Realme.

Thus he toke hys doughter from hym, gaue her vnto Demetrius, & forſoke Alexāder, ſo that hys malicie was opēly knowen. And Ptolomie came to Antioch, where he ſet two crownes vpon hys owne heade: the crowne of Egypt & of Aſia. In yͤ meane ſeaſon was kynge Alexander in Cycilia, for they yͭ dwelte in thoſe places, had rebelled agaynſt hym. But when Alexander hearde of thys, he came to warre agaynſte him. So kinge Ptolomie broughte forthe hys hooſt and met hym wyth a myghtye power & chaſed him awaye. Then fled Alexander in to Araby there to be defended, and kynge Ptolomayes honoure encreaſed. And Zabdyel yͤ Arabyan ſmote of Alexanders heade, & ſent it vnto Ptolomie. But the thyrde daye after, dyed kynge Ptolomie hym ſelfe: and they whom he had ſet in the ſtronge holdes, were ſlayne of thoſe that were wythin the cities. And Demetrius raygned in the hundred and ſeuen and ſyxtie yeare.

At the ſame tyme gathered Jonathas them that were in Jewry, to lay C ſege vnto the caſtel which was at Jeruſalem, and ſo they made manye inſtrumentes of warre agaynſt it. Then went ther certayne vngodly perſons (whyche hated theyr owne people) vnto kynge Demetrius: and tolde hym yͭ Jonathas beſeged the caſtel, So whē he hearde it, he was angry & immediatly openly came vnto Ptolemais, ⁊ wrot vnto Jonathas that he ſhuld laye no ſege to the caſtell, but come and ſpeake wyth hym in al the haſte. Neuertheleſſe, when Jonathas hearde thys, he cõmaunded to beſege it. He choſe alſo certayne of the elders and Preaſtes of Iſraell, and put hymſelfe in the parell, and toke wyth hym golde, ſyluer, clothynge, and diuerſe preſentes, ⁊ wente to Ptolomais vnto the kynge, ⁊ found hym gracious.

And thoughe certaine vngodlie men of hys owne people made complayntes vpon hym, yet* the kyng entreated him as hys predeceſſours had dõne before, and promoted hym in the ſyght of all hys frendes, confirmed hym in the hye preſt hod, with all the worſhyp that he had afore, ⁊ made hym hys chefe frend. Jonathas alſo deſired the kynge that he wolde make Jewrye fre * wyth the thre heade cities of Samaria, and the landes pertainynge thereto: vpon thys dyd Jonathas promiſe hym thre hundred talentes. Wherunto the kynge cõſented, and gaue Jonathas wrytynge of the ſame, conteinynge theſe wordes: Kyng Demetrius ſendeth greatynge vnto his brother Jonathas, and to the people of yͤ Jewes. We ſende you here a copie of the letter which we dyd wryte vnto oure elders Laſthenus, concernynge you that ye ſhulde knowe it.

D Kynge Demetrius ſendeth greatynge vnto Laſthenus hys elder. For the faythfulneſſe that our frendes the people of yͤ Jewes kepe vnto vs, ⁊ for yͤ louinge kidnes which they beare towardes vs: we are determined to do them good Wherfore we ordaine all the coaſtes of Jewrye wyth thre cities, Lydda ād Ramatha (whych are added vnto Jewrye from Samaria) ⁊ all the landes pertainynge therevnto, to be frelye ſeperated for ſuche as do ſacrifice in Jeruſalem, bothe concernynge yͤ paymentes whyche the kinge toke yearlye aforetyme, ⁊ the fruytes alſo of the earthe and trees. As for other tythes and tributes that belongeth vnto vs, we dyſcharge them thereof frome thys tyme forthe. In like maner we graunte vnto them al the coſtomes of ſalte, ⁊ crowne taxes: whyche were broughte vnto vs. And thys fredome ſhall they haue firme and ſteadefaſt, from this tyme forth for euermore. Therefore ſe yͭ ye make a copie of theſe oure letters, ⁊ delyuer it vnto Jonathas, yͭ it maye be kepte vpon yͤ holye mounte in a cõueniēt place.

E After thys when Demetrius yͤ kyng ſawe that hys lande was in reſt, ⁊ that no reſiſtaunce was made hym: he ſente away all hys hooſte euerye man to his owne place, excepte an armye of ſtraūgers, whome he broughte frome the Iles of the Heathen, wherfore all hys fathers hoſt hadde euell wyll at hym.* 1.Mac.11.e. Nowe was there one Triphon (yͭ hadde bene of Alexanders parte afore) why he when he ſawe that al yͤ hooſte murmured againſt Demetrius he wente to Emalcuel the Arabian (that brought vp Antiochus the ſonne of Alexander) and laye ſore vpon hym to delyuer hym thys yonge Antiochus, that he myghte raygne in hys fathers ſteade. He tolde hym alſo what greate euell Demetrius had done, and howe hys men of warre loued hym not, and ſo remayned there alonge ſeaſon.

And Jonathas ſent vnto kynge Demetrius to dryue thē oute whych were in the Caſtel at Jeruſalem, ⁊ in yͤ other refugies, for they dyd Iſraell greate harme. So Demetrius ſēt worde vnto Jonathas ſayinge: I wyll not only do theſe thynges for the and thy people, but at tyme conueniente I wil do both the and thy people greate worſhyppe. But nowe thou ſhalt do me a pleaſure, yf thou wilt ſende me men to helpe me, for al mine armye is goone frō me. So F Jonathas ſent hym iij. M ſtronge men vnto Antioche, and they came vnto the kynge: wherfore the kynge was verye gladde at theyr commynge. But they that were of the citie (euen an C. and xx. M men) gathered them together, ⁊ wolde haue ſlayne yͤ kynge, whych fled into hys court, and the citizyns kepte the ſtretes of the citie, and beganne to fyght. Then the kynge called for yͤ Jewes helpe, whych came to hym altogether, and went abroade thorowe the citie, and ſlewe the ſame daye an C. M. men, ſet fyre vpon that citie, gat many ſpoyles in that daye: and delyuered the kynge. So when the citizyns ſawe that the Jewes had gotten thyr wyll of the citie, and they them ſelues dyſapoynted of theyr purpoſe, they made theyr ſupplicacion vnto the kynge, ſayinge:

Graunt vs peace, and let the Jewes ceaſſe from troublyng vs and the citie, & vpon thys they caſt away theyr weapens. Thus they made peace, and yͤ Jewes gat greate worſhyppe in yͤ ſyghte of the kynge, and in the ſyghte of all that were in hys realme, and were ſpoken of thorowe out the kyngdome: and ſo they came agayne to Jeruſalē wyth great goodes,

G So the kynge Demetrius ſat in the throne of hys kyngdome, and had peace in hys lande. Neuertheleſſe, he dyſſembled in al that euer he ſpake, and withdrewe hym ſelfe frome Jonathas, neyther rewarded hym accordynge to the benefites whiche de had doone for him, but troubled hym verye ſoore. After thys came Triphon agayne wyth yonge Antiochus: which raigned and was crowned kynge. Then there gathered vnto hym all the men of warre: whome Demetrius had put awaie, theſe foughte agaynſt Demetrius, whych fled and turned hys backe. So Triphon toke the Elephantes, and wanne Antioch. And yonge Antiochus wrote vnto Jonathas, ſayinge: J confirme the in thy Preſtehode, and make the ruler ouer foure countryes, that thou mayeſt be a frende of the kynge.

Upon this he ſent hym golden veſſelles to beſerued in: and gaue hym leaue to dryncke in golde, to be clothed in purple, and to weare a colar of golde. He made his brother Simō alſo captayne, from the coaſtes of Tyrus vnto yͤ borders of Egypte. Then Jonathas toke hys yourney, & wente thorowe yͤ cities beyonde the water of Jordane, and all yͤ men of warre of Syria gathered thē vnto hym for to helpe hym. So he came vnto Aſcalon, and they of yͤ citie receaued hym honourably, and from thence went he vnto Gaza, but they wold not lette hym in, wherfore he layde ſege vnto it, burnyng vp and ſpoylynge yͤ places that were aboute the citie.

And the citizyns of Gaza ſubmitted them ſelues vnto Jonathas, whyche made peace wyth thē, but toke of theyr ſones to pledge, ſent thē to Jeruſalem, and went thorowe the coũtre vnto Damaſcus. Nowe whē Jonathas hearde that Demetrius princes were come into Cades (whych is in Galile) wyth a greate hooſte, purpoſynge to put Demetrius out from medlynge in the realme, he came agaynſte them, and lefte Simon his brother in yͤ lande, whyche came to Bethſura, & layd ſeege to it a longe ſeaſon, and dyſcõfyted them. So they deſired to haue peace wyth hym, whiche he graũted them, & afterwarde put them oute frome thence, tooke the citie and ſet men to kepe it. And Jonathas wͭ his hooſte came to the water of Geneſar, and betymes in yͤ mornynge gatte them to the playne felde of Azor.

And beholde, the hooſtes of the Heathen mete them in the felde, and layde watche for them in the mountaynes: ſo that whē Jonathas came agaynſt thē, yͤ other (whyche were layed to watch) roſe oute of theyr places and fought, & they that were of Jonathas ſyde fled, euery man, & there was not one of them lefte, excepte Mattathias the ſonne of Abſolomus, & Judas the ſonne of Calphy the captayne of the hooſte.

Then Jonathas rent hys clothes, layde earthe vpon his heade, made hys prayer & turned agayne vnto them in yͤ felde: where they foughte together, & he put them to flyghte. Nowe when hys owne men: yͭ were fled ſawe this: they turned agayne vnto hym & helped hym to folowe vpon all theyr enemies vnto theyr tentes at Cades. So there were ſlayne of the Heathen the ſame daye iij. M. men: and Jonathas turned agayne to Jeruſalem.

The xij. Chapter.

¶ Jonathas ſendeth Ambaſſadours to Rome and to the people of Sparta, to renue theyr couenaũt of frẽdſhyp. Jonathas putteth to flyght the princes of Demetrius. Triphon taketh Jonathas by diſceate.

A JOnathas ſeynge that yͤ tyme was mete for hym, choſe certayne men & ſent thē vnto Rome for to ſtablyſhe & to renue *yͤ frẽdeſhyppe wythe thē. 1.Mach He ſent letters alſo vnto Sparta & to other places in lyke maner. So they went vnto Rome, and entred into the councel, and ſayde: Jonathas yͤ hye preaſt & yͤ people of yͤ Jewes ſent vs vnto you: for to renue yͤ olde frendeſhyppe & bond of loue: Upon thys the Romaines gaue thē fre paſportes, that men ſhulde leade them home into yͤ lande of Juda peaciablie. And this is the copie of the letters that Jonathas wrote vnto the Spartians.

Jonathas the hye preaſt wͭ yͤ elders, preaſtes, and the other people of yͤ Jewes, ſende greatynge vnto the Spartians theyr brethrē. Ther were letters, ſente longe agoo vnto Onias the hye preaſte, from Arius: whiche than raigned amonge you: that ye are our brethren, as the wrytynge made thereupon ſpecifieth. And Onias entreated yͤ ambaſſadoure that was ſent honourablie, and receaued the letters: wherin there was mencion made of the bōde of loue and frendſhyppe: But as for vs, we nede no ſuche wrytynges: for why? we haue the holye bookes of ſcripture in B oure handes to oure cōfort. Neuertheleſſe we had rather ſente vnto you, for the renuynge of the brotherhod & frendſhyppe: Leſt we ſhuld be ſtraunge vnto you, for it is longe ſynce the tyme that ye ſent worde vnto vs. Wherefore: in yͤ ſacrifices that we offer and other ceremonies vpon the hye ſolempne dayes & other, we alwaye remember you wythoute ceaſſyng (lyke as reaſon is, and as it becommeth vs to thyncke vpon oure brethren) yea, and are ryght glad of youre proſperous honour.

And though we haue had great troubles & wanres, ſo yͭ the kynges about vs haue foughten agaynſt vs: yet wold we not be greuous vnto you, nor to other of oure louers and frendes in theſe warres. For we haue had helpe from heauen, ſo that we are delyuered, & our enemies ſubdued. Wherfore we choſe Numenius yͤ ſōne of Antiochus, & Antipater yͤ ſonne of Jaſon, & ſente them vnto yͤ Romās, for to renue yͤ olde bōde of frendſhyp & loue wͭ them. We commaunded thē alſo to come vnto you, to ſalute you, and to deliuer your our letters, concerning the renauacion of our brotherhod. And now ye ſhal do ryght well to geue vs an anſwere thereunto.

C And thys is the copie of the wrytynge, which Arius the kynge of Sparta ſente vnto Onias: Arius kyng of the Spartians ſendeth greatig vnto Onias the hyghe Preaſte. It is founde in wrytynge, that the Spartians and Jewes are brethren, and come out of the generaciō of Abraham. And now for ſo much as thys is come to oure knowlege, ye ſhall do well, to wryte vnto vs of youre proſperite. As for vs, we haue wrytten oure mynde vnto you: Oure catell and goodes are youres, & yours ours. Theſe thynges haue we commaunded to be ſhewed vnto you.

When Jonathas hearde that Demetrius princes were come forth to fight agaynſt hym with a greater hooſt then afore, he went from Jeruſalem: & mete them in yͤ lande of Hemath, for he gaue them not ſpace to come into hys owne country. And he ſente ſpyes vnto theyr tentes, whych came agayne and tolde hym, that they were appoynted to come vpon hym in the nyghte ſeaſon. Wherefore when the Sunne was gone downe, Jonathas commaundeth hys men to watche al the nyghte, and to be readye wyth weapons for to fyghte: and ſet watchemen rōude aboute yͤ hooſte. But when the aduerſaries hearde that Jonathas was readye wyth hys men to yͤ battel: they feared, & were afrayed in theyr hertes, and kyndled fyres in theyr tentes, brake vp, and gat them awaye. Neuertheleſſe, Jonathas and hys company knewe it not tyll yͤ morning, for they ſawe the fyres burninge.

Then Jonathas folowed vpō them, D but he myghte not ouertake them, for they were goone ouer the water Eleutherus. So Jonathas departed into yͤ Arabians (whyche were called Zabadei) ſlewe them and toke theyr goodes. He proceaded further alſo, & came vnto Damaſcus, and wente thorowe all the countre. But Simon hys brother toke hys iourney and came to Aſcalon and to the nexte ſtronge holdes, departinge vnto Joppa, and wāne it. For he heard that they wolde ſtande of Demetrius parte, wherfore he ſette men of warre in yͤ citie to kepe it. After thys came Jonathas home agayne, & called yͤ elders of yͤ people together, and deuiſed wyth them for to buylde vp the ſtrōge holdes in Jewrye, and the walles of Jeruſalē, to ſet vp an hye wall betwyxte yͤ caſtel and the citie, for to ſeperate it frome yͤ Citie, that it myghte be alone, and that men ſhuld neyther by nor ſell in it. Vpō thys they came together for to buylde E vp the citie, and for ſo muche as yͤ wall vpon the broke of the weſt ſyde (called Caphetheta) was fallen downe, they repayred it: And Simon ſet vp Adiadah in Sephelah, and made it ſtronge, ſettynge portes and lockes vpon it. Nowe when * Triphon purpoſed to raigne in Aſia, to be crowned, and to ſlaye the kinge Antiochus: he was afrayed that Jonathas wolde not ſuffre hym: but fyghte agaynſt hym: Wherfore he wēte aboute to take Jonathas, ⁊ to kyl him. So he departed, and came vnto Bethſan. Then wēte Jonathas forth agaynſte hym to the battel wyth xl.M. choſen men, and came vnto Bethſen alſo. But when Triphon ſawe yͭ Jonathas came wͭ ſo greate an hooſte to deſtroye hym, he was afrayed, and therfore he receaued hym honourablie, commended him vnto all his frendes, and gaue hym rewardes and commaunded hys men of warre to be as obediente vnto hym as to hym ſelfe.

F And ſayd vnto Jonathas, why haſt thou cauſed thys people to take ſuch trauayle, ſeying ther is yet warre betwyxte vs? Therfore ſende them home agayne, ⁊ choſe certayne men to wayte vpon the, and come thou wͭ me to Ptolemais, for I wyll geue it the, wyth the other ſtrong holdes, men of warre and theyr officers: As for me I muſt departe, thys is onely the cauſe of my comming. Jonathas beleued hym, and dyd as he ſayd, puttynge awaye his hooſte, whyche went into the lande of Juda. He kepte but thre thouſande by hym, wherof he ſent two thouſande into Galile, ⁊ one thouſande went wͭ hym ſelfe.

Nowe aſſone as Jonathas entred into Ptolemais, the citizyns ſpared yͤ gates of the citie, and toke hym, and ſlewe all them wyth the ſwearde, that came wyth hym. Then ſente Triphon an hoſt of fote men and horſemen into Galile and into yͤ great playne, to deſtroye Jonathas company. But when they knewe that Jonathas was taken: and al they ſlayne that wayted vpon hym, they toke councell together and came forth ready to the battell. So whē they whych folowed vpon thē, ſawe that it was a matter of lyfe, they turned back agayne. As for the other they went into the land of Juda peceably, and bewayled Jonathas, and them that were wyth hym ryght ſore. And Iſraell made greate lamentacion. Then all the Heathen that were round aboute them ſought to deſtroye them. For they ſayd: nowe haue they no captaine, nor any man to helpe them. Therfore, let vs ouercome them, and roote oute theyr name from amonge men.

The xiij. Chapter.

¶ After Jonathas was taken Simon is choſen captayne, of whome Triphon takynge hys chyldren and monye for the redempcion of Jonathas, kylleth hym and hys chyldrē. The graue of Jonathas. Triphon kylleth Antiochus, and poſſeſſeth the realme. Demetrius taketh truce wyth Simon. Simon wynneth Gaza. He poſſeſſeth the tower of Sion. He maketh his ſonne Jhon captayne.

NOwe when Simon hearde yͭ Triphon gathered a greate hoſt to come into yͤ lād of Juda, ⁊ to deſtroye it, ⁊ ſawe yͭ yͤ people was in greate fearfulneſſe and care: He cam vp to Jeruſalem, ⁊ gathered the people together, and gaue them exhortacion, ſayinge: ye knowe what great battayles I and my brethrē and my fathers houſe haue foughte for the lawe and the Sanctuarie, ⁊ what maner of troubles we haue ſene: thorowe occaſion, wherof * all my brethren are ſlayne for Iſraels ſake, and I am lefte aloone. And nowe let me not ſpare myne owne lyfe in anye maner of trouble, for I am not better then my brethren, but wyll aduenge my people and the Sanctuarie, oure chyldren ⁊ oure wyues: for all the Heathen are gathered together to deſtroy vs of verye malice. A

1.Mac. 9.b.23.

At theſe wordes yͤ hertes of yͤ people were kyndled together, ſo yͭ they cryed with a loude voice ſayinge: Thou ſhalt be our captayne in ſtead of Judas, and Jonathas thy brethren, ordre thou our battayle, ⁊ whatſoeuer thou commaūdeſt vs, we ſhall do it. So he gathered all the men of warre, making haſt to finiſh all the walles of Jeruſalē, whyche he made ſtronge round aboute. Then ſent he Jonathas the ſonne of Abſalomus wͭ a freſh hooſt vnto Joppa, which droue them oute that were in yͤ caſtell, and remayned there hym ſelfe. Triphō alſo remoued from Ptolemais wyth a great armye, to come into the land of Juda, ⁊ Jonathas wyth him in warde. And Simon pytched his tentes at Addus before the playne feld. B

But when Triphon knewe that Simon ſtode vp in ſteade of hys brother Jonathas, and that he wolde warre agaynſte hym, he ſent meſſengers vnto hym ſayenge: Where as we haue kept Jonathas thy brother, it is for mony yͭ he is owynge in yͤ kinges accoumpt, cōcernyng the buſynes yͭ he had in hande.

wherfore ſende nowe an hundred talentes of ſyluer, and his two ſonnes for ſuretye, that when he is letten forth, he ſhal not forſake vs, ⁊ we ſhal ſẽde him agayne. Neuertheleſſe, Simon knewe, that he deſſembled in hys wordes, yet commaunded he the monye and childrẽ to be delyuered vnto hym, leſt he ſhuld be the greater enemie agaynſt the people of Iſrael, ⁊ ſay: becauſe he ſent hym not the monye and the chyldren, therefore is Jonathas dead.

C So Simon ſent hym the chyldren ⁊ an hundred talentes, but he diſſembled, ⁊ wold not let Jonathas go. Afterwarde came Triphon in the lande to deſtroye it, and wente rounde aboute by the waye, that leadeth vnto Ador. But whereſoeuer they went, thether wente Simon and his hooſt alſo. Nowe they that were in the caſtell, ſente meſſengers vnto Triphon, that he ſhulde make haſt to come by the wyldерneſſe, and to ſende them vitayles. And Triphon made ready al hys horſemen to come ẏ ſame nyght. Neuertheleſſe, it was a very greate ſnow, ſo that he came not in Galaaditхim. And when he drewe nye Baſchama, he ſlew Jonathas and his ſonnes there, and then turned for to go home into hys owne land.

Then ſente Simon to fet hys brothers dead coarſe, and buryed it in Modin his fathers citie. So all Iſrael bewayled hym with great lamentacion, ⁊ mourned for hym very lõg. And Simõ made vpon the ſepulchre of hys father and hys brethren, a buyldynge hye to loke vnto, of fre ſtone, behynd ⁊ before, and ſet vp ſeuen pyllers, one agaynſte another (for hys father, hys mother, ⁊ foure brethren) and ſet greate pyllers round aboute wyth armes vpon them, for a perpetual memorie, ⁊ carued ſhyppes beſyde the armes, that they myght be ſene of men ſaylyng in the ſee. Thys ſepulchre which he made at Modin: ſtãdeth yet vnto thys daye.

D *Now as Triphõ wente forth to walke wyth the yonge kynge Antiochus, he ſlew hym trayterouſly, ⁊ raygned in hys ſteade, crowned hymſelfe kynge of Aſia, and dyd much euell in the lande. Simon alſo buylte vp the caſtels in Jewrye makyng them ſtrong wyth hye towres, great walles and portes and lockes, and layed vp vytayles in the ſtronge holdes. And Simon choſe certayne men, and ſente them to kynge Demetrius, to deſyre hym, that he wolde diſcharge the lande from all bondage, for Triphon had ſpoyled it very ſore. Whereupon Demetrius the kynge anſwered hym, and wrote vnto hym after thys maner:

Demetrius the kyng ſendeth gretynge vnto Simon the hye preaſte hys frẽde, with the elders and people of the Jewes. The golden crowne and precious ſtone that ye ſente vnto vs, haue we receaued, and are ready to make a ſtedfaſt peace with you: yee, ⁊ to wryt vnto our officers, for to relaſe you, concerninge the thynges where in we made you fre, ⁊ the appointment that we make w you, ſhalbe firme and ſtable. The ſtronge holdes whych ye haue buylded ſhall be youre owne. As for anye ouerſyghte or faute committed vnto thys daye, we forgeue it and the crowne taxe that ye ought vs alſo. And where as was any other tribute in Jeruſalem, it ſhallbe now no tribute: and loke who are mete among you to be in our court, let them be wrytten vp, that there maye be peace betwyxte vs.

E Thus the yock of the Heathen was taken from Iſrael in the hundreth and ſeuententhe yeare. And the people of ẏ Jewes beganne to wryte theyr letters and actes on thys maner: *In the firſt yeare of Simon the hye preaſte, and prince of the Jewes. 1.Mac.13.d.

In thoſe dayes wente Simon vnto Gaza and beſeeged it rouũd aboute, where he ſet vp ordinaunce of warre. And wanne a towre, which he toke. So they gat into the towre, leapt into the citie, which was in a great feare: In ſo much that the people of the citie rente theyr clothes, and clymed vp vpon the walles wyth theyr wyues and chyldren, beſechynge Simon to be at one with thẽ, ſayinge:

F O reward vs not after oure wyckedneſſe, but be gracious vnto vs, and we ſhal do the ſeruice. Then Simon for very pitie wolde fyght nomore agaynſte them, but put them out of the citie, and cauſed the houſes (wherein the images were) to be clenſed, and ſo entred the citie wyth Pſalmes of prayſe, geuynge thankes vnto the LORDE. So when he had caſt all abhominacions oute of the citie, he ſet ſuche men in it as kept ẏ law of GOD, and made the citie ſtrōg & buylded a dwelling place for him ſelfe.

Now, when they in the caſtell at Ieruſalem were kepte ſo ſtraytelie ẏ they could not come forth into the countrie, & myght neyther by nor ſell, they were verye hūgry, and many of thē famiſhed to death, In ſo much ẏ they beſought Simon to be at one wyth them, which he graūted them. So he put them oute from thence, and clenſed ẏ caſtell from fylthyneſſe. And vpon ẏ thre & twentye daye of the ſeconde moneth in ẏ Clxxi. yeare they entred into it with thankeſgeuynge & braunches of Palme trees, wyth Harpes, Croudes, Cymbales, ād lutes, ſyngynge Pſalmes and ſonges of prayſe vnto GOD: for that the great enemie of Iſraell was ouercome.

And Simon ordained that the ſame day ſhulde be kept euery yeare in gladneſſe, and made ſtronge the hyll of the temple that was beſyde ẏ caſtel, where he dwelte hymſelfe with hys company. Simon alſo perceauing that Ihon his ſonne was a myghty man of armes, made hym captayne of all the hooſtes, and cauſed hym to dwell at Gaza.

The xiiij. Chapter.

¶ Demetrius is ouercome of Arſaces. Simon beyng captaine, there is greate quietenes in Iſrael: The couenaunt of frendeſhyppe wyth the Romās, and wyth the people of Sparta is renewed.

A In the Clxxij. yeare gathered king Demetrius his hooſt, and departed vnto Media to get hym helpe for to fight agaynſte Triphon. Nowe when Arſaces ẏ kyng of Perſia and Media heard, that Demetrius was entred wyth in hys borders, he ſente one of hys princes, to take hym alyue: and to bryng hym vnto hym. So he went and ſlew Demetrius hooſt, toke hym ſelfe, brought hym to Arſaces, whych kept hym in warde. And all the lande of Iuda was in reſte ſo longe as Simon liued, for he ſought the welth of hys people, therefore were they glad to haue him for theyr ruler, and to do hym worſhyp alway.

B Simon wanne the citie of Ioppa alſo for an hauen towne, and made it an entraunce into the Iles of the ſee. He enlarged the borders of his people, and conquered them more land. He gathered vp many of theyr people that were pryſoners: he had the dominion of Gaza, Bethſura, and the caſtell, whych he clenſed from fylthynes, and there was no man that reſiſted hym. So that euery man tylled his grounde in peace, the land of Iuda, and the trees gaue theyr frute and encreace. The elders ſat all in Iudgement, and toke theyr deuyce for the wealth of the lande, ẏ yong men put on worſhyp and harneſſe vpon thē. He prouided vitayles for the cities, and made goodly ſtronge holdes of them, ſo that the fame of hys worſhyppe was ſpoken of vnto the ende of the worlde. *For he made peace thorowe oute the lāde, & Iſrael was ful of myrth & Ioye. Leui.26. 3.Reg.4.

Euerye man ſat vnder hys vine and fygge trees, & there was noman to fray them away. There was none in ẏ land to fyght agaynſte them, for then ẏ kynges were ouercome. He helped thoſe ẏ were in aduerſite among hys people, he was diligent to ſe the lawe kepte, as for ſuch as were vngodly and wicked, he toke them awaye. He ſet vp the Sanctuarie, and encreaſed the holye veſſels of the Temple.

When the Romans and the Spartians had gotten word, that Ionathas was dead, they were ryghte ſorye. But when they hearde that Simon hys brother was made hye preaſte in hys ſteade, and howe he had wonne the lande agayne wyth the cities in it, they wryte vnto him in tables of braſſe, to renue the frendeſhyp, & bonde of loue, whych they had made afore wyth *Iudas and Ionathas hys brethren. Whyche wrytinges were red before the congregacion at Ieruſalem. 1.Mac.8. And.12.a.

E And thys is the copie of the letters that the Spartians ſente: The Senators and citezins of Sparta ſende gretyng vnto Simon the great preaſte, vnto the elders, Preaſtes, and the other people of the Iewes their brethren. Whan your ambaſſidours that were ſente vnto our people certified vs of youre worſhyppe, honour and proſperous welth, we were glad of theyr commynge, and haue wrytten the errande whych they ſpake before the counſall of the people, namly ẏ Numenius the ſonne of Antiochus & Antipater the ſone of Iaſon ẏ Iewes ambaſſidours are come vnto vs, for to renue ẏ olde frēdeſhyppe with

vs, Upon

D vs. Upon thys the people conſented, yͤ the men ſhulde be honorably intreated, and yͤ the copy of theyr errand ſhuld be wryttē in the ſpecial bokes of yͤ people, for a perpetuall memorie vnto yͤ Spartyans: yee, and that we ſhulde ſende a copie of yͤ ſame vnto Simon the greate preaſt. After thys dyd Simō ſende Numenius vnto Rome, with a golden ſhylde of a thouſande pounde weyght, to cōmende the frendſhyp with them, which when the Romans vnderſtode, they ſaide: what thankes ſhall we recompenſe agayne vnto Simon and his chyldren: For he hathe ſtablyſhed hys brethren, ouercome the enemies of Iſrael. Wherfore they graunted hym to be free. And all thys wrote the Iewes in tables of braſſe, and nayled it vnto the pylers vpon the mount Sion. The copie of the wrytynge is thys:

The eyhte and twentye daye of the Moneth *Elul, in yͤ hundred lxxij. yeare, in the thyrde yeare of Simō the hye preaſte, in the greate congregacion of the preſtes, rulers of the people, and elders of the countrye at Aſaram, were theſe wordes openly declared:

E For ſo much as there was much warre in oure lande, therefore Simon the ſonne of Mattathias (come of the chyldren of Iareb) ⁊ hys brethren put thēſelues in parel, ⁊ reſiſted the enemies of theyr people: that theyr Sanctuarie ⁊ law myght be mayntayned, ⁊ dyd theyr people greate worſhyppe: Ionathas in lyke maner after that he had gouerned his people, and bene theyr hye preaſte: dyed ⁊ lyeth buryed beſyde hys elders. After that wolde theyr enemies haue troden theyr holy thinges vnder foote, deſtroyed theyr lande, ⁊ vtterly waſted theyr Sanctuarie. Then Simon withſtode them, and fought for hys people, ſpent much of his owne monye, weapened the valeaunt men of hys people, gaue them wages, made ſtrong the cities of Iuda, with Bethſura that lyeth vpō the borders of Iewry (where the ordinaunce of theyr enemies laye ſome tyme) ⁊ ſet the Iewes there for to kepe it.
F He made faſt Ioppa alſo, whych lyeth vpon the ſee, ⁊ Gaza that bordreth vpō Azotus (where yͤ enemies dwelt afore) and there he ſet Iewes to kepe it: and what ſoeuer was mete for yͤ ſubduinge of the aduerſaries, that layd he therin.

Now when yͤ people ſawe the noble actes of Simon, ⁊ what worſhippe he was purpoſed to do for thē hys godlye behauoure, and faythfulneſſe which he kept vnto thē, ⁊ howe he ſought by allwayes the welth of hys people, becauſe he dyd all thys therfore they choſe hym to be theyr prince, ⁊ hye preaſte. And in his tyme they proſpered wel by hym, ſo yͤ the Heathen were taken out of theyr land: ⁊ they alſo which were in the citie of Dauid at Ieruſalē in the caſtel (where they went out ⁊ defyled all thynges that were aboute the Sanctuarie, and dyd greate harme vnto clenlyneſſe) and Simon put men of the Iewes in it, for the defenſe of the lande and citie, and ſet vp the walles of Ieruſalem.

G And kinge Demetrius cōfirmed hym in hys hye preſthode, made hym hys frēde, and dyd hym great worſhyp. For he hearde that the Romans called the Iewes theyr frendes, louers, and brethrē, how honorably they receaued Simōs ambaſſadours: howe the Iewes ⁊ preaſtes conſented that he ſhulde be theyr prince and hye preaſte perpetually (tyll GOD rayſeth vp the true prophet) and that he ſhuld be theyr captayne to care for the Sanctuarie, ⁊ to ſet officers vpon the workes therof, ouer the lande, ouer the weapons, ouer yͤ houſes of defenſe, to make prouiſion for the holy thīges, and to be obeyed of euery man, and all the wrytynges of yͤ lande to be made in his name: that he ſhuld be clothed in purple and golde, ⁊ that it ſhulde be lawfull for none of the people nor preaſtes to breake anye of theſe thinges, to withſtande his wordes, nor to call any cōgregacion in the lande without hym, that he ſhulde be clothed in purple, and weare a colar of golde. And yf there were anye whych diſobeyed or brake thys ordinaunce, that he ſhuld be punyſhed.

So all the people conſented to alow Simon, and to do according vnto theſe wordes: Simon alſo hymſelf toke vpon hym, ⁊ was contente to be the hye Preaſte, the Captayne, ⁊ Prince of the Iewes and preaſtes, ⁊ to gouerne them all. And they cōmaunded to make thys wrytyng in tables of braſſe, and faſten it to the compaſſe of the Sanctuarie in an open place, and laye vp a copie of the ſame in the treſurye, that Simon ⁊ hys poſteritie myght haue it.

The xv. Chapter.

¶ Antiochus maketh a couenaunt of frendſhyppe with Simon, and Tryphon is perſecuted. The Romans wryt letters vnto kinges and naciōs in the defenſe of the Iewes. Antiochus refuſinge the helpe that Simon ſent him, breaketh hys couenaunt.

A Moreouer kynge Antiochus the ſonne of Demetrius ſente letters from the Iles of the ſee, vnto Simon the hye preaſte & prynce of the Iewes, and to all the people, contaynynge theſe wordes: Antiochus the kyng ſendeth greatyng vnto Simon the hye preaſt, and to the people of the Iewes. For ſo muche as certayne wycked men haue gotten yͤ kyngdome of our progenitours, I am purpoſed to chalenge the realme agayne, and to reſtore it to the olde eſtate.

Wherfore I haue gathered a greate hooſte, and made ſhippes of warre, that I may go thorowe the country, and be aduenged of thē which haue deſtroyed our lande, and waſted manye cities in my realme. And therfore nowe I make the fre alſo from all the tributes, wherof all kynges my progenitours haue diſcharged the: and frō other cuſtomes (wher frō they haue releaſed the) what ſoeuer they be: yee, I geue the leaue to ſmyte mony of thyne owne, within thy lande. As for Ieruſalem, I will that it be holy & fre: and all the weapons and houſes of defenſe, whych thou haſt buylded, and kepeſte in thyne handes, ſhall be thyne. Where as anye thynge is or ſhalbe owynge vnto the kynge, I forgeue it the, from thys tyme forth to euermore. And whē we haue obtayned oure kyngedome, we ſhal do the, thy people, and the temple greate worſhyp: ſo that your honour ſhallbe knowen thorowe out the whole worlde.

B In yͤ Clxxiiij. yeare went Antiochus into hys fathers lande, and all the men of warre came together vnto hym, ſo yͭ fewe were left with Triphon. So the kyng Antiochus folowed vpō hym, but he fled vnto Dora, which lyeth by the ſee ſyde: for he ſawe that there was myſchefe commynge vnto hym, and that hys hoſte had forſakē hym. Then came Antiochus vnto Dora with an C. and twentye thouſande men of armes vpō foote, and eyght thouſande horſemen. So he cōpaſſed the citie round aboute, and the ſhyppes came by the ſee. Thus they vexed the citie by land and by water, in ſo much that they ſuffred noman to go in or oute.

C In the meane ſeaſon came *Numenius (& they that had bene with hym) from yͤ citie of Rome, hauynge letters wrytten vnto the kynges & prouinces, wherein were contained theſe wordes: Lucius the Mayre of Rome ſendethe greatynge vnto Ptolomie the kynge. The ambaſſadours of the Iewes oure frendes beyng ſent from Simon yͤ hye preaſt, and from the people of yͤ Iewes, came vnto vs for to renue the olde frēdſhyp and bond of loue, brought a ſhyld of golde weyinge a thouſande pounde, whych we were contente to receaue of them. Wherefore we thoughte it good to wryte vnto the kynges and prouinces, to do them no harme, nor to take parte agaynſte them, theyr cities, nor countrye, neyther to mayntayne theyr enemies agaynſt them. Yf there be any wycked perſonnes therefore fled from theyr countrye vnto you, delyuer them vnto Simon the preaſte, that he maye punyſhe them accordynge to theyr owne lawe.

1,Ma.14.d

D The ſame wordes wrote yͤ Romans alſo vnto Demetrius the kyng, to Attalus, Araba, Arſaces, & to all the regiōs, as Samſanes, to them of Sparta, Delo, Mido, Sidon, Caria, Samos, Pāphilia, Lycia, Alicarnaſſum, and to the Rhodes, to Faſelis, Coo, Sida, Arado, Gortina, Gnidum, to Cypres and Cyren. And of euery letter they ſent a copie to Simon the hye preaſt, and to the people of the Iewes: So Antiochus yͤ kynge brought hys hooſt vnto Dora yͤ ſeconde tyme to take it: where he made diuerſe ordinaunce of warre, and kepte Triphon in, that he ſhulde not come forth. Then ſent Simon to Antiochus two thouſande choſen mē to helpe hym with golde, ſyluer, and other plenteous gere. Neuertheleſſe, he wold not receaue them, but brake all the couenaunte which he made with Simon afore, and withdrewe himſelfe from him.

He ſent Athenobius alſo a frend of his vnto Simon, for to reaſon wͭ hym, ſayinge: ye wytholde from me Ioppa and Gaza (wyth the caſtel that is at Ieruſalē) whych are cities of my realme, whoſe borders ye haue deſtroyed and one great euell in yͤ lande, hauynge the dominaciō in many other places of my kyngdome. Wherfore nowe delyuer yͤ cities whych ye haue taken, with yͤ tributes of the places that ye haue rule vpon without the borders of Jewrye: Or els geue me fyue hundred talentes of ſyluer: yee, ⁊ for the harme that ye haue done in the cities: and for the tributes of yͤ ſame other fiue hūdred talētes. yf no, we ſhal come ⁊ fyght agaiſt you.

E So Athenobius the kynges frende came to Jeruſalem, and when he ſawe yͤ greate worſhippe and honoure of Simon in golde, ſyluer, and ſo great plentye of ornamentes, he maruailed ⁊ tolde Simon as the kynge commaunded hym. Then anſwered Symon and ſayd vnto hym: *As for vs we haue nether taken other mens landes, nor wytholden them, but onelye oure fathers heritage, whych our enemies had vnryghteouſlie in poſſeſſyon a certaine time. Thys herytage of oure fathers haue we chalēged in proceſſe of time. And where as thou cōplaineſt concerninge Joppa ⁊ Gaza, they dyd greate harme to oure people ⁊ in oure lande, yet wyl we geue an hundred talentes for thē.

Neuertheleſſe, Athenobius anſwered hym not one worde, but turned againe wrothfullye vnto the king ⁊ told hym al theſe wordes, ⁊ the great dignitie of Simon, with all that he had ſene ⁊ the kynge was verye angrye. In the meane time fled Tryphō by ſhyppe vnto Orthoſaida. Then the kynge made Cendebeus captaine of yͤ ſee coaſt, and gaue hym an hooſt of fotemen and horſemen, commaundinge hym to remoue the hooſte towarde Jewrye, ⁊ to buylde vp the citie of Cedron, to make vp yͤ portes, ⁊ to warre agaynſt the people of the Jewes. As for the kynge himſelfe: he folowed vpon Tryphon. So Cēdebeus came vnto Jamnia, and began to vexe the people, to tread downe Jewry, to take the people pryſoners, to ſlay them ⁊ * to buylde vp Cedrō, where he ſet horſemen ⁊ other men of warre: that they myght come forth, and go thorowe the ſtretes of Jewry, lyke as the kynge had commaunded.

The xvi. Chapter.

¶ Cendebeus the captayne of Antiochus hooſt is put to flight of the ſonnes of Simō. Ptolomeus the ſonne of Abobus kylleth Simon and hys two ſonnes at a banket. Jhon kylleth them that lye in wayte for hys lyfe.

Then came Jhon vp frō * Gaza, and tolde Simō his father what Cendebeus had done amonge theyr people. Vpō this called Simon two of hys eldeſte ſonnes, Judas and Jhon, and ſayd vnto them: I and my brethren, ⁊ my fathers houſe, haue euer from oure youth vp vnto thys daye foughten againſt yͤ enemies of Iſraell, ⁊ GOD gaue vs good fortune to delyuer Iſrael ofte tymes. And nowe for ſo muche as I am olde, be ye in ſtead of me and my brethrē, to go forth and fyght for our people and the helpe of GOD be with you. So he choſe twentie thouſande fyghtinge mē of yͤ country wyth horſmen alſo, which wente forth agaynſt Cendebeus, and reſted at Modin. A 1.Mac.15.f.

In the mornynge they aroſe, and wēte into the playne felde: and beholde, a myghty greate hooſt came agaynſt thē both of footemen and horſemē. Nowe was there a water broke betwyxt thē, and Jhon remoued the hooſt to ward them. And when he ſawe that the people was afrayed to go ouer the water broke, he went ouer fyrſt hymſelf, and yͤ men ſeing this, folowed hym. Then Jhon ſet hys horſemen and footemē in ordre, yͤ one by the other, for theyr enemyes horſemen were verie manie. But when they blew vp yͤ preaſtes trompettes, Cendebeus fled wyth hys hooſte, whereof many were ſlayne, ⁊ the remnaunt gat them to their ſtronge holde. Judas alſo Johns brother was wounded at yͤ ſame time. And Jhon folowed ſtyl vpon the enemies, tyll he came to Cedron * which he buylded. The enemies fled alſo vnto the towers yͤ were in the feldes of Azotus, and thoſe dyd Jhō burne vp. Thus were ſlayne two thouſande men of them, and Jhon turned agayn peaceably to Jewrye.

And in the felde of Jericho was Ptolomie yͤ ſonne of Abobus made captayne, which becauſe he had aboundaunce of ſyluer ⁊ golde: (for he hadde maryed the daughter of Simon the hye preaſt) waxed proude in his mynde, ⁊ thought to conquere the lande, imagenyng falſhed agaynſt Simon and hys ſonnes, to deſtroy thē. Nowe as Symon was goinge aboute thorowe the cytyes, that were in the country of Jewry, and carynge for them, he came downe to Jericho with Mattathias and Judas his ſonnes, in the. Clxxvij. yeare in Ianuarie. the xj. moneth called *Sabat. Then Ptolomie yͤ ſonne of Abobus receaued them (but wyth diſceate) into a ſtrong houſe of his, called Doch, which he had buylded where he made them a bãket.

So when Simon & his ſonnes, were merie and had droncken wel, Ptolomie C ſtode vp wyth hys men (whom he had hyd ther) and toke theyr weapons, entred into the bancket houſe, & ſlewe Simon wyth hys two ſonnes, & certayne of hys ſeruauntes. Suche greate vnfaythfulneſſe dyd Ptolomie in Iſrael, & recõpenſed euel for good. Thẽ wrote this Ptolomie the ſame vnto the kinge Antiochus requiring him that he ſhuld ſende hym an hooſte to helpe hym: and ſo ſhulde he delyuer hym the land with the cities and tributes of the ſame. He ſente other men alſo vnto Gaza, for to take Jhon, and wrote vnto the captaynes to come to him, and he ſhulde geue them ſyluer, gold, and rewardes. And to Jeruſalem he ſente other to take it, and the Sanctuarie.

D Then ranne there one before, & told Jhon in Gaza, that hys father and his brethren were ſlayne, and howe yͤ Ptolomie had ſent to ſlay hym alſo. When Jhõ hearde thys he was ſore abaſhed, and layde handes of them that were come to deſtroy him, & ſlewe them, for he knewe, yͭ they wente about to kyl him.

As for other thynges concernynge Jhon: of his warres, of his noble actes (wherein he behaued him ſelfe manfullye) of the buyldynge of walles whych he made, & other of hys deades. They are wrytten in the chronacles of hys preaſt ſtode, from yͤ time forth yͭ he was made hye preaſte after hys father.

The fyrſte Chapter.

¶ An Epiſtle of the Jewes that dwelt at Jeruſalẽ ſente vnto them that dwelt in Egypte, wherein they exhorte them to geue thanckes for the death of Antiochus. Of the fyre that was hyd in the pytt. The prayer of Nehemias.

THe brethren of the Jewes whych be at Jeruſalem, A and in the land of Jewry, wyſhe vnto thoſe brethrẽ of the Jewes that are thorowoute Egypte: good fortune, health and peace.

GOD be gracious vnto you and thyncke vpon his couenaunte that he made with Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob hys faytful ſeruauntes: *and geue you all Deu. 30. such an hert, that ye maye loue & ſerue hym: yee, and performe hys wyll wyth an whole hert and of a wyllynge mynde. He open your hertes in hys lawe & in his commaundemẽtes, ſende peace, hear your prayers, be at one with you, and neuer forſacke you in tyme of trouble. This is heare oure prayer for you:

What tyme as Demetrius raygned in yͤ Clxix. yeare, we Jewes wrote vnto you in the trouble & violence yͭ came vnto vs. In thoſe yeres, after yͤ Jaſon departed oute of the holye lande and kingedome, they brent vp the portes & ſhed innocente bloud. Then made we oure prayer vnto the LORDE, and were hearde: we offered, and lyghted the candels, ſettinge forth cakes & breade: *And nowe come ye vnto the feaſt of Leu. 24. f. tabernacles in the moneth ‡ Caſleu. Nouember

‡ B In the. Clxxxviij. yeare, the people yͭ was at Jeruſalem & in Jewry, the counſail & Judas him ſelfe ſent his wholſome ſalutaciõ vnto Ariſtobolus king Ptolomais maſter, whych came of the generacion of the anoynted preaſtes & to the Jewes that were in Egypte: In ſo muche as GOD hath deliuered vs from great parelles we thancke hym hyghly. In yͭ we reſyſted ſo myghty a king. And why: he brought men out of Perſis by heapes, to fight agaynſte vs & yͤ holy citie. For as he was in Perſis (namely, yͤ captaine with yͤ great hoſt) he periſhed in the temple of Naneas, beynge dyſceaued thorowe the deuice of Naneas preaſtes. For as he was purpoſed to haue dwelt there. Antiochus & hys frẽdes came thether to receaue much mony for a dowry. So when Naneas preaſtes had layde forth yͤ money, he entred with a ſmal companie into the compaſſe of the temple, & ſo they ſhut the temple.

Nowe when Antiochus entred by opening yͤ preuie intraũce of yͤ temple, the preaſtes the preaſtes ſtoned the captayne to death, hewed them in peaces that were wyth hym, ſmote of theyr heades, and threwe thē oute: In all thynges GOD be praiſed, whych hath deliuered ẏ wycked into oure handes.

Where as we are nowe purpoſed to kepe the purification of the temple vpō the fyue and twentie daye of ẏ moneth Caſleu, we thought neceſſari to certifie you therof, ẏ ye alſo myght * kepe the tabernacles, feaſt daye, & the daye of ẏ fyre, which was geuen vs, when Nehemias offered, after that he had ſet vp ẏ temple and the aulter. For what tyme as oure fathers were led awaye vnto Perſis, the preaſtes (which thē ſought the honoure of GOD) toke the fyre preuely from the aulter, and hid it in a valley, wher as was a drye pytte, and therein they kept it, ſo that the place was vnknowne vnto euery man.

D Nowe after manye yeares when it pleaſed GOD ẏ Nehemias ſhulde be ſēte from the king of Perſia, * he ſent the children of thoſe preaſtes (whych had hyd the fyre) to ſeke it. And as they tolde vs, they foūde no fyre but thycke water. Then commaunded he them to drawe it vp & to brynge it hym, and ẏ offerynges wythall. Nowe when the ſacrifices were layd on, & ordred the preaſt, Nehemias commaunded to ſprynckle them, & the wood wͭ water. When thys was done, & the tyme come ẏ the ſunne ſhone, which afore was in ẏ cloude, there was a greate fire kīdled. In ſo much ẏ euery man maruayled. Nowe all the preaſtes prayed, whyle ẏ ſacrifice was a makinge. Jonathas prayed fyrſt and the other gaue aunſwere.

6.c,104 16.c.

And Nehemias prayer was after thys maner: O LORDE GOD maker of al thynges, thou fearfull, & ſtrong, thou righteous & merciful, thou ẏ art onelye a gracious kynge, onely liberall, onlye iuſte, Almyghtie and euerlaſtige, thou ẏ deliuereſt Iſrael frō al trouble, thou that haſt choſen the fathers, and halowed them, receaue the offerynge for ẏ whole people of Iſrael, preſerue thyne owne porcion, & halowe it, gather thoſe together, ẏ are ſcatered abrode from vs: delyuer them that are vnder ẏ Heathens bondage, loke vpon them whych are dyſpyſed & abhorred, ẏ the Heathē may knowe & ſe howe ẏ thou art our GOD: Puniſh them that oppreſſe, and proudly put vs to diſhonour. Set thy people agayne in thy holy place * lyke as Moſes hath ſpoken. Deut.30.a.

E And the Preaſtes ſonge Pſalmes of thankeſgeuynge, ſo longe as the ſacrifice endured. Nowe when the ſacrifice was brent, Nehemias commaunded ẏ greate ſtones to be ſprynckled wyth ẏ reſidue of the water: * Whyche when it was done, ther was kyndled a flāme of them alſo: but it was conſumed, thorowe the lyghte, that ſhyned from the aulter. So when thys matter was knowne, it was told ẏ kyng of Perſia, ẏ in the place wherin ẏ preaſtes which were led awaye, had hyd fyre, there apeared water in the ſteade of fyre: and that Nehemias and hys companie, had purified the ſacrifices wythal. Then ẏ kynge conſidering and pondryng the matter diligently, made hym a temple to proue ẏ thyng that was done. And when he founde it ſo in dede, he gaue ẏ preſtes many gyftes and diuers rewardes: yee, he toke them wyth hys owne hande and gaue them. And Nehemias called the ſame place Nephtar, whych it as moche to ſaye, as a clenſynge: but manye men call it Nephi.

For he that buyldeth an houſe anewe, muſt prouide for manye thynges, to the whole buyldyng, but he that paynteth it afterward, ſeketh but onely what is comlye, mete and conuenient to garnyſh it wythall. Euen ſo doo we in lyke maner. And why? He that beginneth to wryte a ſtory for yͤ fyrſt, muſte wyth hys vnderſtandynge gather the matter together, ſet hys workes in order, and diligentlie ſeke oute of euerie parte. But he that afterwarde wyll ſhorten it, vſeth fewe wordes, & toucheth not the matter at the largeſt. Let thys be ſufficient for a Prologe. Now wyll we begynne to ſhewe the matter, for it is but a foolyſh thynge to make a longe Prologe, and to be ſhort in the ſtory it ſelfe.

The iij. Chapter.

¶Of the honour done vnto the temple by the kynges of the Gentiles, Simon vttereth what treaſure is in the temple. Heliodorus is ſent to take them awaye. He is ſtrycken of GOD, and healed at the prayer of Onias.

A What tyme as the holy citie was inhabited in all peace & welth, & when the lawes were yet very wel kept (For ſo was it ordeined by Onias the hye preaſte and other godly men yͭ were enemies to wyckednes) It came ther to, Mac.1.c. *that euen the kynges & princes them ſelues dyd the place greate worſhyppe, and garnyſhed the temple wyth great gyftes: In ſo moche yͭ Seleucus kynge of Aſia of hys owne rentes, bare all the coaſtes belongynge to the ſeruyce of yͤ offerynges. Mac.3.d. Then *Simon of the tribe of Ben Jamin, a ruler of the temple, laboured to worcke ſome myſchefe in the citie, but the hye preaſte reſiſted hym.

Neuertheleſſe, when he myghte not Mac.3.b. ouercome Onias, he gat hym to *Appolonius the ſonne of Therſa (whych then was chefe Lorde in Celoſyria & Phenices) and tolde hym that yͤ treaſure in Jeruſalem was full of innumerable mony, & how that the comẽ goodes (whyche belonged not vnto the offeringes) were exceadyng great alſo: yee, & howe it were poſſible yͭ altheſe myght come vnder the kynges powre.

B Nowe whẽ Appolonius had ſhewed the kinge of the money, as it was tolde hym: the kynge called for Heliodorus hys ſtewarde, and ſente hym wyth a cõmaundement, to brynge hym the ſame money. Immediatly Heliodorus toke hys yourney, but vnder a colour, as though he wolde go thorowe Celoſyria and Phenices to viſet yͤ cities, but hys purpoſe was to fulfyll the kynges pleaſure. So when he came to Jeruſalem, and was louynglye receaued of yͤ hye preaſt into the citie: he tolde what was determined concernynge the money, and ſhewed the cauſe of hys commynge, he aſked alſo yf it were ſo in dede. Then the hye preaſt tolde hym that there was ſuch monye laied vp for yͤ vpholdynge of wyddowes and fatherles chyldren, and howe that a certayne of it belonged vnto Hyrcanus Tobyas a noble man, and that of all the monye (whych yͤ wycked Simon had bewrayed) There were iiij C. talentes of ſyluer, and two C. of gold: yee, and that it were vnpoſſible for thoſe mẽs meanynge to be dyſceaued that had layed vp theyr money in the place and temple (whych is had in worſhyppe thorow yͤ whole worlde) for the mayntenaunce & honoure of the ſame. Wherunto Heliodorus anſwered, that the kynge had commaũded hym in anye wyſe, to brynge hym in the money.

C So at the daye appoynted, Heliodorus entred into yͤ temple to order thys matter. But there was no ſmall feare thorowoute the whole citie. The preaſtes fell downe before yͤ aulter in theyr veſtimentes, & called vnto heauen vpõ hym *whych had made a lawe, concernyng ſtuffe geuẽ to kepe, Exod.22.b. that they ſhulde be ſafely preſerued, for ſuch as commit them vnto kepynge. Then whoſo had loked the hye preaſt in the face, it wolde haue greued hys herte. For hys countenaunce & the chaungynge of his coloure, declared the inwarde ſorowe of hys mynde. The man was all in heuynes, and hys body in feare, wher by they that loked vpon hym, myghte perceaue yͤ ſtrefe of hys herte, yͤ other people came out of theyr houſes by heapes vntot,he comen prayer, becauſe the place was lyke to come into cõfuſiõ. The wemẽ came together thorow yͤ ſtretes wͭ hery clothes aboute theyr breaſtes.

The virgins alſo that were kepte in, ranne to Onias, ſome in the walles, other ſome loked out of the wyndowes: yee, they al held vp their handes towarde heauen, & prayed. A miſerable thynge was it, to loke vpon the comen people, and the hye preaſt, beynge in ſuche trouble. But they beſought almyghty GOD yͭ the godes whych were committed vnto thẽ, might be kept whole, for thoſe yͭ had delyuered them vnto theyr kepyng. Neuertheleſſe, the thyng yͭ Heliodorus was determined to do, that performed he in the ſame place, he hym ſelfe perſonalye beynge aboute the treaſurye wyth hys men of warre. But yͤ ſprete of almighty GOD ſhewed hym ſelfe openly, ſo that all they whych preſumed to obeye Heliodorus, fel thorowe the power of GOD into a great fearfulnes and drede.

*For there appeared vnto them an 2.Mac.10.c. 11.b.

hoꝛſe, wyth a terrible man ſyttynge vpon hym, deckt in goodlye araye, and yͤ hoꝛſe ſmote at Heliodoꝛus wyth his foꝛe fete. Nowe he that ſat vpon yͤ hoꝛſe had harnes of golde vpon hym.

Moꝛeouer, there apeared two fayꝛe and bewtyfull yonge men in goodly araye, whych ſtode by hym ⁊ ſcourged hym on both the ſydes, ⁊ gaue hym manye ſtrypes withoute ceaſſinge. 2.Mac.5.c. D *With that fell Heliodoꝛus ſodenlye vnto the groũde. So they toke hym vp (beynge cõpaſſed aboute wyth greate darckneſſe) ⁊ bare hym out vpon a bare. Thus he that came wyth ſo many runners ⁊ men of warre into the ſayde treaſurye, was boꝛne out, where as no mã might helpe hym: ⁊ ſo the power of GOD was manifeſt ⁊ knowen. He laye ſtyll downe alſo by the power of GOD deſtytute of all hope ⁊ lyfe. And they pꝛayſed the LORDE that had ſhewet hys power vpon hys place and temple, whych a lytle afoꝛe was ful of feare and trouble: and that thoꝛowe the reuelacion of the Almyghtye LORDE it was fylled wyth ioye and gladnes.

Then certayne of Heliodorus frendes pꝛayed Onias, yͤ in all haſt he wolde call vpon GOD to graunt hym hys lyfe, whych was geuyng vp the ghooſt. So the hye pꝛeaſt conſiderynge yͤ matter, and leaſt the kinge ſhulde ſuſpect yͤ the Jewes had done Heliodorus ſome euel. He offered an health offeringe foꝛ hym. Now when the hye pꝛeaſt had obtayned hys peticion, the ſame yõge mẽ in the ſame clothinge appeared and ſtode beſyde Heliodorus, ſaying: Thãcke Act.26.c. Onias yͤ hye Pꝛeaſt, foꝛ *hys ſake hath the LORDE graunted the thy lyfe: therfoꝛe ſeyng that GOD hath ſcourged yͤ, geue hym pꝛayſe ⁊ thankes, and ſhewe euery mã hys myghte and power. And whẽ they had ſpoken theſe woꝛdes thei appered no moꝛe.

E So Heliodoꝛus offered vnto GOD, made great vowes vnto hym, whyche had graunted hym hys lyfe, thancked Onias, toke hys hooſte and went agayne to yͤ kynge. Then teſtified he vnto eueri man of yͤ great woꝛckes of GOD that he had ſene wyth hys eyes. And when yͤ kinge aſked Heliodorus who were mete to be ſente yet once agayne to Jeruſalem, he ſayde: yf thou haſte anye enemie oꝛ aduerſarie vnto thy realme, ſende him thyther, ⁊ thou ſhalte haue him puniſhed, yf he eſcape wͭ hys lyfe: foꝛ in that place (no doubte) there is a ſpaciall power and woꝛckynge of GOD. Foꝛ he that dwelleth in heauen, vyſiteth ⁊ defendeth yͤ place, ⁊ all that come to do it harme, he puniſheth and plageth them. This is nowe yͤ matter concernynge Heliodoꝛus, ⁊ the kepynge of the treaſurye at Jeruſalem.

The iiij. Chapter.

¶Simon repoꝛteth euel of Onias. Jaſon deſyrynge the office of the hye pꝛeaſte coꝛrupteth the kynge wyth rewardes. The wycked intente of Jaſon.

THys Simon now * (of whõ we ſpake afoꝛe) beynge a bewꝛayer of the money and of hys owne natural countrye, A 2.Mac.3.a. repoꝛted the woꝛſte of Onias: as thoughe he had moued Heliodoꝛus vnto this, ⁊ as thoughe he had bene a bꝛynger vp of euell. Thus was he not aſhamed to call hym an enemie of the realme: that was ſo faythfull an ouerſear ⁊ defender of the citie and of hys people: yee, and ſo feruent in the lawe of GOD: But when the malice of Simon encreaſed ſo ferre, that thoꝛowe hys frendes there were certayne menſlaughters committed: Onias conſidered the parell that myghte come thoꝛowe this ſtryfe, ⁊ howe that Appolonius (namelye the chefe Loꝛde in Celoſyria and Phenices) was all ſet vpon tyꝛanny, ⁊ Simons malice increaſed the ſame. He gat hym to the kynge, not as an accuſer of yͤ citezins, but as one that by him ſelfe intended the comen wealthe of the whole multitude.

Foꝛ he ſawe it was not poſſible to lyue in peace, B nether Simon to leaue of from his foolyſhnes: excepte the kynge did looke thereto. But after the deathe of Seleucus, when Antiochus (whych is called the noble) toke the kingdome, Jaſon the bꝛother of Onias laboured to be hye pꝛeaſt: Foꝛ he came vnto the kynge, ⁊ pꝛomiſed him iij. C. ⁊ lx. talentes of ſyluer, ⁊ of the other rentes lxxx. talentes. Beſydes thys he pꝛomiſed hĩ yet an C. ⁊ l. yf he myght haue the ſcole of the chyldꝛen, and yͤ he myght call thẽ of Jeruſalẽ Antiochians. Which whẽ they had graunted, and he had gotten the ſuperioꝛyte, he beganne immediatlye to dꝛawe his kynſmen to yͤ cuſtome of the of the Heathen, put downe the thinges that the Jewes had ſet vp of loue, by Jhon the father of Eupolemius, which was ſent ambaſſydour vnto Rome, for to make the bonde of frendſhyp and loue. He put downe all the Jewes and libertyes of the Jewes, and ſet vp the wycked ſtatutes. He durſte make a fyghtyng ſcole vnder the caſtell, and ſet fyre yonge men to learne yͤ maners of whores and brothels.

E This was nowe the begynnynge of the Heatheniſhe and ſtraunge conuerſacion, broughte in thorowe the vngracyous ⁊ vnhearde wyckednes of Jaſõ, whych ſhuld not be called a preſt, but an vngodlye perſonne. In ſo moch yͭ yͤ preaſtes were nowe no more occupied aboute yͤ ſeruice of the aulter, but diſpiſed the temple, regarded not the offrynges: yee, gaue theyr diligẽce to learne to fyght, to wraſtle, to leape, to daunce, ⁊ to put at the ſtone, not ſettyng by the honoure of theyr fathers, but lyked the glorie of yͤ grekes beſt of al: for yͤ which they ſtroue parlouſly, ⁊ were gredy to folowe their ſtatutes: ye, theyr luſte was in al thinges to be lyke thẽ, which afore were their enemies ⁊ deſtroyers. Howebeit to do wickedly agaynſt yͤ lawe of GOD, ſhal not eſcape vnpuniſhed, but of this we ſhal ſpeake hereafter.

D What tyme as yͤ* Olympiades ſportes were playde at Tyrus (the kynge him ſelfe beinge preſente) thys vngracious Jaſon ſent wicked men, bearyng from them of Jeruſalẽ (which now were called Antiochiãs) thre C. dragmars of ſyluer for an offerynge to Hercules. Theſe had they that caryed them deſired thẽ vnder ſuch a faſhyon, as tough they ſhuld not be offered but beſtowed to other vſes. Neuertheleſſe he yͭ ſent them, ſente them to yͤ intente that they ſhulde be offred vnto Hercules. But because of thoſe that were preſente, they were geuen as to the makynge of ſhyppes. And Appolonius the ſonne of Neſteus was ſent into Egypt, becauſe of yͤ noble men of kyng Ptolomie Philometor. Nowe when Antiochus perceaued yͭ he was put oute from medlynge in yͤ realme, he ſoughte hys owne profite, departed from thence, came to Joppa: and then to Jeruſalem, where he was honourablie receaued of Jaſon, ⁊ of yͤ citie, ⁊ was brought in wyth torch light and wyth greate prayſe, ⁊ ſo he turned hys hooſte vnto Phenices.

* eſe we kept e= ryfyfty are.

E After iij. yeare Jaſon ſente Menelaus, the forſayd Simons brother, *to beare the money vnto the kynge, ⁊ to bringe hym anſwere of other neceſſary matters. But he (when he was prayſed of the kynge for magnifyinge of his power) turned the preaſthod vnto him ſelfe layinge vp iii. C. talentes of ſiluer for Jaſon. So when he had gotten the commaundementes from the kinge (he came hauynge nothynge that becommeth a preaſte) but bearynge the ſtomacke of a cruell tiraunte, and wrathe of a wyldebrute beaſte. * Then Jaſon (whyche had dyſceaued hys owne brother) ſeynge he hym ſelfe was begyled alſo, was fayne to fle into the lande of the Ammonites, and Menelaus gat yͤ dominion. But as for the money that he had promiſed vnto the kynge, he dyd nothynge therein, when Soſtratus yͤ Ruler of the Caſtel required it of hym. For Soſtratus was the man that gathered the cuſtomes, wherefore they were both called before yͤ kynge. Thus was Menelaus put out of the preaſthode, and Lyſimachus hys brother came in hys ſtead. Soſtratus alſo was made lorde of the Ciprians.

2.Mac.3.b.

F It happened in the meane ſeaſon, yͭ the Tharſians ⁊ Malacians made inſurreccion becauſe they were geuẽ for preaſant vnto kyng Antiochus concubine. Then came the kinge in all yͤ haſt to ſtyll them agayne, and to pacifie the matter, leauige Andronicus therto be hys debite as one mete therfore. Now Menelaus ſuppoſynge yͭ he had gottẽ a ryght conuenient tyme, ſtole certayn veſſels of gold out of yͤ tẽple, ⁊ gaue thẽ to Andronicus for a preſent: ⁊ ſome he ſolde at Tyrus, and in yͤ cities therby.

Whych whẽ Onias knew of a ſuerty, he reproued him: but he kept hym in a Sanctuarie beſide Daphnis yͭ lieth by Antioch. Wherfor Menelaus gat hym to Andronicus, ⁊ prayd hym yͭ he wold ſlaye Onias: ſo whẽ he came to Onias he counceled him craftely to come out of yͤ Sãctuarie, geuyng hym his hãd wt an othe (howbeit he ſuſpcet him) ⁊ then he ſlew Onias without any regarde of ryghteouſnes. For yͤ which cauſe not only yͤ Jewes but other nacions alſo toke indignacion, ⁊ were diſpleaſed for

G ẏ vnrighteous death of ſo godlie a mã.

And when the kynge was come agayne from Cilicia, the Jewes and certayne of the Grekes went vnto hym, complaynynge for the vnrighteous death of Onias. Yee, Antiochus hymſelf was ſory in hys mynd for Onias, ſo that it pittied hym, and he wept remẽbringe hys ſobernes and manerly behaueour. Wherfore he was ſo kyndled in hys mynd, that he commaunded Andronicus to be ſtrypped out of hys purple clothing, and ſo to be let thorowout the citie: yee, and the vngratious man to be ſlayne in the ſame place, wher he committed thys wyckednes vpon Onias. Thus the Lorde rewarded hym hys punyſhment, as he had deſerued. Nowe whẽ Lyſimachus had done many wycked dedes in ẏ temple thorowe the counſell of Menelaus, and ẏ voyce came abroade, the multitude gathered them together agaynſte Lyſimachus: for he had caryed out now much gold.

So when the people aroſe, and were full of diſpleaſure, Lyſimachus armed iij. M. vnthryftes to defende hym: a certayne tyraunt beynge theyr captayne, whych was growen both in age and woodneſſe. But when the people vnderſtode the purpoſe of Lyſimachus ſome gat ſtones, ſome good ſtrõge clubbes, and ſome caſte aſhes vpon Lyſimachus. Thus there were many of thẽ wounded, ſome beynge ſlayne, and all the other chaced away. But as for the wicked church robber hymſelfe, they kylled him beſyde ẏ treaſury. Of theſe matters therfore there was kept a court agaynſte Menelaus. Nowe when the kynge came to Tyrus, they made a complaynt vnto hym of Menelaus, cõcernynge thys buſynes and the ambaſſidours were iij. But Menelaus went H and promiſed Ptolomie to geue hym much money, yf he wold perſwade the kynge. So Ptolomie went to the king into a courte (wher he was ſet to cole hym) and brought him out of that mynde. In ſo muche ẏ he dyſcharged Menelaus from the accuſacions, that notwithſtandig was cauſe of al myſchefe: ⁊ thoſe poore mẽ, whych yf they had tolde theyr cauſe: yee, before ẏ Scithiãs, thei ſhulde haue bene iudged innocent, them he condempned to death.

Thus where they ſoone puniſhed, whych folowed vpõ the matter for the citie, for the people, and for ẏ holye veſſell. Wherfore, they of Tyrus toke indignacion, and buryed them honorably. And ſo thorow the couetouſnes of them that were in power Menelaus remayned ſtyll in auctorite, increaſynge in malice, to the hurt of the citezins.

The v. Chapter.

¶Of the ſygnes and tokens ſene in Jeruſalem. Of the end and offenſe of Jaſon. The purſued of Antiochus againſt the Jewes. The ſpoilyng of the tẽple

AT the ſame tyme Antiochus made hi readye to go A agayne into Egypt. Then were there ſene at Jeruſalem xl. dayes longe, horſmen rũnynge to and fro in the ayre, whych had raymente of golde, and ſpeares. There were ſene alſo whole hooſtes of men weapened, and horſes runnyng in an ordre, how they came together, how they helde forth theyr ſhyldes, howe the harneſſed men drewe out theyr ſwerdes, and ſhote theyr dartes. The ſhyne of ẏ golden weapons was ſene, and of all maner of armure. Wherfore euery man prayde, that thoſe tokens myght turne to good. Nowe when there was gone forthe a falſe rumour, as though Antiochus had bene dead: Jaſon toke a M. men, and came ſodenly vpon the citie. The citezins came vnto the walles at the laſt was the citie taken, ⁊ Menelaus fled into the caſtel. B

As for Jaſon, he ſpared not hys owne citezins in the ſlaughter, neyther conſidered he what greate euell it were, to deſtroye the proſperite of hys owne kynſmen: but dyd as one that had gotten the victorie of hys enemies, and not of hys frendes: For all thys gate he not the ſuperiorite, but at the laſte 2.Mac.5.c receaued confuſion for hys malice, * ⁊ fled agayne lyke a vagabounde in to ẏ land of the Ammonytes.

Finally, for a rewarde of hys wyckednes he was accuſed before Aretha ẏ kynge of the Arabians. In ſo much ẏ he was fayn to fle frõ citie to citie, beynge deſpyſed of euery man as a forſaker of the lawes, and an abhominable perſonne. And at the laſt (as an open enemie of his owne natural countre ⁊ of ẏ citezins) he was dryuen into Egypte.

Thus he that afore put manye oute of theyr owne natiue land, periſhed frō home hym ſelfe. He went to Lacedemon, thynckyng thereto haue gotten ſoccoure by reaſon of kynred. And he ẏ afore had caſten many one out vnburyed, was throwē out himſelfe, no man mournynge for hym, nor puttyng hym in hys graue: ſo ẏ he nether enioyed the buryall of a ſtraunger, neyther was he partaker of hys fathers ſepulchre.

C Nowe when thys was done, ẏ kynge ſuſpecte, that the Jewes wold haue fallen frome hym: wherfore he came in a greate dyſpleaſure out of Egypt, Mach.1.c * & toke the citie by violence. He commaunded hys men of warre alſo: that they ſhuld kyll and not ſpare, but ſlay downe ſuch as wythſtode them, or clymed vp vpon the houſes.

Thus was there a greate ſlaughter of yong men, old men, wemen, chyldren and virgins. In thre dayes were there ſlayne lxxx. M. fourtye thouſande put in pryſon, and no leſſe ſolde. yet was he not contēt wyth this, but durſt go into the moſt holy temple (Menelaus that traytoure to the lawes and to hys owne naturall countre beynge hys guyde) and wyth his wycked handes toke the holy veſſel, whych other kynges and cities had geuen thether, for the garnyſhynge and honoure of ẏ place: them toke he in hys handes vnworthelye, and defyled them.

D So mad was Antiochus, that he cōſidered not, howe that GOD was a lytle wrothe for the ſynnes of them that dwelte in the citie, for the whiche ſuche confuſion came vpon that place. 5.a. * And why: of it had not happened them to haue bene lapped in many ſynnes, thys Antiochus (as ſoone as he had come) had ſodely bene puniſhed and ſhut out 2.Mac.3.c for hys preſumpcion, Mach.3.d * and lyke as Heliodorus was, whome Seleucus the kynge ſente to robbe the treaſurye. Neuertheles, GOD hath not choſen the people for the places ſake, but the place for the peoples ſake: and therfore is the place become partaker of the peoples trouble, but afterwarde ſhall it enioye the welth of thē. And lyke as is nowe forſaken in the wrathe of Almyghtye GOD, ſo whē ẏ great GOD is recōciled it ſhalbe ſet vp in hye worſhyp agayne.

E So when Antiochus had takē a M. and viij. hundred talentes oute of the temple, he gat hym to Antioch in al the haſt, thyncking in hys pryd ẏ he myght make men ſayle vpon the dry land, and to go vpon the ſee, ſuche an hye mynde had he. He lefte debites there, to vexe ẏ people: At Jeruſalem lefte he Pilippe a Phrygian, in maners more cruel thē hym ſelfe that ſet hym there. At Gariſym he lefte Andronicus and Menelaus, whyche were more greuous to the citizins then other. 1.Mach.1.d * Nowe as he was thus ſet in malice agaynſt the Jewes, he ſente Appolonius an hated prince, wyth xxij. thouſand, cōmaundyng hym to ſlaye thoſe that were of perfecte age, and to ſell the wemen, maydens and chyldren. When he came nowe to Jeruſalem, he fayned peace, and kepte hym ſtyl vntyl ẏ Sabothe daye. And then he commaunded hys men to take them to theyr weapons (for ẏ Jewes kepte holye day) and ſo he ſlewe all them ẏ were gone forthe to the open place, runnynge here and there thorowe ẏ citie wyth hys men weapened, and murthered a 1.Mach.2.c greate nombre. * But Judas Machabeus whych was the tenthe, fled into ẏ wyldernes, ledde hys lyfe there wᵗ hys company amonge wylde beaſtes, and vpon the mountaynes: dwellinge there and eatynge graſſe, leaſt they ſhulde be partakers of the fylthynes.

The vi. Chapter.

¶ The Jewes are compelled to leaue the lawe of God. The tēple is defyled. The readers are moniſhed that they ſhall not abhorre the aduerſite, wherwith the Lorde afflicteth them. The greuous paine of Eleaſarus.

A Not longe after thys, ſent the kynge a meſſenger of Antioch, for to compell the Jewes, to alter the ordinaunces of the fathers, and the lawe of GOD, to defyle the temple that was at Jeruſalem, & to cal it the temple of Jupiter Olympius: and that they ſhulde be in Gariſim as thoſe whyche dwell at the place of Jupiter the herberous. Thys wycked ſedicion of the vngodlye was heauy vpō all the people, for the temple was ful of volupteouſnes, bybbinge and bollynge of the Heathen, of rybbaudes and harlots together. The wemen went into ẏ holy place, and bare in, that was not lauful. The aulter alſo was full of vnlaufull thynges, whyche the lawe forbyddeth to laye vpon it. The Sabbotthes were not kept, the other ſolempne feaſtes of of the land were not regarded: To be playne, ther durſt no man be knowen, that he was a Jewe. In the daye of the kynges byrthe they were cōpelled perforſe to offre: ⁊ when the feaſte of Bacchus was kept, they were conſtrayned to were garlandes of Juy, and ſo to go about to yͤ honoure of Bacchus. Moreouer thorowe the councel of Ptolomie, there went out a commaundementē in B in yͤ next cities of yͤ Heathē, yͭ they ſhuld intreate the Jewes in lyke maner, namely to compel them for to do ſacrifice after the lawes of the Gentiles: ⁊ who ſo wolde not, to put them to death. A pyteous thynge was it to ſe. Ther wer two wemen accuſed to haue circumciſed theyr ſonnes, whom when they had led roūde aboute the citie (yͤ babes hāgyng at theyr breaſtes) they caſt them downe headlynges ouer yͤ walles. Some that were crept in dennes, and had kept the Sabboth, were accuſed vnto Philip, ⁊ brent in the fyre, becauſe yͭ for the feare of GOD they kept yͤ cōmaundement ſo ſtyfely, ⁊ wolde not defende them ſelues. Nowe I beſech all thoſe whych reade thys booke, yͭ they refuſe it not for theſe falles of aduerſitie, and iudge the thynges (that are happened) for no deſtruccion, but for a chaſteninge of our people: And why? Whē GOD ſuffereth not ſynners longe to folowe theyr owne mynde, but ſhortelye puniſhed them, Pro.3.b. * it is a token of hys greate

C louyng kyndenes. For this grace haue we of GOD more thē other people, that he ſuffereth not vs lōge to ſynne vnpuniſhed lyke as other nacions, yͭ when yͤ day of iudgement cōmeth, he maye puniſhe them in yͤ fulnes of theyr ſynnes. Yf we ſynne, he correcteth vs, but he neuer wythdraweth hys mercy from vs, ⁊ though he puniſh with aduerſitie, yet doth he neuer forſake hys people. But lett thys that we haue ſpoken nowe wͭ fewe wordes be for a warnynge and exhortacion of the Heathen.

Nowe wyll we come to yͤ declaringe of the matter: Eleazar one of the principall Scribes, an aged man ⁊ of a wel fauored coūtenaūce, was conſtrayned Levi.11.d. to gape wyth an open mouth, * and to eate ſwynes fleſh. But he deſiryng rather to dye gloriouſly then to lyue with ſhame, offered hym ſelfe wyllyngly to yͤ martyrdome. Nowe when he ſawe that he muſte nedes go to it, he tooke it pacientlie: for he was at a poynte wyth hym ſelfe, that he wolde conſent to do no vnlawful thinge for any pleaſure of lyfe. They that ſtode by beinge moued wyth pitie (but not a ryght) for the olde frendſhyp of the man, toke hym aſyde priuelie and prayed hym that he wolde let ſuch fleſhe be brought hym as were lawfull to eat, and then to make a contenaunce as though he had eaten of the fleſhe of the ſacrifice lyke as the D kynge commaunded: for ſo he myghte be delyuered from death, and ſo for the olde frēdeſhyp of the man, they ſhewed hym thys kyndnes.

But he beganne to conſider hys diſcrete and honourable age, hys noble ⁊ worſhipful ſtocke, and howe that from hys youth vp he had bene of an honeſt, and good conuerſacion, yee, and howe conſtantly he had kepte yͤ ordinaunces, lawes commaūded by GOD, wherfore he gaue them thys anſwere and ſayde: yet had I rather fyrſt be layde in my

When he had ſayde theſe wordes, immediatly he was drawen to a tormēte. Nowe they that led him and were mylde a lytle afore, beganne to take dyſpleaſure: becauſe of the wordes that he ſayde: for they thoughte he had ſpoken them of an hye mynd. But whē he was in his martyrdome, he mourned ⁊ ſayd: Thou (O LORDE) whych haſt the holy knowlege: knoweſt openly yͭ wheras I myght be delyuered from death, I ſuffer theſe ſore paynes of my body, but in my mynde I am well cõtente to ſuffre them, becauſe I feare the. Thus thys man dyed, leauyng the memoriall of hys death for an example, not onlye vnto yonge mẽ, but vnto all the people, to be ſteadfaſt and manly.

¶The puniſhement of the ſeuen brethren, and of theyr mother.

A IT happened alſo that there were ſeuen brethren (wyth theyr mother) taken, and compelled by the kynge* agaynſt ÿ lawe, uiti.xi.d. to eate ſwynes fleſh, namely wt ſcourges and lethren whyppes. And one of them whych was the chefe ſayd: What ſekeſt thou and what requireſt thou of vs? As for vs, we are readye rather to ſuffer death, then to offende the lawes of GOD and the fathers. Then was the kynge angrye, and bad heate cauldrons and braſſen pottes.

Whych when they were made hote, immediatly he commaunded the tonge of hym that ſpake fyrſt to be cut out, to pul the ſkinne ouer his head, to pare of the edges of hys handes and fete: yee, and that in the ſyghte of hys mother, & the other of hys brethren. Nowe when he was cleane marred, he commaũded a fyre to be made, & ſo (whyl there was anye breathe in hym) to be fryed in the cauldron. In the whyche when he hadde bene longe payned: the other brethren wyth theyr mother exhorted hym to dye manfullye, ſaying: The LORDE GOD ſhall regarde the truthe: and cõ- Deut.32.e. forte vs, lyke as Moſes teſtifieth* and declareth in hys ſonge, ſayinge, and he wyll haue compaſſion hys ſeruauntes.

B So when the fyrſte was dead after thys maner, they broughte the ſecond, to haue hym in deriſion, pulled ÿ ſkynne wyth the heare ouer hys heade, and aſked him yf he wolde eate ſwynes fleſhe, or he were payned in the other mẽbres alſo thorowout hys body: But he anſwered boldlye, and ſayde: I wil not do it. And ſo was he tormented lyke as the fyrſte, and when he was euen at the geuinge vp the ghoſt, he ſaid: Thou moiſt vngracious perſonne putteſt vs nowe to death, but the Kynge of the worlde ſhall rayſe vs vp (whych dye for hys lawes) in the reſurreccion of euerlaſtynge lyfe.

After hym, was the thyrde had in deriſion, & when he was required he putte oute his tõge and that ryghte ſoone, holdynge forth hys handes manfullye, & ſpeake wyth a ſteadfaſt fayth: Theſe haue I of heauen, but nowe for the law of GOD I deſpyſe them: for my truſt is that I ſhal receaue thẽ, of hym againe. In ſo much that the kynge and they whyche were wyth hym, marueyled at the yonge mannes boldnes, that he nothynge regarded the paynes.

Nowe when he was dead alſo, they vexed the fourthe wyth the tormentes C in lyke maner. So when he was nowe at hys deathe, he ſayde: It is better ÿ we beynge put to death of men, haue oure hoope & truſte in GOD, for he ſhall rayſe vs vp agayne.* As for the, thou Ihon.5.c. ſhalte haue no reſurreccion to lyfe.

And when they had ſpoken to ÿ fyfte, they tormented him. Then loked he vnto the kynge, and ſayde: thou haſt power among men, for thou art a mortall man alſo thy ſelfe, to do what thou wylte, but thyncke not, that GOD hath forſaken oure generacion. Abide the, tary ſtyll a whyle, and thou ſhalt ſe the great power of GOD, howe he wyll punyſhe the and thy ſede.

After hym they broughte the ſyxt, whyche beinge at the poynte of death, ſayde: Be not dyſceaued (O kynge) for thys we ſuffer for our owne ſakes, becauſe we haue offẽded oure GOD, therefore meruelous thynges are ſhewed vpõ vs. But thyncke not thou, whych takeſt in hand to ſtriue agaynſte GOD, that thou ſhalte eſcape vnpuniſhed.

Thys excellente mother (worthye to D be well reported of, and had in remembraunce) ſawe her ſeuen ſonnes dye in one daye, & ſuffred it pacientlie, becauſe of the hoope that ſhe had in GOD: yee, ſhe exhorted euerye one of them in ſpeciall and that boldly and ſteadfaſtly wt perfect wiſedome, wakynge vp her wyuyſhe thought wyth a manlye ſtomacke, and ſayde vnto them: I can not tell howe ye came in my whombe, for I nether gaue you breth nor ſoule, no nor lyfe. It is not I that ioyned the membres of youre bodyes together, but the maker of the worlde, whyche faſhioned the byrth of man, and beganne al thynges. Euen he alſo of hys owne mercye ſhall geue you breth & lyfe agayne lyke as ye nowe regarde not your owne ſelues for hys lawes ſake.

Nowe thoughte Antiochus that ſhe had deſpyſed hym, therfore he let her go wyth her reproues, and beganne to exhorte the youngeſt ſonne, (whych yet was lefte) not onlye wyth wordes but ſwore vnto hym wyth an othe that he ſhuld make hym a rych ⁊ a welthy man (yf he wolde forſake the lawes of hys fathers) yee, and yͭ he ſhulde geue hym whatſoeuer were neceſſarie for hym. But when the younge man wolde not be moued, for all theſe thynges, he called hys mother, ⁊ counſayled her to ſaue her ſonnes lyfe. E And when he had exhorted her wͭ many wordes, ſhe promiſed hym that ſhe ſhulde ſpeake vnto her ſone. So ſhe turned her vnto hym (laughynge the cruell tyraunte to ſcorne) ⁊ ſpake wyth a bolde voice. O my ſonne, haue pitie vpon me, that bare the nyne monethes in my wombe, that gaue the ſucke, noryſhed the and broughte the vp vnto thys age.

I beſech the (my ſonne) loke vpon heauen and earthe, and all that is therein, and cōſider that GOD made them, and mās generacion of naught, ſo ſhalte thou not feare thys hangman, but ſuffere death ſteadfaſtlye, lyke as thy brethren haue doone: that I maye receaue the agayne in the ſame mercie wyth thy brethren.

Whyle ſhe was yet ſpeakynge theſe wordes the yonge man ſayde: whome loke ye for? Wherfore do ye tary? I wyll not obeye the kynges commaundemente, *Leuit.11.d. Deut.14.d. but the lawe that GOD gaue vs by Moſes. As for thou that imagineſt all myſchefe agaynſt the Jewes, thou ſhalte not eſcape yͤ hande of GOD, for we ſuffre theſe thynges, becauſe of of oure ſynnes.

And thoughe GOD be angrye wyth F vs a lytle whyle (for oure chaſtenynge and reformacion) yet ſhall he be at one agayne wyth hys ſeruaūtes. But thou (O ſhamefull and mooſt abhominable perſonne,) Pryde not thy ſelfe thorowe vayne hoope, in beynge ſo malicious vpon the ſeruauntes of GOD: for thou haſte not yet eſcaped the iudgement of the GOD, whych is Almyghtye and ſeyth all thynges. My brethren that haue ſuffered a lytle payne, are nowe vnder the couenaunt of euerlaſtynge lyfe: but thorowe the iudgement of GOD, thou ſhalte be puniſhed ryghteouſlye for thy pryde.

As for me (lyke as my brethren haue done) I ofre my ſoule and my body for the lawes of our fathers, callynge vpō GOD, that he wyll ſoone be mercyfull vnto oure people: yee, and wyth payne and puniſhement* to make the graunte, 2.Mach.9.c that he onely is GOD. In me nowe and in my brethren the wrath of Almyghtye GOD is at an ende, whych ryghteouſlye is fallen vpō oure people.

Then the kyng beynge kindled in anger, was more cruel vpon him then vpon all the other: and toke indignaciō, that he was ſo lyghtelye regarded. So thys yonge man dyed vndefyled, ⁊ put hys truſte ſtyll in the LORDE. Laſte of all after the ſōnes, was the mother put to death alſo. Let this nowe be ynough ſpoken, concerning the offerynges, and extreme cruelnes.

¶ Judas gathereth together his hooſt. Nicanor is ſente agaynſte Judas. Judas exhorteth his ſouldiars to cōſtātnes. Nicanor is ouercome. The Jewes geue thanckes after they haue put theyr enemies to flyghte, deuidinge the ſpoyles vnto the fatherles ād vnto the wyddowes. Nica. flieth vnto Antiochus.

THen Judas Machabeus, ⁊ A they yͭ were wyth hym, went pryuely into the townes, called their kynſfolkes and frendes together, tooke vnto them all ſuch as continued yet in the fayth and lawe of the Jewes, and brought forth vj. M. men. So they called vpon the LORDE that he wold haue an eye vnto hys people, whych was troden downe of euery man: to be gracious vnto the temple that was defyled of the vngodly: to haue compaſſion vpon the deſtruccion of the citie, whiche was ſhortlye lyke to be layed waſt, to heare the voyce of the bloude that cryed vnto hym: to remembre the moſt vnryghteous deathes of yonge innocent chyldren, the blaſphemies alſo done vnto hys name, and to puniſh them.

*1.Mach.2.d Nowe when Machabeus had gathered thys multitud together, he was to mightie for the Heathen (for yͤ wrath of the LORDE was turned into mercy) he fell vpon the townes and cities vnwares, brent them, toke the moſt commodious places, and ſlewe manye of yͤ enemies. But ſpeciallie he made ſuche chaſes by nyghte, in ſo muche that hys mālyneſſe was ſpokē of euerie where.

B So when Philippe ſawe that yͤ man increaſed by lytle and lytle, and that yͤ matter proſpered wyth hym for yͤ moſt parte: he wrote vnto Ptolomie (whych was a captayne in Celoſyria and Phenices) to helpe hym in the kynges buſines. Then ſent he Nicanor Patroclie a ſpeciall frende of hys in all the haſte, and gaue hym of the commen ſorte of the Heathen no leſſe then xx. M. harneſſed men, to roote out the whole generacion of yͤ Jewes, hauynge to helpe him one Gorgias a mā of warre, which in matters concernynge battayles, had greate experience. Nicanor ordeyned alſo the tribute (whych the Romaines ſhuld haue had) to be geuen vnto yͤ kynge out of the captiuite of the Jewes, namely two thouſande talentes. And immediatlie he ſente to the cities of the ſee coaſt, requiring them for to bye Jewes, to be their ſeruauntes and bondemen, promiſynge to ſell them lxxx. and ten for one talente: but he conſidered not yͤ wrathe of Almyghtye GDD, that was to come vpon hym.

C When Judas knewe of thys, he tolde the Jewes that were wyth hym, of Nicanors comming. Nowe were there ſome of them fearefull, not truſtynge vnto the ryghteouſneſſe of GOD, and fled theyr waye.

But the other that remayned, came together, and beſoughte the LORDE, to delyuer them frome that wycked Nicanor, whyche had ſolde them, or euer he came nye them: ⁊ thoughte he wolde not do it for theyr ſakes, yet for the couenaunte that he made wyth theyre fathers, and becauſe they called vpon his holy and glorious name. *And ſo Machabeus called hys men together, namely about vj. M. exhortyng them not to agree, vnto theyr enemies, *neyther to be afrayed for the multitude of theyr aduerſaries commynge agaynſte them vnryghteouſlie, but to fighte manfully. conſideringe the reproue that they had done to the holy place wythoute cauſe, howe they had dyſpyſed and oppreſſed the citie: yee, and deſtroyed the lawes of the fathers. * For they (ſayde he) truſt in theyr weapōs and boldnes, but our confidence is in yͤ Almyghtie LORDE, whych in yͤ twyncklynge of an eye may both deſtroy them yͭ come agaynſt vs, and all the worlde.

He cauſed Eſdras alſo to reade yͤ holy boke vnto them, and to geue them a token of the helpe of GOD.

So they toke theyr weapōs and ſpoiles, and kepte the Sabboth, geuinge thanckes vnto the LORDE, whych had delyuered them that daye, and ſhewed them hys mercie. After the Sabboth, *they diſtributed the ſpoyles to yͤ ſycke, to the fatherles, ⁊ to wyddowes, and the reſidue had they them ſelues with theyrs. F And when they had diligently gathered theyr weapons together, they layd them all in conueniente places, and the remnaunte of the ſpoyles brought they to Jeruſalem. They ſlewe alſo Philarches that wycked perſonne, whyche was wyth Timotheus, and had vexed many Jewes. And when they helde the thankeſgeuynge at Jeruſalem for the victorie, they brente thoſe that had ſet fyre on the portes of the temple: namelye Caliſthenes, whych was fled into an houſe: and ſo they gat a worthye rewarde for theyr wyckednes. As for the moſte vngracious Nicanor, which had brought a M. marchauntes, to bye the Jewes, he was thorowe the helpe of yͤ LORDE broughte downe euen of them, whom he regarded not, in ſo much, that he put of hys glorious rayment, fled by ſee, and came alone to Antioch, wyth great ſhame and dyſhonour, whych he gat thorowe yͤ deſtruccion of his hoſt. The ix. Chapter.

A 1.Mac.6.a. AT the ſame tyme, came * Antiochus againe wͭ diſhonour out of Perſis. For when he came to Perſipolis, and vndertoke to robbe the temple: and ſubdue the citie, the people ranne together and defended them ſelues, in ſomuche that he and hys were fayne to fle wyth ſhame.

And ſo after that flyght, it happened that Antiochus came agayne wyth diſhonoure: But when he came to Egbathana, he gat knowlege what was happened vnto Nicanor and Timotheus: Nowe, as he was auaũcynge him ſelfe in hys wrath, he thought he was able to adueng the iniurie that was done to them, vpon the Jewes, and therfore commaunded to make readye hys charette, haſtyng on hys iourney, without ceaſſynge, the iudgemente of GOD prouokynge hym, becauſe he had ſpoken ſo proudelye, that he wolde come to Jeruſalem, and make it a graue of the Jewes. But the LORDE GOD of Iſrael, that ſeyth all thynges, ſmote hym wyth an vnuiſible plage, whych no mã coulde heale.

For aſſoone as he had ſpoken theſe B wordes, there came vpon hym an horrible payne of hys bowels, and a ſore grefe of the armes: And that was but ryghte, for he had martyred other mēnes bowels with diuerſe and ſtraunge tormentes, howebeit he wolde in no wyſe ceaſſe frome hys malice. yee, he was yet the prouder and more malicious agaynſte the Jewes: But whyle he was commaundinge to make haſt in the matter, it happened that he fell downe violentlie from the charette, ſo that it broſed hys bodye, and dyd hym greate payne.

And ſo he that thought he myght cōmaund the floudes of the ſee, (ſo proud was he beyonde the condicion of man) and to weye the hye mountaynes in a payre of balaunce, was now brought downe to the grounde, and caried vpon an horſelytter, knowlygynge the manifeſte power of GOD vpō hym: ſo that the wycked bodye of hys was * full of Actes.12.d. wormes, whiche in hys payne fel quycke out of hys fleſh: In ſo much that hys hooſt was greued wyth the ſmell and ſtyncke of hym.

Thus he that a lytle afore thought he myght reache to the ſtarres of heauen, hym myghte noman nowe abyde nor beare for the vehemencie of ſtyncke: Therfore, he beynge broughte frome hys greate pryde, beganne to come to the knowledge of hym ſelfe: for the puniſhemente of GOD warned hym, C and hys payne encreaſed more and more. And when he hym ſelfe myghte not abyde hys owne ſtyncke, he ſayde theſe wordes: It is reaſon to be obedient vnto GOD, and that a man deſire not to be lyke vnto hym. Thys wycked perſonne prayed alſo vnto the LORDE of whome he ſhuld haue optayned no mercie. And as for the citie that he came vnto ſo haſtely, to brynge it downe to yͤ ground, ⁊ to make it a graue for deade men: nowe he deſireth to delyuer it fre.

And as touchynge the Jewes, whome he had iudged not worthie to be buryed, but wold haue caſt thē oute for to be deuoured of yͤ foules ⁊ wild beaſtes, ſaying: yͭ he wold haue deſtroyed bothe olde and yonge. Nowe he promiſeth, to make them lyke the citizins of Athen. And wher as he had ſpoyled the holy temple afore, now he maketh promiſe to garniſhe it wyth great gyftes, to encreaſe the holy ornamentes, and of hys owne rentes to beare the coſtes and charges belōging to the offringes: ye, and that he wold alſo become a Jewe him ſelfe, to go thorowe euerye place of yͤ world, ⁊ to preache yͤ worde of GOD.

But when hys paynes wolde not ceaſſe, (for the righteous iudgement of GOD was come vpō hym) out of a very dyſpayre he wrote vnto the Jewes, a letter of interceſſion, conteininge theſe wordes: The kyng ⁊ prince Antiochus wyſheth vnto the verteous citizins of the Jewes much helth and good proſperite. yf ye and your chyldrē fare wel, and yf all thynges go after your mynd, we geue great thanckes. In my ſyckenes alſo do I remember you louyngly: for as I cam out of Perſia, and was taken with a ſore dyſceaſe, I thoughte it neceſſarie to care for yͤ cōmē wealth. Nether dyſpaire I in my ſelfe, but haue a good hoope to eſcape thys ſyckenes.

D But conſideryng that my father led an hooſt ſomtime in yͤ hyer places, and ſhewed who ſhuld raygne after hym, yͭ (yf there happened anye controuerſie, or any heard thing were declared) they in the lande myght knowe theyr chefe lorde yͭ there ſhuld be no inſurreccion: Agayne, when I ponder by my ſelfe, how yͭ all the myghtie men, and neyghbours round about, are layinge waite, ⁊ loke but for oportunite to do harme: I haue ordeyned that my ſonne Antiochus ſhall raygne after me, whō I ofte commended to many of you: when I was in the hyer kyngdomes, and haue wryttē vnto him as foloweth herafter.

E Therfore: I pray you ⁊ require you, to remember the benefites yͭ I haue done vnto you generally, and inſpeciall (and that euerye man wyll be faythful to me and to my ſonne.) For I hoope that he ſhalbe of ſobre and louyng behauoure, and yf ye folowe my deuice, he ſhall be 8.c. indifferent vnto you.* Thus yͤ murtherer and blaſphemer of GOD was ſoore ſmytten, and lyke as he had intreated other men, ſo he dyed a miſerable death in a ſtraunge countrye vpon a mountayne. And hys bodye dyd Philip (that wēt wyth him) cary awaye: whyche fearynge the ſonne of Antiochus, wente into Egypt to Ptolomie Philometor.

The x. Chapter.

¶Judas Machabeus taketh the citie and the temple. He beginneth to ſhew the actes of Eupator. The Jewes fyght agaynſt the Idumeans. Timotheus inuadeth Jewry, wyth whome Judas ioyneth battayle. Fyue men appeare in the ayre to the helpe of the Jewes. Timotheus is ſlayne.

A MAchabeus nowe and hys company (thorowe the helpe 1.Mac.4.e. of the LORD) wan the temple and yͤ citie agayne, deſtroyed the alters and ſcapels that yͤ Heathen had buyld thorowe the ſtretes, clenſed the temple, made an other Exo.20.d. aulter of bricke ſtone, and after two yeares they ofred ſacrifices, ſet for the intente, the lightes ⁊ ſhewbread. When that was done they fel downe flat vpon the grounde, and beſought yͤ LORDE, that they myght come nomore into ſuche trouble: but yf they ſynned any more agaynſte hym, he hym ſelfe to chaſten them wyth mercy, and not to come in the handes of thoſe aleauntes and blaſphemous men. Nowe vpō the ſame B daye yͭ the ſtraungers poluted the temple, it happened that on the very ſame daye it was clenſed agayne, namelye 1.Mac.4.c. the xxij. day of yͤ moneth called Caſleu. They kept viij. dayes in gladnes lyke as in the feaſt of the tabernacles, remembrynge, that not longe afore they helde the feaſt of the tabernacles: vpon the mountaynes and in dennes lyke beaſtes. And to the ſame tokē they bare greane bowes, braunches and palmes, before hym that had geuen them good fortune to clēſe hys place. They agreed alſo together, and made a ſtatute that euery yeare thoſe dayes ſhuld be ſolēplye kept of all the people of the Jewes.

Howe Antiochus then (that was called the noble) dyed: it is ſufficiently tolde. Nowe wil we ſpeake of Eupator the ſonne of yͤ wicked Antiochus, howe it happened wyth hym, and ſo wyth fewe wordes to comprehende the aduerſite that chaunſed in the warres. When he had taken in the kyngdom, he made one Liſias (which had bene captayne of the hooſt in Phenices and Syria) ruler ouer the matters of the realme. For Ptolomie that was called Macron, beinge a ruler of yͤ Jewes (⁊ ſpeciallie, to ſyt in the iudgement for ſuch wrong as was done vnto them) vndertoke to deale peaciablie wͭ them. For yͤ whyche cauſe he was accuſed of the frendes before Eupator: and when he was ſuſpect to be a traytor (becauſe he had left Cypres, that Philometor had committed vnto him: ⁊ becauſe he departed from noble Antiochus, that he was come vnto) he poyſoned hym ſelfe ⁊ dyed.

Nowe when Gorgias was gouernour of the ſame places, he toke ſtraun- C gers ⁊ vndertoke ofte tymes, to warre wyth the Jewes. Moreouer, the Idumeans that helde the ſtronge holdes, receaued thoſe that were dryuen from Jeruſalem, and toke in hand to warre 1.Mach.5.a alſo. * But they that were wyth Machabeus beſought and prayed vnto the LORDE that he wolde be theyr helper, and ſo they fell vpon the ſtrong holdes of the Idumeans, and wan many places by ſtrēgth: Suche as came againſt them they ſlewe, and kylled noo leſſe of all together then xx. M. Neuertheles ſome, no leſſe then ix. M. were fled into two ſtronge towers, hauyng al maner of ordinaunce to wythſtande them.

Then Machabeus leauing Simon, D Joſephus, Zacheus, and thoſe yͭ were wyth them (which were very many) went to beſeege thē, ⁊ to fyghte where moſt nede was. Now they that were wͭ Simon, being led wͭ couetouſnes, were intreated for money, thorow certain of thoſe that lay in yͤ towers, toke lxx. M. dragmars: ⁊ let ſome of thē eſcape. But whē it was told Machabeus what had hapened, he called yͤ captayns of yͤ people together accuſyng thoſe perſonnes, that they had ſold the brethren for money, and let theyr enemies goo. So he ſlewe thoſe traytours, and immediatly went in hand wyth the ij. towers. And whē they had ordred them ſelues manly, wyth theyr weapons ⁊ handes, they ſlewe in the ij. caſtels moo then xx. M.

1.Mach.5.d 2.Mac.6.c. * Nowe Timotheus ‡ whom yͤ Jewes had ouercome afore, gathered a multitude of ſtraung people, brought an hoſt alſo of horſmē of the Aſians, to wynne Jewrye by ſtrengthe. But when he drewe nye, E Machabeus ⁊ they that were wyth hym * fel to theyr prayer, ſprinckled aſhes vpon theyr heades, being gyrded wyth heary cloth about theyr loynes, fel downe befor the aulter, and beſought the LORD that he wold be mercifull to them, but an enemie vnto theyr enemies, and to take part agaynſt their aduerſaries, * accordyng as it is promiſed in the lawe. So after the prayer, they wēt on further from the citie: and when they came nye the enemies, they prepared them ſelues agaynſt them.

And by tymes in the mornyng at the breake of the day, bothe yͤ hoſtes buckled together. * The one part had the LORDE for theyr refuge, whych is the geuer of proſperite ſtrength and victorie. The other had a manly ſtomacke, whych is a captayn of warre. The batayle now beyng great, *there appeared vnto the enemies from heauen v. men vpon horſ backes, wyth bridels of golde, leading the Jewes, ⁊ two of thē hauing Machabeus betwyxt thē, that kept hym ſafe on euery ſyde with their weapons, but ſhote dartes and lyghtenynges vpon the enemies, where thorowe they were confoūded wyth blindnes, and ſo ſore afrayed, that they fell downe. There were ſlayn of fotmen xx. M. and v. C. and vj. C. horſmen. As for Timotheus hym ſelfe, he fled vnto Gazar a very ſtronge hold, wherin Cereas was captayne. But Machabeus and hys companie layed ſeege to it cherefullye foure dayes.

Nowe they that were wythin tru- F ſting to the ſtrength of the place, curſed and banned exceadingly, ⁊ made great crakynge wyth wycked wordes. Neuertheles vpon the v. day in yͤ morning xx. yong men of Machabeus company, beynge ſet on fyre in theyr mindes (becauſe of yͤ blaſphemie) came manfullie vnto yͤ wall, and wyth bolde ſtomakes, they and theyr other companions clymed vp vpon the towers, vndertaking to ſet fyre vpon the portes, ⁊ to burne thoſe blaſphemous perſons quycke. Two dayes wer they deſtroying the caſtel, whych when they founde Timotheus (that was crept into a corner) they killed hym, and ſlew Cereas his brother in lyke maner wyth Appollophanes. When thys was done, they ſong Pſalmes, wyth prayſes and thankes gyuyng vnto the LORDE, which had done ſo great thynges for Iſrael, and geuen them the victorie.

The xi. Chapter.

¶ Liſias goeth aboute to ouercome the Jewes. Socour is ſente from heauē vnto the Jewes. The letter of Liſias vnto the Jewes. The letter of king Antiochus vnto Liſias. A letter of the ſame vnto the Jewes. A letter of the Romans to the Jewes.

A NOT long after this, Liſias, yͤ kinges ſteward & a kinſmā of his (whych had the gouernaunce of hys matters) toke ſore diſpleaſure for yͤ thynges that had happened, & when he had gathered lxxx M. men of fote, with al the hoſte of the horſmen, he came agaynſt the Jewes, thynckyng to wyn the citie, to make it an habitacion of the Heathen, * & the tēple wold he haue to be an houſe of lucre, lyke as the other gods houſes of yͤ Heathen are, and to ſel Preaſtes office euery yeare. Not cōſidering the power of GOD, but was wild in hys mynd * truſtyng in the multitude of foote mē, in thouſandes of horſmen, and in hys foure ſcore Elephantes.

B So he came into Jewry, and then to Bethſura (a caſtel of defenſe) lieng in a narowe place v. furlonges from Jeruſalem, and wanne it. Now when Machabeus and hys companie knewe yͭ yͤ ſtrong holdes were taken, * they fel to theyr prayers wyth wepyng & teares before the LORDE. And all yͤ people in lyke maner beſought him, that he wold ſēd a good angel to deliuer Jſrael. Machabeus himſelf was the fyrſt yͭ made him ready to yͤ battail, exhortig yͤ other yͭ were wͭ hym to ieoperde thē ſelues, and to helpe theyr brethren. And when they were goyng forth of Jeruſalem together, with a ready & willing mynde, * there appeared before them vpon horſbacke a man in white clothyng wͭ harneſſe of golde, ſhakynge hys ſpere. Then they prayſed yͤ LORDE altogether, which had ſhewed them mercy, & were comforted in theyr mindes, in ſo much that they were ready, not only to fight wͭ men, but wͭ the moſt cruel beaſtes: ye, & rūne thorow yͤ walles of yrō.

C Thus they wēt on williglye hauyng an helper from heauē, & the LORD mercyful vnto them. They fel myghtely vpon theyr enemies lyke Liōs, brought downe xi. M. fotmen, x vi. C. horſmen, put all the other to flyght, many of thē beyng wounded, & ſome gat away naked. yee, Liſias himſelfe was fayne to fle ſhamfully & ſo to eſcape. Neuertheles, yͤ man was not without vnderſtādyng, but conſidered by himſelfe yͭ hys power was myniſhed, & pōdred howe the Jewes being defēded by the helpe of Almightye GOD, were not able to be ouercome, wherefore he ſent them worde, & promiſed yͭ he wold conſent to al thinges which were reaſonable, & to make yͤ kynge theyr frēde. To yͤ which prayer of Liſias, Machabeus agreed, D ſekyng in al thinges the comen wealth, and what ſoeuer Machabeus wrote vnto Liſias concernyng yͤ Jewes, the kynge graunted it. For there were letters written vnto yͤ Jewes frō Liſias contayning theſe wordes: Liſias ſendeth greting vnto yͤ people of yͤ Jewes. Jhon & Abſolon which were ſente frō you, delyuered me wrytynges, & required me to fulfyl the thynges, concerninge theyr errande. Therfore loke what myght be graunted J certified yͤ kyng therof, & what ſoeuer was conuenient, J agreed therto. Yf ye now wyll be faythful in the matters, J ſhall endeuer myſelfe therafter alſo to do you good. As cōcernyng other thynges by euery article therof: J haue committed thē to your meſſengers, & to thoſe whō J ſent vnto you, to cōmune wͭ you of the ſame, fare ye wel. Jn yͤ C. & xlviij. yere, yͤ xliij. day of yͤ moneth Dioſcorinthius. Now yͤ kinges letter cōtained theſe wordes: King Antiochus ſendeth greatyng vnto hys brother Liſias. For ſo much as our father * is now dead, our wyl is, yͭ they whyche are in our realme, lyue without any inſurreccion, & euery man to be diligēt in his owne matters. We vnderſtāde alſo yͭ the Jewes wold not conſent to our father, for to be brought vnto the cuſtome of yͤ Gentiles, but ſtifly to kepe theyr owne ſtatutes, for the whiche cauſe they require of vs alſo to let thē remain ſtil by theyr own lawes. 2.Mac.9.b E Wherfore our mynde is yͭ this people ſhalbe in reſt: we haue concluded & determined alſo, to reſtore them theyr tēple agayne, yͭ they may lyue accordig to the vſe & cuſtome of theyr forfathers Thou ſhalt do vs a pleaſure therfore, yf thou ſēd vnto them & agre wyth thē, yͭ when they are certified of our mynd, they may be of good chere, and looke to theyr owne wealthe. And thys was yͤ letter, yͭ the king wrote vnto yͤ Jewes:

kinge Antiochus ſendeth greatyng vnto yͤ counſell ⁊ the other people of yͤ Jewes: yf ye fare well, we haue oure deſyre: as for vs, we are in good health. Menelaus came and tolde vs howe yͤ youre deſire was to come down to youre people which are wyth vs. Wherfor, thoſe that wyl come, we geue them fre libertie, vnto the xxx. day of the moneth of April, that they may vſe the meates of the Jewes and theyr owne lawes, lyke as afore and none of them by any maner of wayes to haue harme for thynges done in ignoraunce. Menelaus whome we haue ſent vnto you, ſhall comen wyth you at large: fare ye well. In the C lviij. yeare, the xv. day of the moneth of Aprill.

The Romans alſo ſent a letter contaynynge theſe wordes. F Quintus Mēnius and Titus Manilius ambaſſadours of the Romans, ſende greatyng vnto the people of the Jewes. Loke what Liſias the kynges kynſmā hath graunted you, we graunte the ſame alſo. But as concernyng the thynges whyche he referred vnto the kyng ſende hether ſome with ſpede, and ponder the matter diligently amonge your ſelues, that we maye caſt the beſt to youre profite, for we muſt depart now vnto Antioch. And therfore wryt ſhortely agayn, that we may knowe youre mynde. Fare well, in the C lviij yeare yͤ xv. daye of the moneth of April.

The xij. Chapter.

¶ Timotheus troubleth the Jewes. The wycked deade of the Jepytes agaynſt the Jewes. Judas is aduenged of them. He ſetteth fyre on the gate of Jānia. The perſute of the Jewes agaynſt Timothie. Timothie is taken and let goo vnhurte. Judas purſueth Gorgias. Judas offeringe ſacrifice for the dead, ſhweth the hoope of the reſurreccion.

A WHen theſe couenauntes were made, Liſias went vnto the king, and the Jewes tylled theyr ground. But Timotheus, Appolonius the ſonne of Gemei, and Demophon the proude, Nicanor the captayne of Cypres, ⁊ they that lay in thoſe places, wold not let them liue in reſt and peace. They of Joppa alſo dyd euen ſuch aſhamful dede. They praied yͤ Jewes that dwelt among them, to goo wyth theyr wyues and chyldren into the ſhyppes whych they had prepared and dyd wyth them as though they had ought them none euell wyl, for ſo much thē as ther was gone forth a general proclamacion thorow the citie, becauſe of peace they cōſented therto, and ſuſpect nothing, but when they were gone forth into the depe, they drowned no leſſe then ij. C. of of them. When Judas knewe of thys cruelty ſhewed vnto hys people, he cōmaunded thoſe that were wyth him to make them ready, exhorting them to call vpon GOD the righteous Judge: wēt forth agaynſte thoſe murtherars of hys brethren, ſet fyre in the hauen by night, brent vp yͤ ſhyps, and thoſe that eſcaped from the fyre, he ſlew with the ſweard. B And whē he had done thys, he departed as though he wolde come agayn, and rote out all them of Joppa. But when he had gotten word that yͤ Jānites were minded to do in lyke maner vnto yͤ Jewes whych dwelt amōg thē, he came vpon yͤ Jānites by night, ⁊ ſet fyre on the hauen wyth the ſhyps, ſo that the light of yͤ fyre was ſene at Jeruſalem, vpon a ij. C. and xl. furlonges. Nowe when they were gone from thēce ix. furlonge, in theyr iourney towarde Timotheus, v. M. mē of fote, and v. C. horſmen of the Arabiās foughte wͭ hym. So when yͤ battayle was earneſt and proſpered with Judas thorow the help of GOD: the reſidue of the Arabians beyng ouercome, beſought Judas to be at one wyth them, ⁊ promiſed to geue hym certayn paſtures, and to do hym good in other thiges. Judas thincking yͭ they ſhuld in dede be prouitable concernyng many thinges, promiſed them peace, wherupon they ſhoke handes, and ſo they departed to theyr tentes. Judas wēt alſo vnto a citie, which was very faſt kept wyth bridges, fēced round about the walles, and diuers kyndes of people dwellig therin, called C Caſpin. They that were with in it, put ſuch truſt in the ſtrength of yͤ walles ⁊ in ſtore of vittailes: that they were the ſlacker in theyr doinges, curſyng and reuiling Judas with blaſphemies, and ſpeaking ſuch wordes as it becometh not. But Machabeus calling vpon yͤ great prince of the world (whych withoute any battell rammes, or ordinaūce of warre, dyd * caſt downe the walles of Jericho, in the tyme of Joſue) fel māfully vpō yͤ walles, toke yͤ citie thorow the the help of yͤ LORD, made an exceading great ſlaughter: In ſo much yͭ a lake of two forlonges brode whych lay therby ſemed to flow with bloud of yͤ ſlain. Then departed they from thence vij C. and l. furlonges, and came to Taracha vnto yͤ Jewes that are called Tubiani. But as for Timotheus, they could not get him ther, for (not one matter diſpatched) he was departed frome thence, ⁊ had left certayne men in a very ſtrong hold. But Doſitheus, and Soſipater which were captaynes wyth Machabeus, ſlew thoſe that Timotheus had left in the houſe of defenſe, euen x M. men. And Machabeus prepared hym wyth the vj. M. men that were about hym, ſet them in ordre by companies, ⁊ wẽt forth agaynſt Timotheus, whych had with hym an C. and xx. M. men of foote, two thouſand and fyue hundred horſmen.

D When Timotheus had knowlege of Judas comming, he ſent the women, chyldren, and the other baggage vnto a caſtel called Carniõ (For it could not be wonne, and was hard to come vnto, the wayes of the ſame places were ſo narow) ⁊ when Judas company came fyrſt in ſight, the enemies were ſmyttẽ wyth feare, thorow the preſẽce of GOD which ſeeth all thynges: In ſo much yͭ thei flyinge one here, another there, were rather diſcõfited of theyr owne people, * ⁊ wounded wyth the ſtrokes of their owne ſweardes. Judas alſo was very earneſt in folowyng vpon them puniſhing thoſe vngodly, ⁊ ſlew xxx. M mẽ of them. Timotheus alſo hym ſelfe fel into the handes of Doſitheus, ⁊ Soſipater, whome he beſought, wyth hys lyfe, becauſe he had many of yͤ Jewes fathers ⁊ brethren in priſon, which (yf they put hym to death) myghte be diſapointed. So whẽ he had promiſed faithfully to delyuer them agayne accordig to the condicion made, they let hym go wythout harme for the health of yͤ brethren. And whẽ Judas had ſlayne xxv. M. he went from Carnion.

E Now after that he had chaſed away ⁊ ſlayne hys enemies, he remoued that hoſt towarde* Ephron a ſtrong citie, wherin dwelt many diuers people of yͤ Heathen, ⁊ the ſtrong yonge men kept yͤ walles defendyng thẽ myghtely. In thys citie was much ordinaunce ⁊ prouiſiõ of dartes. But when Judas and hys company had called vpon almighty GOD (whych wyth his power breaketh the ſtrenght of the enemies) they, wan yͤ citie, and ſlew xxv. M. of them yͭ were wyth in. From thence went they to yͤ citie of the Scithians, which lyeth vi. C. fourlongs from Jeruſalem. But when yͤ Jewes whych were in yͤ citie teſtified, yͭ the citezins dealte louyngly wyth them: yee, ⁊ intreated them kyndly in yͤ tyme of theyr aduerſitie, Judas and his company gaue them thãckes, deſiring thẽ to be frendly ſtyl vnto thẽ, and ſo they came to Jeruſalem, the hye feaſte of yͤ weakes beyng at hand.

Mac.5.c.

F And after yͤ feaſt of penticoſt they wẽt forth againſt Gorgias the gouernour of Idumea wyth iij. M. men of fote ⁊ iiij. C horſmen. Whych when they met together, it chaunced a fewe of the Jewes to be ſlaine. And Doſitheus one of the Bachenors a mighty horſmã toke hold of Gorgias and wold haue taken hym quicke. But an horſman of Thracia fel vpon him ⁊ ſmote of his arme, ſo yͭ Gorgias eſcaped ⁊ fled into Moreſa, when they nowe yͭ were of Gorgias ſyde, had foughten long ⁊ were wery: Judas called vpõ yͤ LORD, yͭ he wold be theyr helper, ⁊ captayne of the feld: ⁊ wyth yͭ he began with a manly voyce to take vp a ſong of prayſe, ⁊ a crye, In ſo much yͭ he made the enemies afrayed, ⁊ Gorgias men of warre toke theyr flight. So Judas gathered hys hoſt, ⁊ came into the citie of Odulal. And when the vij. daye came vpon them, they clenſed thẽ ſelues (as the cuſtome was) ⁊ kept the ſabboth in the ſame place. And vpon yͤ day folowinge, Judas ⁊ hys company came to take vp the bodyes of them yͭ were ſlayne, ⁊ to bury them in theyr fathers graues. Now vnder yͤ coates of certayne Jewes whych were ſlayne, they found iewels that they had taken out of the temple, and the ydols of the* Jamniters: which thing is forbydden the Jewes by the lawe. Then euery man ſaw, yͭ thys was yͤ cauſe wherfore they wer ſlayne.

Ioſue.7.a

G And ſo euery mã gaue thãckes vnto yͤ LORDE for hys righteous iudgemẽt whych had opened the thyng that was hyd. They fel downe alſo vnto theyr prayers, ⁊ beſought GOD, yͭ the faut whych was made, myghte be put out of remembraunce. Beſydes ẏ, Judas exhorted the people earneſtly, to kepe them ſelues frõ ſuch ſynne: for ſo much as they ſawe before theyr eyes, that theſe men were ſlayne for the ſame offenſe. So he gathered of euery one a certayne, in ſo muche that he brought together two M. dragmars of ſyluer whych he ſent vnto Jeruſalem, that there myght a ſacrifice be offered for ẏ myſdede. In ẏ whych place he dyd wel and ryght: for he had ſome conſideracion and pondrynge of the lyfe that is after this time. For if he had not thought that they, whych wer ſlayne, dyd yet lyue, it had bene ſuperfluous and vayne, to make any vowe or ſacrifice for them that were dead. But for ſo much as he ſaw, that they whych dye in the fauour and beleſe of GOD, are in good reſte and ioy, he thought it to be good and honourable for a reconſiling, to do the ſame for thoſe whych were ſlayne, that the offenſe might be forgeuen.

The xiij. Chapter.

¶The commynge of Eupator into Jewrye. The deathe of Menelaus, Machabeus goinge to fyght agaynſt Eupator, moueth hys ſoudiers vnto prayer. He killeth fourtene thouſande men in the A tentes of Antiochus. Rhodocus the betrayer of the 1.Mac.6.d. Jewes is taken. Antiochus retayneth frendeſhyp wyth the Jewes.

IN the Cxlix. yeare gat * Judas knowlege, ẏ Antiochus Eupator was cõming wyth a great power into Jewrye, and Liſias the ſteward and ruler of hys matters wyth hym, hauyng an C. and x. M: mẽ of fote, v. M. horſmen, xxij Elephãtes, and iij C. charettes. Menelaus alſo ioyned hym ſelfe wyth them (but with great dyſceat) and ſpake fayre to the kyng, not for any good of the countrye, but becauſe he thought to haue bene made ſome great man of auctorite. But the kyng of kynges moued Antiochus mynd agaynſt thys vngodly 2.Mac.4.d perſon, and Liſias infourmed ẏ king * that thys Menelaus was the cauſe of all myſchefe: ſo that the kynge commaunded to take hym, and (as the maner of them is) to put hym vnto death in the ſame place. There was alſo in the ſame place a tower of L. cubites hye heaped wyth aſhes: but aboue, it was ſo made, ẏ men might loke down on euerye ſyde. Whereunto he kinge cõmaunded ẏ ſhamefull perſone to be caſte among the aſhes, as one that was cauſe of all vngraciouſneſſe. And reaſon it was that the vnthrift ſhuld dye ſuch a death, and not to be buried: for he had done much miſchefe vnto ẏ aulter of GOD (whoſe fyre and aſhes were holy) therfore was it ryght, that he B hiſelfe alſo ſhuld be deſtroied wͭ aſhes.

But the kynge was wood in hys mynd, and came to ſhew hymſelfe more cruell vnto the Jewes, then hys father 2.Mac.19.d was. Whyche when Judas perceaued, * he commaunded the people to call vpon the LORDE night and day: that he wold now helpe thẽ alſo, lyke as he had done alway. For they were afrayed to be put from theyr lawe, frõ theyr natural countrie, and from ẏ holy temple: and not to ſuffre the people (whych a lytle whyle afore began to recouer) to be ſubdued againe of the blaſphemous nacions. So when they had done thys together, and beſought the LORDE for mercy, wyth weping, and faſting iij. dayes long flat vpon the ground, Judas exhorted them, to make them ſelues ready. But he & the elders together deuiſed to go forth fyrſt with theyr people, afore the kyng brought his hooſt into Jewry, and afor he beſeged the citie, and commit the matter C vnto GOD.

Wherfore, he aſcribed the power of al thinges vnto GOD the maker of the world, exhorting hys people to fyght manfully (yee, euen vnto death) for the lawes, the tẽple, the citie, theyr owne natiue countrie, and to defend the citezins: and ſet his hoſt before Modin. He gaue them alſo that were wyth hym a token, of the victorie of GOD, choſing out ẏ manlieſt yong men, wẽt by night 2.Mac.6.f. into the kynges pauelyon, ſlewe of the D hooſt xiiij. M. mẽ * and the greateſt Elephantes with thoſe ẏ ſat vpon them.

Thus when they had brought a great feare and romour among ẏ tẽtes of theyr enemies, and all thynges went proſperouſly wyth them, they departed in the breake of the daye, GOD beynge theyr helper and defender. Nowe whẽ the kyng perceaued the manlynes of the Jewes, he went about to take the 2.Mac.11.d ſtronge places by crafte, and remoued hys hoſt * vnto Bethſura, whych was a well kept houſe of defenſe of the Jewes:

wes:but they were chaſed away, hurt and dyſcomfited. And Judas ſent vnto them that were in it ſuch thiges as were neceſſarie. In the Jewes hoſte alſo there was one Rodochus which told yͤ enemies their ſecretes:but they ſought him oute, ⁊ when they had gotten him they put him in preaſõ. After thys did yͤ kyng cõmen wyth them yͤ wer in Beth ſura, toke truce wyth them, departed ⁊ ſtroke battayle wyth Judas, whyche ouercame hym.

But when he vnderſtode, that Philip E pe (whome he had left to be ouerſear of hys buſines at Antioche) began to rebel agaynſt him, he was aſtoined in his mynd: ſo that he yelded hymſelfe to the Jewes, and made them an othe, to do whatſoeuer they thought ryght.

Nowe when he was reconſiled with them, he offered, made much of the tẽple, gaue great gyfts vnto it, embraſed Machabeus, making hym a captayne, and gouernoure from Ptolomais vnto the Gerrenes. Neuertheleſſe, when he came to Ptolomais, the people of yͤ citie were not content wyth the bonde of frendſhyppe, for they were afrayed, that he wolde breake the couenaunt. Then wente Liſias vp into yͤ ſeate and enfourmed yͤ people, ſhewed them the cauſe whi: ⁊ pacified them. So he came againe vnto Antioch. This is nowe yͤ matter cõcernyng the kynges iourney, and hys returne.

The xiiij. Chapter.

¶By the mocion of the Lorde Demetrius ſendeth Nicanor to kyl the Jewes. Nicanor maketh a cõpact with the Jewes: whych he yet breaketh through the mocion of the kyng. Nicanor commaundeth Razis to be taken. The boldnes of Razis.

A After thre yeres was Judas enfourmed how that Demetrius yͤ ſonne of Seleucus was come vp wyth a great power and ſhyppes, thorowe the hauen of Tripolis, to take certayne commodious places and countryes againſt Antiochus and hys captayne Liſias. Now Alcimus (whych had bene hye preaſte ⁊ wylfully defyled hym ſelfe, in the tyme of the mixting) ſeinge, that by no meanes he coulde be helped nor haue any more entraũce to the aulter: he came to kyng Demetrius in the C. and li. yeare, preſentinge vnto hym a crowne of gold, a palme and an Oliue tree: whych (as men thought) belonged to the temple, and that daye he helde hys tonge. But when he had gotten oportunite for hys madnes, Demetrius called hym to counſaile, and aſked hym, what thynges or counſailes the Jewes leaned vnto. He anſwered: the Jewes that be called Aſſide (whoſe captaine is Judas Machabeus) mayntayne warres, make inſurrectiõs, and wyll not let the realme be in peace.

For I beinge depriued of my fathers honoure (I meane the hye preaſthode) B am come hether: partly becauſe I was faythfull vnto the kyng, and partely becauſe I ſought the profite of the citizins. And why all oure people, thorow the wyckednes of them, are not a lytle troubled. Wherefore, I beſech the (O kynge) conſider all theſe thynges diligentli, and then make prouiſion for yͤ lande and the people, accordinge to the kyndnes that thou haſte offered vnto them. For as longe as Judas hath the vpperhand, it is not poſſible that men can lyue in peace.

When he had ſpoken theſe wordes, other frendes alſo hauynge euell wyll at Judas, ſet the kyng Demetrius on fyre agaynſt him: *whych immediatly ſent Nicanor (ruler of the Elephãtes) 1.Mac.7.e a captayne into Jewry, commaunding hym to take Judas hymſelf alyue, but to ſlay them that were wyth hym, and to make Alcimus hye preaſte of the great Temple.

Then yͤ Heathẽ which fled out of Je C wry from Judas, came to Nicanor by flockes, thynkynge the harme and decay of the Jewes to be theyr welfare. Nowe when the Jewes hearde of Nicanors commyng, and the gatheryng together of the Heathẽ, they ſprynkled them ſelues with earth *beſought him 2.Mac.10.e whyche made them hys people, ⁊ euer defended hys owne porcion wyth euident tokens, yͤ he wolde preſerue them ſtyl. So at the commaundement of the captayne, they remoued from thence, ⁊ came to a towne called Deſſaſan. And Simon Judas brother fel in hãd with Nicanor, but thorowe the ſodaine comming of the enemies, he was afrayed.

Neuertheleſſe, Nicanor hearyng the manlyneſſe of them that were with Judas, and the bolde ſtomakes that they had to fyght for theyr natural cõutrie, durſte not proue ẏ matter wyth bloud ſheddyng. Wherfore, he ſent Poſſidonius, Theodotus, & Mathias before, to geue and to take peace. So when they had taken long aduiſement thereupon, and the captayne ſhewed it vnto ẏ multitude, they were agreed in one minde: to haue peace. And they appoynted a daye to ſytte vpō theſe matters quietly among thē ſelues, ẏ ſtooles alſo were brought & ſet forth. Neuertheles, Judas cōmaunded certayne mē of armes to wayte in conueniente places, leaſt ẏre ſhuld ſo daynly aryſe anye euell thorowe the enemies. And ſo they commaunded reaſonable together.

D Nicanor, whyle he abode at Jeruſalem, ordred hym ſelf not vnreaſonably, but ſent away the people that were gathered together. He loued Judas euer wyth hys herte, and fauoured hym. He prayed hym alſo to take a wife, and to to bring forth children.

So he maried, lyued in reaſt, & they led a comen lyfe. But Alcimus perceauing the loue that was betwixte them, and howe they were agreed together, came to Demetrius and told hym that Nicanor had taken ſtraunge matters in hand, and ordeined Judas (an enemie of the realme) to be the kynges ſucceſſour. Then the kynge was ſore dyſpleaſed, and thorow the wycked accuſacions, whych Alcimus made of Nicanor, ſayenge: that he was very angry for the frendſhippe & agrement, whych he had made with Machabeus. Neuertheles, he commaunded hym in all the haſt, that he ſhulde take Machabeus pryſoner, and ſende hym to Antioche.

E Whych letters when Nicanor had ſene, he was at hys wittes end, and ſore greued, that he ſhulde breake the thinges wherin they had agreed ſpecially, ſeing Machabeus was the man that neuer dyd hym harme. But becauſe he myghte not wythſtande the kynge, he ſought oportunite to fulfyll hys commaundement. Not withſtandyng when Machabeus ſawe that Nicanor begā to be churlyſh vnto him, and that he intreated hym more roughlye then he was wont, he perceaued that ſuch vnkyndnes came not of good, and therfore he gathered a fewe of hys men, & wythdrewe hymſelfe from Nicanor. Whyche when he knew that Machabeus had manfully preuented hym, he came into the great and moſt holy temple: & cōmaunded the preaſtes (whych were doinge theyr vſual offeringes) to delyuer hym the man. And when they ſware that they could not tell where the man was whō he ſoughte, he ſtretched out hys hād, * and made an othe, 1.Mac.7. ſaying: Yf ye wyll not deliuer me Judas captiue, I ſhall remoue thys temple of GOD into a playn felde. I ſhall breake downe the aulter, and conſecrate thys temple vnto Bacchus. Afther theſe wordes he departed.

Then the preaſtes lyfte vp theyr handes towarde heauen, & beſought hym that was euer the defēder of theyr people, ſayinge: Thou O LORDE of all, whych haſt nede of nothynge, woldeſt that the temple of thy habitaciō ſhuld be amonge vs: Therfore nowe O moſt holy LORD kepe thys houſe euer vndefyled * whych lately was clenſed. 1.Mac.4. Now was there accuſed vnto Nicanor, one Razis an alderman of Jeruſalem, a louer of the holy citie, and a man of good report, whych for the kynde hert that he bare vnto the people, was called a father of the Jewes. Thys man oftymes, when the Jewes were minded to kepe them ſelues vndefyled, defended and delyuered them, beinge content ſtedfaſtly to ſpende hys bodye and hys lyfe for hys people. F

So Nicanor wyllynge to declare the hate that he bare to the Jewes, ſent v. C. men of warre to take hym: for he thought, yf he gat hym, he ſhuld bringe the Jewes in greate decaie. Now whē the people began to ruſh in at hys houſe, to breake the dores, and to ſet fire on it: he beinge now taken wold haue defended hymſelfe wyth hys ſweard, choſynge rather to dye manfullye, then to yeld hym ſelf to thoſe wickeddoers: and becauſe of hys noble ſtocke, he had rather to haue bene put to the extreme cruelty. Notwythſtanding, what time as he myſſed of hys ſtrocke for haſt, & the multitude fel in violently betwyxt the dores, he ran boldly to the wal, and caſt hymſelfe downe manfully among the heape of them, whych gaue ſone place to hys fall, ſo that he fell vpon hys bellye. Neuertheleſſe whyle there was yet breth wythin him, he was kyndled in hys mynd, and whyle hys bloud guſhed out G ſhed out exceadingly (for he was verye ſore wounded) he ran thorow the myddeſt of the people, and gat hym to the toppe of a rock. So when hys bloude was gone, he toke out hys owne bowels with both hys handes, and threw them vpon the people, callynge vpō the LORDE of lyfe and ſpirite to rewarde hym thys agayne, and ſo he dyed.

¶ Nicanor goeth aboute to come vpon Judas on the Sabboth daye. The blaſphemie of Nicanor. Machabeus expoundynge vnto the Jewes the viſion boldeneth theyr hertes. The prayer of Machabeus. After the hooſt of Nicanor is ones ouercome. Machabeus cōmaūdeth hys heed and hys hādes to be cut of, & hys tong to be geuen vnto the foules.

A c.7.d. Nowe when *Nicanor knew that Judas was in the countrie of Samaria, he thought with al his power to strycke a felde wyth him, vpō a Sabboth daye. Neuertheles, the Jewes that wer compelled to go wyth hym, ſayd: O do not ſo cruelly and vnkyndly, but halowe the Sabboth daye, and worſhyppe hym, that ſeeth al thynges. For al thys yet ſayd the vngracious perſon: *Is ther a myghty one in heauen, that commaūded the Sabboth day to be kept? And when they ſayd yea, the lyuyng GOD, the myghtye LORDE in heauen *commaunded the ſeuenth day to be kepte, he ſayd: And I am myghty vpon earthe to commaund them, for to arme them ſelues, and to perfourme the kynges buſineſſe. Notwythſtandyng he mighte not haue hys purpoſe.

Nicanor had deuiſed wyth greate pryde to ouercome Judas, and to bryng awaie the victori: But Machabeus had euer faſt cōfidence ⁊ a perfecte hope in GOD, that he wold helpe hym, and exhorted hys people, not to be afrayed at the commyng of the Heathen: but alwaye to remember the helpe that had bene ſhewed vnto them from heauen: yea, and to be ſure now alſo, that Almyghty GOD wolde geue them the victorie. B He ſpake vnto them out of the lawe and prophetes: putting them in remembraunce of the battels that they had ſtrycken afore, and made them to be of a good corage.

So when theyr hertes were plukte vp, he ſhewed them the diſceatfulnes of the Heathen, and howe they wolde kepe no couenaunt nor othe. Thus they weaponed them, not with the armoure of ſhylt, and ſpeare, but with wholſom wordes, and exhortacions. He ſhewed them a dreame alſo, wherthorow he made them all glad, whych was thys: he thought that he ſaw Onias (whych had bene hye preaſte, a verteous and a louynge man, ſat, and of honeſt conuerſacion, well ſpoken, and one that had bene excerciſed in godlynes frome a childe) holdyng vp his handes toward heauen, and praying for hys people. After thys ther appered vnto hym another mā whyche was aged: honorable, and glorious. And Onias ſayd: Thys is a louer of the brethrē, and of the people of Iſraell. Thys is he that prayeth much for the people and for all the holy citie, Jeremie the prophete of GOD. He thoughte alſo that Jeremie helde out hys ryght hand, and gaue vnto Judas a ſwerde of gold, ſaing: Take this holy ſwerd a gyfte from GOD, wherewyth thou ſhalt ſmytte downe the enemies of the people of Iſraell.

C And ſo they were well conforted thorowe the wordes of Judas, and toke courage vnto them, ſo that the yonge men were determined in theyr mindes to fyghte, and to byde ſtyflye at it: Inſomuche that the thinges whych they tooke in hande, theyr boldneſſe ſhewed the ſame, becauſe the holy citie, and the temple were in perel: for yͤ whych they tooke moare care, then for their wiues, chyldren, brethren and kynſfolkes.

Agayne they that were in the citie, were moſt carefull for thoſe whyche were to fyghte. Nowe when they were all in a hoope, that the Judgemente of the matter was at hande, and the enemies drewe nye, the hoſte beinge ſette in a raye, the Elephantes, and horſmen euery one ſtandinge in hys place: Machabeus conſideringe the commynge of the multitude, the ordinaunce of diuers weapons, the cruelnes of the beaſtes, and helde vp hys handes towarde heauen callynge vpon the LORDE D that doth wonders, whych geueth not the victorie after the multitude of the weapons, and power of the hooſt (but to them that pleaſe hym) accordinge to hys owne wyll. Ther fore in hys prayer he ſayde theſe wordes:

2.Par.14.c Iudi.8.b.

O LORDE

3.Re.19.g. Eſdr.37.f. 1.Mac.6.c. O LORDE,* thou that dydeſt ſende thyne Angell in tyme of Ezekiah kynge of Juda, and in the hooſte of Sennacherib ſleweſte an C.lxxx. and fyue thouſande, ſende nowe alſo thy good Aungell before vs (O LORDE of heauens) in the fearfulneſſe and drede of thy myghtie arme, that they whyche come agaynſte thy holye people to blaſpheme them, maye be afrayed. So he made an ende of hys wordes.

Then Nicanor and they that were wyth hym, drew nye wyth ſhawmes and ſonges: but Judas and hys company wyth prayer and calling vpon GOD. Wyth theyr handes they ſmoote, but wyth theyr hertes they prayed vnto the LORDE, and ſlewe no leſſe then xxxv. M. men: For thorowe the preſent helpe of GOD they were gloriouſly comforted.

Nowe when they lefte of, and were turnynge agayne wyth ioye, they vnderſtoode that Nicanor hym ſelfe was ſlayne wyth the other. Then they gaue a greate ſhoute and a crye, praiſynge the Almyghtye LORDE wyth a loude voice. And Judas (whyche was euer readye to ſpēde his bodye and lyfe for hys citizins) commaūded to ſmyte of Nicanors head, wyth hys arme and hande, and to be broughte to Jeruſalem. When he came there, he called al C the people, and the preſtes to the aulter wyth thoſe that were in the caſtell, and ſhewed them Nicanors head, and hys wycked hand whyche he had preſumpteouſlye holden vp agaynſt the Temple of GOD. He cauſed the tonge alſo of yͤ vngodly Nicanor to be cut in lytle peces, and to be caſte vnto the foules, and the cruel mans hande to be hāged vp before the temple.

So euery man gaue thanckes vnto the LORDE, ſayinge: bleſſed be he, that hath kepte hys place vndefyled. As for Nicanors heade, he hanged it vpon the hye caſtel, for an euidente, and plaine token of the helpe of GOD. And ſo they agreed al together, to kepe that daye holye, namelye the thyrtene daye of the moneth Adar, whych in the Syrians language is called the nexte day before Mardocheus day. Thus was Nicanor ſlayne, and frome that time forth yͤ Jewes had the citie in poſſeſſion. And here wyll I nowe make an ende.

The genealogy of Chriſte, ⁊ mariage of his mother Mary. The Angel ſatiſfieth Joſephs mynde.

A Thys is the booke of the generació of Jeſu Chriſt the ſonne of Dauid, the ſonne of Abraham.

* Abraham begat Iſaac, ‡ Iſaac begat Jacob, * Jacob begat Judas and his brethren: ‡ Judas begat Phares ⁊ zaram of Thamar: * Phares begat Eſrom: ‡ Eſrom begat Aram: * Aram begat Aminanab: ‡ Aminadab begat Naaſſon: * Naaſſon begat Salmō: ‡ Salmō begat Boos of Rahab: * Boos begat Obed of Ruth: ‡ Obed begat Jeſſe: * Jeſſe begat Dauid the king:

‡ Dauid the king begat Salomon of her that was the wyfe of Urye: * Salomon begat Roboā: ‡ Roboā begat Abia: * Abia begat Aſa: ‡ Aſa begat Joſaphat: * Joſaphat begat Jorā: ‡ Joram begat Oſias: * Oſias begat Joatham: ‡ Joatham begat Achas: * Achas begat Ezechias: ‡ Ezechias begat Manaſſes: * Manaſſes begat Amon: ‡ Amon begat Joſias: * Joſias begat Jeconias ⁊ his brethren aboute the tyme they were caryed awaye to Babilon.

And after they were brought to Babilō: ‡ Jeconias begat Salathiel: * Salathiel begat Zorobabell: ‡ Zorobabell begat Abiud: * Abiud begat Eliachim: Eliachim begat Azor: Azor begat Sadoc: Sadoc begat Achin: Achin begat Eliud: Eliud begat Eleazar: Eleazar begat Matthan: Matthan begat Jacob: Jacob begat Joſeph the houſband of Mary: of whom was borne Jeſus, euen he that is called Chriſte. ☩

And ſo all the generacions from Abrahā to Dauid, are fourtene generacions: And from Dauid vnto the captiuitie of Babilon, are fourtene generaciōs. And from the captiuitie of Babilon vnto Chriſte, are fourtene generacions.

The birthe of Jeſus Chriſte was on C this wiſe. ☩ Whē his mother Mary was maryed to Joſeph (before they came to dwell together) ſhe was founde wͭ child by thy holy goſt. Then Joſeph her houſbande (becauſe he was a righteous man and would not put her to ſhame) he was mynded priuely to depart from her. But whyle he thus thought, beholde the Angell of the Lorde appeared vnto hym in ſlepe, ſaying: Joſeph thou ſonne of Dauid, feare not to take vnto thee Mary thy wife. For that which is conceyued in her, commeth of the holy goſt. She ſhall bryng forth a ſonne, and thou ſhalt call his name * Jeſus. For he ſhall ſaue his people from theyr ſinnes.

D All this was done, that it myght bee fulfilled, which was ſpoken of the Lord by yͤ prophete, ſaying: * Behold, a maide ſhall be with child, and ſhall bryng forth a ſonne, and they ſhall call his name Emanuell, which yf a manne interprete, it is aſmuche to ſaye, as God with vs. ☩

And Joſeph as ſoone as he awoke out of ſlepe, dyd as the Angell of the Lorde had biddē him, and tooke his wyfe vnto hym and knewe her not, tyll ſhe had brought forth * her firſt begotten ſonne, and called his name Jeſus.

¶ The. ii. Chapter.

The tyme and place of Chriſtes byrth. The wyſemen offre theyr preſentes. Chriſte flyeth into Egypt, the yong children are ſlayne, Chriſte turneth into Galile.

A Whē ☩ Jeſus was borne at Bethleem a citie of Jury, in the tyme of Herode the kyng: Beholde, there came wyſemen from the Eaſt to Jeruſalem, ſaying: where is he that is borne king of the Jewes? For we haue ſene his * ſtarre in the Eaſt, and are come to wurſhyp hym.

When Herode the kyng had hearde theſe thynges, he was troubled, and all the citie of Jeruſalem with hym. And when he had gathered al the chiefe prieſtes ⁊ Scribes of the people together, he demaunded of them, where Chriſte ſhould be borne: And they ſaid vnto him: at Bethleem in Jewrye. For thus it is writtē by the prophete: * And thou Bethleē in the land of Juda, art not the leaſte emong the princes of Juda. For * out of the ſhall there come vnto me the captaine, yͭ ſhall gouerne my people Iſrael. B

Then Herode (whē he had priuely called the wiſemen) he enquired of them diligently, what tyme the ſtarre appeared, and he bad them go to Bethleem, ⁊ ſayd: Go your waye thyther, and ſearche diligently for the childe. And when ye haue found him, bring me worde agayne, that I may come and worſhip him alſo.

+When they had heard the kyng, they departed: ⁊ loe, the ſtarre which thei ſawe in the Eaſt, went before them, till it came ⁊ ſtode ouer the place, where in the childe was: whē they ſawe the ſtarre, they were excedyng glad: and went into the houſe, and found the child with Mary his mother ii.d ther* and fell downe flatte and worſhiped ix.b him, and opened their treaſures, and offred vnto hym giftes: golde, franckynſece, and mirre. And after they were warned of God in ſlepe (that they ſhould not goe again to Herode) they returned into their owne countrey another waye. +

When they were departed: beholde, the C Angel of the Lord appered to Joſeph in ſlepe, ſaying. Aryſe and take the chylde ⁊ his mother, and flie into Egypt, and be thou there, tyll I bryng the woorde. For it wyll come to paſſe, that Herode ſhall ſeke the childe to deſtroye him. So when he awoke, he toke the childe and his mother and was there vnto the death of Herode:

that it myght bee fulfilled, whiche was ſpokē of yͤ Lord by the prophete, ſaying:

ſlewe all the children that were in Bethleem, and in all the coaſtes (as many as were two yere olde or vnder) accordyng to the tyme, whiche he had diligentlye knowen out of the wiſemen.

Then was fulfylled that, whiche was ſpoken by the prophete Jeremy: wheras he ſayd: in Rama was there a voyce herd

in ſlepe to Joſeph in Egypt, ſaying: ariſe go into the land of Iſrael. *For they are Exo.iiii.c dead which ſought the childes lyfe. And he aroſe, and toke the childe and his mother, and came into the lande of Iſrael.

But when he heard, that Archelaus dyd reigne in Jury, in yͤ roume of his father Herode, he was afrayde to goe thither.
Notwithſtanding, after he was warned of God in a ſlepe, he turned aſide into the parties of Galile, and wente and dwelte in a citie whiche is called Nazareth: that it might be fulfilled whiche was ſpoken by the prophetes: he ſhall be called a Nazarite. +

he wente, and ſat in a ſhyppe, and all the

And he ſpake many thynges to them by ſimilitudes, ſaying: Beholde, the ſower ſome ſedes fell by the waye ſyde, and the

Another ſimilytude ſpake he vnto thē: * The kingdom of heauē is like vnto leuen whiche a woman taketh ⁊ hydeth in three peckes of meale, tyll all be leuened.

a man vexed with an vncleane ſpirite, Luke.iii ⁊ he cried, ſaying: Alas, what haue we to dooe with thee thou Jeſus of Nazareth? Art thou come to deſtroye that holye one of God. And Jeſus rebuked hym ſaying: holde thy peace, and come out of the manne. And when the vnclene ſpirite had torne hym, and cryed wyth a loude voyce, he came out of hym. And they were all amaſed, in ſo this? For with aucthoritie commaunded he the foule ſpirites, and thei obeyed him.

And immediatlye his fame ſpred abroade throughoute all the region borderyng on Galile. And foorth with, when they were they tell hym of her. And he came and toke her by the hande, ⁊ lifte her vp: and immediatlye the feuer forſoke her, and ſhe miniſtred vnto them. And at euen when the D ſunne was down, they brought vnto him all that were diſeaſed, and them that wer vexed with deuels. And all the citie was gathered together at the dore, and he healed manye that were ſicke of dyuerſe dyſeaſes,

k.3.b ſuffred not the deuels to ſpeake, becauſe they knewe hym.

And in the mornyng verye earlye, Jeſus (when he was riſen vppe) departed, and wente oute into a ſolitarye place, and there prayed. And Symon and they that were wyth hym, folowed after hym. And when they hadde founde hym, they ſaye vnto hym: all menne ſeke for thee. And he ſayed vnto them: lette vs goe into the next for therfore am I come. And he preached in theyr ſinagoges, in all Galile, and caſte the deuels out. *And there came a leper to at.8.a. hym, beſechyng hym, and knelyng down ke.5.c. and ſaying vnto hym: yf thou wilte thou

I wyll, bee thou cleane. And aſſone as he hadde ſpoken, immediatelye the leproſye departed from hym, and he ſente hym awaye

Moſes commaunded, for a witneſſe vnto began to tell many thynges, and to publiſhe yͤ ſaying: inſomuch that Jeſus could no more openly enter into yͤ citie, but was without in deſerte places: And they came to hym from euerye quarter.

¶ The. ii. Chapter.

¶ He healeth the man of the palſy, calleth Leuy yͤ cuſtomer, eateth with open ſynners, and excuſeth his diſciples.

After a few daies alſo he entred into Capernaū again, ⁊ it was A noiſed that he was ĩ the houſe.
And anone manye were gathered together, inſomuche that nowe there was no roume to receyue them, no not ſo muche as about the dore. And he preached Mat. 9.a the word vnto them. *And they came vnto Luke.5.d. him, bringing one ſicke of yͤ palſy which was borne of foure menne: And when they could not come nie vnto hĩ for preaſe, they vncouered the roofe of the houſe that he was in. And when they had broken vp the roofe, they dyd (with coordes) lette downe the bedde wherin the ſicke of the palſye laye. When Jeſus ſawe theyr faithe, he ſayed vnto the ſicke of the palſye:
*ſonne thy ſinnes bee forgeuen thee.
But there were certayne of the ſcribes ſytting Luke.5.d. B there, and thinking in their heartes:
why dothe he ſpeake theſe blaſphemies?
*Who can forgeue ſynnes, but God onely? Eſa.43.d and.44.d
And immediatlye when Jeſus perceyued in his ſpirite, that they ſo thoughte within themſelues, he ſayeth vnto them:
why thinke ye ſuch thinges ĩ your hertes?
Whether is it eaſier to ſaye to the ſicke of the palſye, thy ſynnes bee forgeuen thee: or to ſaye, aryſe, take vp thy bed, and walke?
But that ye maye knowe, that the ſonne of manne hath power in earth to forgeue ſynnes, he ſpake vnto yͤ ſicke of the palſey:
I ſay vnto thee: *aryſe, and take vp thy Mat.9.a

And immediatly he aroſe, toke vp the bed, John.5.b and went forth before them al: in ſo much that thei wer al amaſed, ⁊ gloryfied God, ſaying: wee neuer ſawe it on thys faſſion.

*And he wente agayn vnto the ſea, and Math.9.a all the people reſorted vnto hym, and he taughte them. And as Jeſus paſſed by, he ſawe Leuye the ſoonne of Alphe, ſytting at the receyte of cuſtome, and ſayde vnto hym: folowe me. And he aroſe, and folowed hym. And it came to paſſe that when Jeſus ſatte at meate in his houſe, many publicanes and ſinners ſate alſo together C at meate wyth Jeſus and hys dyſciples.
For there were manye, that folowed
hym. And when the ſcribes and phariſes ſawe hym eate wyth publicans and ſinners, they ſaide vnto his diſciples: how happeneth it, that he eateth and drynketh with publicans ⁊ ſinners? When Jeſus heard yͭ, he ſaid vnto them: They that bee whole, haue no neede of the phiſicion, but they that are ſicke. *I came not to call the I Tim.i.c righteous

Math .ix.b righteous , but ſynners to repentaunce.
Luke.v.f. * And the diſciples of John & the phariſeis dyd faſt :and they come & ſaye vnto him: Why do the diſciples of John and of the phariſeis faſte, but thy diſciples faſte not? And Jeſus ſaid vnto thẽ: can the children of the weddyng faſt while the bryde grome is with thẽ? As long as they haue the brydegrome wyth them, they cannot faſt. But the daies will come, when the bridegrome ſhalbe taken away from thẽ, and then ſhall they faſt in thoſe dayes.

No man alſo ſoweth a piece of newe cloth vnto an olde garment, els taketh he away the new piece therof frõ the old, and ſo is the rent worſe. And no mã powreth newe wyne into old bottels: els the newe wyne doth burſt the bottels, & the wyne rũneth out, & the bottels are marred. But new wyne muſt be put into newe bottels.
Math.xii a * And it chaunced (again) that he wente
Luk. vi.a. thorow the corne feldes on the Sabboth dayes, & his diſciples began by the waye to plucke the eares of corne, And the phariſes ſayd vnto hym̃: behold, why do they on the Sabboth daies, that which is not lawfull? And he ſaied vnto them: haue ye neuer red what Dauid did, when he had nede, & was an hũgred, both he, and they that wer with hym? * How he went into i.Re, xxi.b. the houſe of God, in the dayes of Abiathar the hie prieſt, & did eate ẏ ſhewbread (whiche is not lawfull to eate, but for ẏ prieſtes onely) & gaue alſo to them which wer wyth hym? And he ſaid vnto thẽ: the Saboth was made for man, and not man for the Saboth. Therfore is the ſonne of man Lorde alſo of the Saboth.

¶ The.iii.Chapter. *

¶ The .i. Chapter.

The conception and byrthe of John the Baptiſt. The conception of Chriſte. The thankefull ſonges of Mary and Zachary.

A THere was in the dayes of Herode the Kyng of Jurye, a certayne prieſt named Zacharias *of the courſe of Abia. And his pa.25.b wife was of the daughters of Aaron: and her name was Elizabeth: they were both righteouſe before God, and walked in all the lawes and ordynaunces of the Lorde, that no man coulde fynde faute with thē. And they had no chylde, becauſe that Elizabeth was barrē: and they both were nowe well ſtricken in age.

And it came to paſſe, that whan Zachary executed the prieſtes office before god, as his courſe came (accordyng to the cuſtome of the prieſtes office) his lotte fell 30.b to burne incenſe. And he *wente into the 9.b temple of the Lorde, and the whole multitude of yͤ people were without in prayer, whyle the incenſe was a burning. And there appeared vnto him an Angel of the Lorde, ſtandyng on the ryght ſyde of the aultare of incenſe. And when Zacharias ſawe him, he was abaſhed, ⁊ feare came on him.

B But the Angell ſayed vnto hym: feare not Zacharye, for thy prayer is hearde. And thy wyfe Elizabeth ſhall beare thee a ſonne, and thou ſhalt call hys name John: and thou ſhalt haue ioy and gladnes, and many ſhall reioyce at his birthe. For he ſhalbee great in the ſight of the Lorde, and ſhall neither drinke wine nor ſtrong drinke. And he ſhalbee filled with the holye goſte, euen from his mothers wombe: ⁊ many of the children of Iſrael ſhall he turne to their Lord God. And he ſhal go before him in the ſpirite ⁊ power of *Helias, to turne the heartes of the fa- *mat. 11.b thers to the children, and the vnbeleuers to the wiſedome of the iuſt men, to make ready a perfecte people for the Lorde.

And Zacharias ſayed vnto the Angell: by what token ſhall I knowe this? For ‡I am olde, and my wyfe well ſtriken in *Ge. 17.b yeres. and.18.b. And the Angell anſwered, ⁊ ſayed vnto hym: I am Gabryell, that ſtande in the preſence of God, ⁊ am ſente to ſpeake vnto thee: ⁊ to ſhewe thee theſe glad tydinges. And behold it ſhall come to paſſe that thou ſhalt bee dumme, and not bee hable to ſpeake, vntyll the day that theſe thynges bee performed, becauſe thou beleuedſt not my wordes, which ſhalbe fulfilled in their ſeaſō. And the people wayted for Zacharias, and meruayled that he taryed in the temple. And when he came out, he could not ſpeake vnto them. And they perceiued, that he had ſeen a viſion in the temple. And he beckened vnto them, and remayned ſpeacheleſſe.

✠And it fortuned, that as ſoone as the C dayes of his offyce were out, he departed into hys owne houſe. And after thoſe dayes, his wife Elizabeth conceiued, and hyd her ſelfe fiue monethes, ſaying: This wiſe hath god dealt with me, in the dayes wherin he hath loked on me, to take from me my rebuke emong menne. And in the ſixte moneth the Angell Gabriell was ſent from God vnto a citie of Galile, named Nazareth, to a virgyn ſpouſed to a manne, whoſe name was Joſeph, of the houſe of Dauyd, and the virgyns name was Mary. And the angel went in vnto her, and ſayd: Haill ful of grace, the Lord is with thee, bleſſed arte thou among women: when ſhe ſaw him, ſhe was abaſhed at his ſaying: and caſt in her mind, what maner of ſalutacion that ſhould bee. And the angel ſayd vnto her: feare not Mary: for thou haſt found grace with God. Behold *thou ſhalt conceiue in thy wombe, *Eſai. 7.c and beare a ſōne, and ‡ſhalt cal his name ‡Mat. 1.c. Jeſus. D Then ſayed Marye vnto the Angell: Howe ſhall this be, ſeyng I knowe not a man. And the Angell anſwered and ſayd vnto her: The holy goſt ſhall come vpon thee, and the power of the higheſt ſhall ouer ſhadowe thee. Therfore alſo that holy thing which ſhalbe borne, ſhalbe called the ſonne of God. And beholde, thy coſin Elizabeth, ſhe hath alſo conceiued a ſõne in her age. And it fortuned, that when Elizabeth hearde the ſalutacion of Mary, the babe ſprang E in her wombe. And Elizabeth was fylled with the holy goſt, and cried with a loude voice, and ſayed: Bleſſed art thou emong women, and bleſſed is the frute of thy wombe: And whence happeneth this to me, that the mother of my Lorde ſhould come to me? For loe, as ſone as the voyce of thy ſalutacion ſounded in myne eares, the babe ſprang in my wombe for ioye. Aſſone as he had thus ſpoken, he ſpatte on the grounde, and made claye of the ſpetle, and rubbed the claye on the eyes of the blinde, and ſaied vnto hym: Gooe waſhe

He himſelfe ſaied: I am euen he. Therfore ſayd thei vnto hym: Howe are thyne eyes opened? He aunſwered and ſayde: the man that is called Ieſus, made claie, and anoynted mine eyes, and ſaied vnto me: Go to the pole Siloe, & waſhe. And when I wente and waſhed, I receiued my ſight. Then ſayed they vnto hym: where is he? He ſayed: I cannot tell.

They broughte to the phariſes, hym that a litle before was blynde: and it was the

Other ſayed: *howe can a man that is a ſinner, dooe ſuche miracles? And there was a ſtryfe among them. Thei ſpake vnto the blinde manne agayne: What ſayeſt thou of hym, becauſe he hath opened thine *Joh.6.f eyes? He ſayed: *He is a prophete.

D But the Jewes dyd not beleue of the manne, (howe that he had beene blynde, & receyued his ſyghte) vntyll they called the father and mother of hym that had receyued his ſighte. And they aſked them ſaying: Js this youre ſonne, whome ye ſaye was borne blynde? Howe dooeth he now ſee then? His father and mother anſwered them, and ſayed: wee knowe that this is our ſonne, and that he was borne blynde, but by what meanes he nowe ſeeth, wee cannot tell: or who hath opened his eyes can not wee tell. He is olde inoughe, aſke hym: let hym anſwere for himſelfe. Suche woordes ſpake his father and mother, becauſe they feared the Jewes. For the E Jewes had conſpired al ready, that if any *Joh.12.f man dyd confeſſe that he was Chriſt, *he ſhould bee excommunicate out of the Sinagoge. Therfore ſaied hys father & mother: he is olde inough, aſke hym. Then againe called they the man that was blind, & ſaide vnto him: geue God the praiſe: we knowe, that this man is a ſynner. He anſwered therfore, and ſaide: whether he be a ſynner or no, J can not tell: One thyng J am ſure of: that where as J was blind, now J ſee. Then ſayd they to him againe: What did he to thee? How opened he thine F eyes? He anſwered them: J tolde you yer whyle, and ye dyd not heare. Wherfore woulde ye heare it agayne? Will ye alſo be hys dyſcyples? Then rated they hym, and ſayde: Bee thou hys dyſcyple. Wee are Moſes dyſciples. We are ſure, that God ſpake vnto Moſes: As for this felow, we knowe not from whence he is. The man aunſwered and ſayed vnto them: this is a merueilous thyng, that ye wote not from whence he is, and yet hath he opened mine eies. For we be ſure, ẏ God heareth not ſĩners. But if any manne be a worſhypper of God, and obedient vnto hys wyll, hym heareth he. Sence the worlde began was it not hearde, that anye manne opened the eyes of one that was borne blind. Jf this man wer not of God, he coulde haue doen nothyng. They aunſwered, and ſaid vnto hym: thou art altogether borne in ſinne, & doeſt ẏ teache vs? And they caſt him out.

Jeſus heard that they had excommunicate hym: and when he had founde him G he ſayed vnto hym: Dooeſt thou beleue on the ſonne of God? He anſwered and ſayed. Who is it Lorde, that J might beleue on hym? And Jeſus ſayed vnto hym: thou haſt ſene him, *& he it is that talketh with *Joh.4.c thee. And he ſayed: Lorde J beleue, and he worſhipped him. ✝ And Jeſus ſaied vnto him: J am come vnto iudgement into this worlde, that they which ſee not, might ſee: and that they whiche ſee, myght bee made blinde. And ſome of the phariſes whiche were wᵗ him, heard theſe wordes, and ſaid vnto him: are we blinde alſo? Jeſus ſayed vnto them: *yf ye were blynde, ye ſhoulde *Jo.15.d haue no ſynne. But nowe ye ſaye, wee ſee: therefore your ſynne remayneth.

Pilate vnto them: take ye hym, and iudge

The.xxi. Chapter. ⊦

He appeareth to hys diſciples agayne by the ſea of Tiberias, and commaundeth Peter earneſtly to fede hys ſhepe.

A Afterwarde did Jeſus ſhew hym ſelfe againe, at the ſea of Tiberias. And on this wiſe ſhewed he hym ſelfe. The other diſciples came by ſhyp, for they were not farre from lande, but as it were two hundred cubites, and they drewe the net with fiſſhes. Aſſone then as they were come to lande, they ſawe hote coles, and fiſhe laide theron, and bread. Jeſus ſayeth vnto thē: D Luke.24.f *brynge of the fiſhe whiche ye haue nowe caught: Simon Peter went vp, and drew the net to lande full of greate fyſhes, an hundred and .liii. And for all there were ſo many, yet was not the net broken. Jeſus ſayeth vnto them: come and dine. And none of the diſcyples durſt aſke him: what arte thou? For they knewe that it was the Lord. Jeſus then came, and toke breade, and gaue them, and fiſhe lykewyſe. This is now the thyrde time that Jeſus appeared to hys diſciples, after that he was ryſen agayne from death. ⊦

Then wente thys ſaying abrode amonge the brethren, that the diſciple ſhould not dye. yet Jeſus ſayde not to hym, he ſhall not die: but, yf I wil that he tary tyll I come, what is that to the? The ſame diſciple is he, which teſtifieth of theſe thinges, and wrote theſe thynges. And we know, that his teſtymony is true. ⊦

The diſſemblyng of Ananias and Saphyra is punyſhed. Myracles are done by the Apoſtles, whiche are taken, but the angell of God bryngeth them out of prieſon. They are brought before the councell. The ſentence of Gamaliel. The Apoſtles are betē, they reioyce in trouble.

A Certayne man named Ananias, with Saphyra his wyfe, ſolde a poſſeſſion, and kept away part of the pryce (his wife alſo being of counſell) and brought a certayne parte, & layde it downe at the Apoſtles feete. But Peter ſayd: Ananias, howe is it, that Sathan hath fylled thyne hearte, that thou ſhouldeſt lye vnto the holy goſt, & kepe awaye parte of the pryce of the lande? perteyned it not vnto the onely? and after it was ſolde, was it not in thyne owne power? Why haſte thou conceyued this thyng in thine herte? Thou haſt not lyed vnto mē, but vnto God. When Ananias hearde theſe wordes, he fell downe, and gaue vp the goſt. And great feare came on all thē, that hearde theſe thynges. And the yong men roſe vp, and put him aparte, and caryed hym out, and buryed hym.

B And it fortuned, that (as it were aboute the ſpace of three houres after) his wyfe came in, ignoraunte of that whiche was done. And Peter ſayd vnto her: Tell me, ſolde ye the lande for ſo muche? And ſhe ſayd: yea, for ſo muche. Then Peter ſayd vnto her: why haue ye agreed together, to tempt the ſpryte of the Lorde? Beholde the feete of them whiche haue buryed thy huſband, are at the doore, & ſhall cary the out. Then fel ſhe downe ſtrayght way at his feete, and yelded vp the goſt. The .xvi. Chapter.

Timothy is circumciſed, Paul preacheth at Phylyppos, and there is he put in preſon.

A Then came he to Derba and to Liſtra. And beholde, a certaine diſcyple was there named Timotheus, a womans ſõ, which was a Jewesse and beleued: but hys father was a Greke. Of whõ reported well the brethren that were at Liſtra and Iconium. Hym wold Paul that he ſhoulde go forthe with hym, and toke and circumciſed hym, becauſe of the Jewes whiche wer in thoſe quarters: for they knew all, that his father was a Greke. As they wẽt thorow the cities, they deliuered them the decrees Act.15.c for to kepe, that were * ordeyned of the Apoſtles and elders, whiche were at Jeruſalem. And ſo wer the congregacions ſtabliſſhed in the faith, and encreaſed in nombre dayly.

B When they had gone thorowe out Phrigia, and the region of Galacia, and * were Rom.1.c. forbidden of the holy ghoſt to preache the worde in Aſia, they came to Myſia, and ſought to go into Bethinia. But the ſprite ſuffred them not. But whan they had gon Acte.18.c thorowe Miſya, they came downe to * Troada. And a viſyon appeared to Paul in the nyght. There ſtode a man of Macedonia and prayed hym, ſaying: come in to Macedonia, and helpe vs. After he had ſene the viſion, immediatly wee prepared to go into Macedonia, being certified that the Lorde had called vs for to preache the Goſpell vnto them. Whan we loced forth then from Troada, we came with a ſtrait C courſe to Samothracia, and the nexte day to Neapolim, & frõ thence to Philippos, whiche is the chiefe citie in the partes of Macedonia, and a free citie.

Wee were in that citie abydyng certayne dayes. es.13.d And on the Sabboth dayes we went oute of the citie beſydes a ryuer, where men were wonte to praye. And we ſate downe, and ſpake vnto the wemen whiche reſorted thyther. And a certayne woman (named Lidia) a ſeller of purple of the citie of Thyatira, whiche worſhipped God, gaue vs audience. Whoſe heart the Lorde opened, that ſhe attended vnto the thynges whiche Paul ſpake. When ſhe was baptiſed, and her houſholde, ſhe D beſoughte vs, ſaying: If ye thynke that I beleue on the Lord, come into my houſe, and abide there. And ſhe * conſtrayned vs. Gen.19.a

And it fortuned as we went to praier, Luk.14.e and.24.c a certayne damoſel poſſeſſed with a ſprite *1.re.28.a that propheciyed, met vs, whiche brought her maſter and maſtres muche vauntage with propheciyng. The ſame folowed Paul and vs, and cryed, ſaying: * theſe Mar.5.a men are the ſeruauntes of the moſte hye God, whiche ſhewe vnto vs the waye of ſaluacion. And thys dyd ſhe many dayes. But Paul not content turned aboute, and ſayde to the ſprite. I commaunde the * in mark.16.d the name of Jeſu Chriſte, that thou come oute of her. And he came oute the ſame houre.

And when her maſter and maſtres ſawe E that * the hope of their gayne was gone, Acte.19.c they caught Paul & Sylas, and drue thẽ into the market place vnto the rulers, and brought thẽ to the officers, ſaying: Theſe menne trouble oure citie, ſeyng they are Jewes, and preache ordinaunces whiche are not lawfull for vs to receaue, nether to obſerue, ſeyng we are Romaynes. And the people ranne agaynſt them, and the officers rente their clothes, and commaunded them to * bee beaten with roddes. 2.Cor.11.f And when they had beaten them ſore, they caſte them into preſon, commaundyng the tayler of the preſon to kepe them diligently. Whiche when he had receaued ſuche commaundement, thruſte them into the inner preſon, and made their fete faſt in the ſtockes.

At midnight Paul and Sillas prayed, & lauded God. F And ẏ preſoners hearde thẽ. And ſodenly ther was a great earthquake, ſo that the foundacion of the preſõ was ſhaken, & * immediatly al the dores Acte.5.a and.12.b. opened, and euery mans bandes wer leuſed. When the keper of the prieſon waked out of his ſlepe and ſawe the prieſõ dores open, he drew oute his ſwearde, & would haue kylled hym ſelfe, ſuppoſyng that the prieſoners had ben fled. But Paul cryed with a loude voyce, ſaying: doe thy ſelfe no harme, for we are all here. Then he

And when it was daye, the officers ſent

The keper of the prieſon tolde this ſaying to Paul: the officers haue ſente worde to them: they haue beaten vs openly vncondemned,

When they hearde theſe ſayinges, they were full of wꝛath, and cryed out, ſaying: Greate is Diana of the Epheſians. And all the citie was on a roꝛe, and they ruſhed into the cōmune hall with one aſſent, and caught Gaius ⁊ Ariſtarcus, men of Macedonia, Pauls companyons. Foꝛ we are in ieopardy to bee accuſed of thys dayes vpꝛoure, foꝛ as muche as there is no cauſe wherby wee may geue a rekenyng of thys concourſe of people. And when he had thus ſpoken, he let the congregacion departe.

The .xx. Chapter.

Paul goeth into Macedonia and into Grece. At Troas he rayſeth vp a dead body. At Epheſus he calleth the elders of the congregacion together, committeth the kepyng of Gods flocke vnto them, warneth them of falſe teachers, maketh hys praier with them, and departeth to ſhyppe.

After that yͤ rage was ceaſed, Paul called yͤ diſciples vnto hym, ⁊ toke hys leaue of them, ⁊ departed foꝛ to go into Macedonia. A And when he had gone ouer thoſe parties, and had geuen thē a long exhoꝛtacion, he came into Grece, and there abode .iii. monethes. And when the Jewes laide waite foꝛ him, as he was aboute to ſayle into Siria, he purpoſed to returne thoꝛow Macedonia. There accompanyed hym into Aſia, Sopater of Berrea, ⁊ of Theſſalonia Ariſtarcus and Secundus, and Gayus of Derba, and Timotheus, ⁊ out of Aſia Tichicus and * Trophimus. These goyng befoꝛe taryed vs at Troas. B Actes.21.f 2.tim.4.d And we ſailed awaye from Philippos after the dayes of ſwete bꝛead, and came vnto them to Troas in fyue dayes, where we abode ſeuen dayes.

And vpon one of the Sabboth daies, whan the diſciples came together foꝛ to bꝛeake bꝛeade, Paul pꝛeached vnto them (ready to departe on the moꝛow) and continued the pꝛeachyng vnto midnyght. And there were many lightes in the chamber, where we were gathered together: ⁊ there ſate in a wyndowe a certayne yonge man (named Euticus) beyng fallen into a depe ſleepe. And as Paul was pꝛeachyng he was the moꝛe ouercome with ſlepe, and fel downe from the thiꝛde lofte, ⁊ was takē vp dead. But whā Paul went downe, he fell on hym * and embꝛaced hym ⁊ ſaid: C make nothyng a do, foꝛ his lyfe is in him. *3.re.17.d 4.reg.4.f. Luk.7.c Actes.9.g So when he was come vp agayne, ⁊ had bꝛoken the bꝛeade, ⁊ eatē, ⁊ talked a long whyle (euen till the moꝛnyng) at the laſte he departed. And they bꝛought the yonge man aliue, and were not a litle confoꝛted.

And we went afoꝛe to ſhyppe, ⁊ leuſed vnto Aſſon there to receaue Paul. For ſo had he appoynted, and wold hym ſelfe goe

Aſſon, we toke hym in, and came to Mitylenes.
And we ſayled thence, and came the

and called the elders of the congregacion.
Whiche when they were come to hym, he

But this I cōfeſſe vnto thee, that after D

When Felix hearde theſe thinges, he deferred them, for he knew very well of that way, and ſayd: when Liſias the captayne is come downe, I will knowe the vtmoſt of your mater. And *he commaūded *Ie.39.c

And after a certayne dayes, whē Felix F came with hys wyfe Druſilla (whiche was a Iewesse) he called furth Paul, & heard him of the faith, which is toward Chriſt. And as he preached of righteouſnes, temperaunce, & iudgement to come, Felix trembled, and anſwered: Goe thy waye for thys tyme: when I haue a conuenient ſeaſon, I will ſende for thee. He hoped alſo that money ſhould haue ben geuen hym of Paule, that he myghte leuſe him: wherfore he called him the oftener

The.xxv. Chapter.

The Jewes accuſe Paul before Feſtus, he appealeth vnto the Emperour, and is ſent to Roome.

A When Feſtus had receiued ẏ office, after three dayes he aſcended frō Ceſarea vnto Jeruſalē. Then enformed hym the hye prieſtes and the chiefe of the Jewes, of Paul. And they beſought hym, & deſired fauour agaynſt hym, that he would ſend for him to Jeruſalē: & they laid awayte for hym in the way, to kyll hym. Feſtus anſwered, that Paul ſhoulde be kept at Ceſarea: but ẏ he himſelfe would ſhortly depart thither. Let thē therfore (ſayd he) whiche among you are able, come down with vs, and accuſe hym if there be any faute in the man.

B When he had taryed there among thē more then .x. dayes, he went down vnto Ceſarea, & the next day ſate down in the iudgemēt ſeate, & commaunded Paul to be broughte. Which when he was come, the Jewes which wer come from Jeruſalem, ſtode about hym, and layd many & grieuous complayntes againſt Paul, which they could not proue as long as he anſwered for himſelf * that he had neither Acte.24.e and.28.d agaynſt the law of the Jewes, neyther agaynſt the temple, nor yet agaynſt Ceſar offended any thing at all.

C Acte.23.f Feſtus * willyng to doe the Jewes a pleaſure, anſwered Paul and ſayd: wilt thou go vp to Jeruſalem, & there be iudged ef theſe thiges before me? Thē ſaid Paul: J ſtand at Ceſars iudgemēt ſeat, wher J ought to be iudged. To the Jewes haue J no harme done, as thou very well knoweſt. If J haue hurt thē, or committed any thing worthy of deth, J refuſe not to dye. If none of theſe thinges are, wherof they accuſe me, no man may deliuer me to them. J appeale vnto Ceſar. Then ſpake Feſtus with deliberacion, & anſwered. Thou haſt appealed vnto Ceſar: vnto Ceſar ſhalte thou goe.

D And after a certayn dayes, kyng Agrippa and Bernice came vnto Ceſarea to ſalute Feſtus. And whē thei had ben there Acte.24.a a good ſeaſon, Feſtus rehearſed Pauls cauſe vnto the kyng, ſaying: * there is a certain mā left in prieſon of Felix, about whom when J came to Jeruſalem * the Acte.24.a hie prieſtes and elders of the Jewes enformed me, & deſired to haue iudgement agaynſt him. E To whom J anſwered: It is not the maner of the Romaynes, for fauor to deliuer any mā, that he ſhoulde periſh, before that he which is accuſed, haue the accuſars before hym, and haue lycence to anſwere for hymſelfe, concernyng the crime layde againſt him. Therfore, when they were come hither, without any delay, on the morow J ſate to geue iudgemente, and commaunded the man to be brought furth. Agaynſte whō when ẏ accuſers ſtode vp * they brought Acte.23.f none accuſacyon of ſuche thynges as J ſuppoſed: but had certayn queſtions agaynſt hym of theyr owne ſuperſticion, and of one Jeſus which was dead, whō Paule affirmed to be alyue. F And becauſe J doubted of ſuch maner of queſtiōs, J aſked him, whether he would go to Jeruſalem, and there bee iudged of theſe matters. But when Paul had appealed to be kept vnto the knowlege of Ceſar, J commaunded him to be kepte, tyll J might ſend him to Ceſar. Agrippa ſayd vnto Feſtus: J would alſo heare the mā my ſelfe. To morow (ſayd he) thou ſhalt heare hym. And on the morow when Agryppa was come and Bernyce, with great pompe, and were entred into the counſell houſe, with the captaynes and chife men of the citie, at Feſtus commaūdement was Paul broughte furth. G And Feſtus ſayde: Kyng Agrippa, and all ye men whiche are here preſent with vs: ye ſe thys man, about whom all the multitude of ẏ Jewes haue ētreated me both at Jeruſalem & alſo here: crying, that he ought not to liue any lenger. Yet foūd J nothyng worthy of death, ẏ he had committed. Neuertheles, ſeing that he hath appealed to Ceſar, J haue determyned to ſend him: Of whō, J haue no certayn thing to write vnto my lorde. Wherfore J haue brought him vnto you, & ſpecially vnto thee, O king Agrippa, ẏ after examinacion had, J might haue ſumwhat to write. For me thynketh it vnreaſonable for to ſend a priſoner, & not to ſhew the cauſes which are layd agaynſt hym.

The.xxvi. Chapter.

King Agrippa heareth Paul, which telleth him his calling from the beginning.

The .xxvii. Chapter.

Paul ſhippeth toward Rome, Julius the Captayne entreateth hym curteouſlye, and at the laſt they ſuffer ſhipwracke.

When

A WHEN it was cōcluded, that we ſhould ſaile into Italy, they delyuered both Paule ⁊ certain other prieſoners, vnto one named Iulius, an vnder captaine of Ceſars ſouldiers. And wee entred in to a ſhip of Adramicium, ⁊ leuſed from lande, appointed to ſayle by the coaſtes of Aſia, one* Ariſtarcus out of Macedonia of the countrey of Theſſalonia, tarying ſtil with vs. Colo.4.a. And the next daye we came to Sidō. And Iulius‡ courteouſly entreated Paul, ⁊ gaue him libertye, to go vnto hys frendes, and to refreſhe hymſelfe. Iere.39.c Acte.24.e And when wee had launched from thence, wee ſayled harde by Cipres, becauſe the wyndes were contrary. And when wee had ſayled ouer the ſea of Cilicia, and Pamphilia, wee came to Mira whyche is in Licia.

B And there the vnder capytaine founde a ſhyp of Alexandria ready, that ſailed into Italy, and he put vs therin. And when wee had ſayled ſlowely many dayes, and ſcace were come ouer agaynſt Gnidon (becauſe the wynde withſtode vs) we ſayled harde by ẏ coaſte of Candy, ouer againſt Salmo, and with muche worke ſayled beyond it, and came vnto a place whiche is called the faire hauens. Nye wherevnto was the cytye of Lacea. When muche tyme was ſpent, and when ſaylyng was nowe ieoperdeous, becauſe alſo that they had ouerlong faſted, Paul putte them in remembraunce, and ſayde vnto them:

C Syrs I perceyue ẏ this voyage wil be w̄ hurte ⁊ muche damage, not of the ladinge and ſhip onely, but alſo of your liues: Neuertheleſſe the vnder capitayne beleued the gouernoure ⁊ the maſter of the ſhip, more then thoſe thynges whyche were ſpoken of Paule. And becauſe the hauen was not cōmodious to winterin, many toke counſayll to departe thence, if by any meanes they myght attaine to Phenices, and there to wynter, whiche is an hauen of Candy and lyeth towarde the ſouthweſt ⁊ northweſt winde. When the ſouth wind blewe they ſuppoſing to obtaine theyr purpoſe, leuſed vnto Aſſon, ⁊ ſayled paſt al Candy.

But not longe after there aroſe againſt D their purpoſe, a flawe of winde out of the northeaſt. And when the ſhip was caught and coulde not reſiſte the winde, we lette her goe, and draue with the wether. But wee were caried into an yle whiche is named Clauda, and hadde muche worke to come by a boate, whiche they tooke vp, and vſed helpe, and made faſt the ſhip, fearing leſte they ſhould fall into the Sirtes. And ſo they lette downe a veſſell, and were caried. The nexte daye (when wee were toſſed with an exceading tempeſt) they lightned the ſhip, and the thirde daye we caſte out with our owne handes, the tacklyng of the ſhip. When at the laſte, neyther the ſunne nor ſtarres in manye daies appeared, and no ſmall tempeſte laye vpon vs, all hope that wee ſhould eſcape, was then taken awaye. But after longe abſtinence, Paule ſtode forth in the middeſt of them, and ſayde: Sirs, ye ſhoulde haue harkened to me, and not haue leuſed from Candy, neyther to haue brought vnto vs this harme and loſſe. And nowe I exhorte you to bee of good chere. For there ſhalbee no loſſe of anye mannes lyfe emong you, ſaue of the ſhip onelye, for there ſtoode by me this night the angel of God, whoſe I am, and whome I ſerue, ſaying: feare not Paule * thou muſte bee broughte before Ceaſar. *Acte.25.c And loe, God hath geuen thee all them that ſayle with thee. Wherefore ſirs bee of good chere: for I beleue God, that it ſhalbe euen as it was told me. Howbeit we muſte be caſt into ‡a certaine Ilonde. Acte.28.a

E But when the fourtenth nyghte was come (as we were ſailyng in Adria about midnighte) the ſhipmen demed that there appeared ſome countrey vnto them: and ſounded, and founde it twentye fadoms. And when they hadde gone a litle ferther, they ſounded againe, and found fiftene fadoms. Then fearyng leſte they ſhoulde haue fallen on ſome rocke, they caſte foure ancres out of the ſterne, and wiſhed for the daye. As the ſhipmen were aboute to flee out of ẏ ſhip (whē they had let down the boate into the ſea, vnder a couloure, as though they woulde haue caſte ancres out of the foreſhip:) Paule ſayed vnto the vnder captayne and to the ſouldiours, excepte theſe abide in the ſhip, ye cannot bee ſafe. Then the ſouldiours cut of the rope of the boate, and lette it fall awaye.

And whan the daye began to appeare, Paule beſought them al to take meat, ſaying: this is ẏ fourtenth daye that ye haue taried and continued faſting, receyuyng nothyng at all. Wherefore, I praye you to take meat: for this no dout is for youre health: for * there ſhall not an heere fall frō the head of any of you. *mat.11.c Luke.12.a And whē he hadde thus ſpoken, he tooke breade and ‡ gaue thankes to God in preſence of them al: and ‡mar.6.c and.8.a i.tim.4.a

F whan he had broken it, he beganne to eate.
Then wer thei al of good cheare, and they alſo tooke meate. Wee were al together in the ſhip, two hundred threſcore and ſixtene ſoules. And when they had eaten inough, they lightened the ſhippe, and caſte out the wheate into the ſea.

When it was daye they knewe not the lande, but they ſpyed a certayne hauen with a bancke, in to the whiche they were mynded (yf it were poſſible) to thruſte in the ſhip. And when they had taken vp the ancres, they committed themſelues vnto the ſea, and leuſed the rudder bondes, and hoyſed vppe the mayne ſaile to the wynde, and drue to land. And whan thei chaunced on a place, whiche had the ſea on both the ſides, they thruſte in the ſhip. And the foreparte ſtucke faſte and moued not, but the hinder parte brake with the violence of the waues.

The Souldiers counſell was to kyll the G priesoners, leſte any of them, when he had ſwome out, ſhoulde runne awaye. But the vnder captain willing to ſaue Paule, kept them from theyr purpoſe, and commaunded that they whiche coulde ſwim, ſhould caſt themſelues firſt into the ſea, and ſcape to lande. And the other he commaunded to go, ſome on bordes, and ſome on broken peces of the ſhippe. And ſo it came to paſſe that they eſcaped all ſafe to lande.

good that I would, do I not: but yͤ euyll whiche I woulde not, that do I. yf I do that I woulde not, then is it not I that do it, but ſynne that dwelleth in me. I fynde then by the lawe, that when I woulde do good, euill is preſent with me. For I delite in the lawe of God, after the inwarde manne. But I ſe another law in my members, rebellyng agaynſte the lawe of my mynde, and ſubduyng me vnto the law of ſinne, whiche is in my members. O wretched man that I am: who ſhall deliuer me from this bodye ſubdued vnto death? I thanke God throughe Jeſus Chriſte oure Lorde. So then, with the mynde I ſerue the lawe of God, but with the fleſhe the lawe of ſynne.

The.viii.Chapter.

The lawe of the ſpirite geueth lyfe: The ſpirite of God maketh vs Gods childrē & heyrs with Chriſt. The aboundant loue of God cannot be ſeperated.

THere is then no damnacion to thē A which are in Chriſt Jeſu, which walke not after the fleſh, but after the ſpirite. For the lawe of the ſpirite of lyfe throughe Jeſus Chriſt, hath John.8.d made me* free from the lawe of ſynne, and Rom.6.d death. For ‡ what the law could not doe (in ‡Hebr.7.c aſmuche as it was weake becauſe of the fleſhe) that performed God, and *ſente his Luke.20.b ſonne in the ſimilitude of ſynfull fleſhe, and John.3.b by

by ſynne damned ſynne in the fleſhe: that the righteouſnes of the law myghte bee fulfilled in vs, whiche walke not after the fleſh, but after the ſpirite. For they yͭ are carnall, are carnallye mynded. But they that are ſpirituall, are goſtly mynded. To be carnally mīded, is death. But to be ſpiritually mīded, is life & peace. ✝

B Becauſe that the fleſhly mind is enmitie againſt God: for it is not obedient to the law of God, neither can be: So then they that are in the fleſhe, cannot pleaſe god.

But ye are not in the fleſhe, but in the ſpirite: if ſo be yͭ the ſpirite of God dwel in you. If any mā haue not the ſpirite of Chriſt, the ſame is none of his. If Chriſt be in you, yͤ body is ded becauſe of ſinne: but the ſpirite is lyfe for righteouſnes ſake. Wherfore, if the ſpirite of him that rayſed vp Jeſus from deathe, dwell in you: euē he yͭ raiſed vp Chriſt frō death, ſhal quicken youre mortall bodyes, becauſe of his ſpirite that dwelleth in you.

C *Therfore brethrē we are detters, not to the fleſhe, to lyue after yͤ fleſhe. For if ye liue after the fleſhe, ye ſhal dye. But if ye (through the ſpirite) do mortify the dedes of yͤ body, ye ſhal liue. For as many as are led by yͤ ſpirit of god, they are the ſonnes of God, for ye haue not receiued the ſpirite of bondage to feare any Gala.4.a 1.Tim.1.b more, but *ye haue receiued the ſpirite of adopcion, wherby we crie: Abba father. 2.Cor.1.d and.5.a Ephe.1.a *The ſame ſpirite certifyeth our ſpirite that we are the ſonnes of God. Yf we be ſonnes, then are we alſo heires, yͤ heires I meane of God, and heyres annexed with Chriſt: if ſo be that we ſuffer with him, that we maye be alſo glorifyed together with hym. ✝

D 1.Cor.5.a *For I ſuppoſe that the afflicćons of this lyfe, are not woorthy of the glory which ſhalbe ſhewed vpon vs. ‡For the feruent deſyre of yͤ creature abydeth, loking whē yͤ ſonnes of god ſhal appeare, becauſe the creature is ſubdued to vanitie againſt yͤ wil therof, but for his will which hath ſubdued yͤ ſame in hope. For the ſame creature ſhalbe deliuered from the bondage of corrupciō, into yͤ gloryous libertie of the ſōnes of god. For we know yͭ euery creature groneth with vs alſo, and trauayleth in payne, euen vnto thys tyme. Not onelye it, but we alſo which haue the firſt fruites of the ſpirite mourne in our ſelues alſo, & waite for yͤ adopcion (of the children of God) euen the deliueraunce of our bodye. ✝ *For we are ſaued by hope. But hope yͭ is ſene, is no hope. For how cā a mā hope for yͭ which he ſeeth? But and if we hope for yͭ we ſee not, then do we wᵗ pacience abyde for it. E

Likewiſe, the ſpirit alſo helpeth our infirmities. For we know not what to deſyre as we ought: but the ſpirite maketh interceſſiō for vs, with gronynges which cannot bee expreſſed. And *he that ſearcheth the heartes ‡knoweth what is the meanyng of the ſpirite: for he maketh interceſſion for the ſainctes accordyng to the pleaſure of God. ✝ 1.Pa.28.b Pſal.7.c Jere.17.b ‡Mat.6.b

*We know yͭ all thinges worke for the beſt vnto them that loue God, which alſo are called of purpoſe. For thoſe which he knew before, he alſo ordeined before, that they ſhould be lyke faſhioned vnto the ſhape of his ſonne, yͭ he might be the firſt begottē ſonne amōg many brethrē. Moreouer, whom he appointed before, them alſo he called. And whome he hath called, them alſo he iuſtified: and whom he iuſtifyed, them he alſo glorifyed.

What ſhall we then ſay to theſe thynges? *if God be on our ſyde, who can be agaynſt vs? Nu.14.b whiche ſpared not his owne ſonne, *but gaue him for vs al: how can It be, yͭ with him he ſhoulde not geue vs all thinges alſo? Luk.20.b Joh.3.b Eſay.53.b who ſhall lay any thing to the charge of Gods choſen? It is God yͭ iuſtifieth: who is he that can cōdemne? it is Chriſt which died, ye rather which is riſen again, which is alſo on the right hand of god, & maketh interceſſiō for vs.

Who ſhal ſeperate vs from the loue of God? ſhal tribulaciō, or anguiſh, or perſecucion, either hunger, either nakednes, either parel, either ſword? As it is written: *for thy ſake are we killed all daye long, Pſa.44.d & are coūted as ſhepe appointed to be ſlayne. Neuertheles, in all theſe thynges we ouercome thorowe hym yͭ loued vs. For I am ſure, that neither deth, neither lyfe, neither angels, nor rule, neither power, neither thinges preſente, neither thynges to come, neither heigth, neither lowth, neyther any other creature ſhalbe able to depart vs from the loue of god, ſeperat which is in Chriſt Jeſu our Lorde. ✝ and lette vs put on the armoure of light. Let vs walke honeſtly, as it were Luke.21.f. in the day light: *Not in eating and drinking, Eccl.31.c neither in chambryng and wantonnes, and.37.d. neither in ſtrife and enuying: but put ye on the lord Jeſus Chriſt. ✠ And make not prouiſion for the fleſhe, to fulfill the luſtes of it.

The.xiiii. Chapter.

The weake ought not to be deſpyſed. No manne ſhould offend an others conſcienſe. Agayne, for outward thinges, ſhould no man condemne another.

Hym that is weake in the faith, A receiue: not in dyſputyng and troubling his conſcience. One beleueth that he maye eate all thing. Another whiche is weake, eateth hearbes. Let not him that eateth, deſpiſe him ẏ eateth not. And let not hym which eateth not ‡iudge him ẏ eateth. For God ‡Ro.
hath receiued hĩ. *What art thou ẏ iudgeſt another mans ſeruaunt whether he *Jac.
ſtand or fal? ẏ pertaineth vnto his owne maſter: yea he ſhalbe holdẽ vp, ẏ he may ſtand. For god is able to make him ſtãd.

This man putteth difference betwene B day and day. Another man counteth all dayes alyke. Let euery mannes mind ſatiſfye hymſelfe. He that obſerueth the day, doeth it vnto the lorde. And he that doth not obſerue the day, doth it for the Lord alſo. He ẏ eateth, doth it to pleaſe the lorde, for he geueth God thankes.
And he ẏ eateth not, eateth not to pleaſe
the lorde withal, and geueth God thankes.
For none of vs liueth for hymſelfe, and no mã dyeth for himſelfe. For if we liue, we liue vnto ẏ lorde. And if we die, we dye vnto the lorde. Whether we liue therfore or dye, we are the Lordes. For Chriſt therfore died, ⁊ roſe again, ⁊ reuiued, ẏ he might be *lord of ded ⁊ quicke. Actes.2.f.
But why doeſt thou thẽ iudge thy brother? Phil.2.b Either why doſt thou deſpyſe thy C brother? We ſhalbe al brought before ẏ iudgement ſeat of Chriſt. For it is written:
as truely as I liue ſayth the Lord:
*all knees ſhall bowe to me, and all tonges ſhall geue a prayſe to God. So Eſai.45.c ſhall euery one of vs geue accomptes of Phil.2.b hymſelfe to God. Lette vs not therefore iudge one another any more.

But iudge this rather, ẏ no man put a ſtumbling blocke, or an occaſiõ to fal in hys brothers waye. For * I know, ⁊ am meat, now walkeſt thou not charitably.

D Deſtroy not him wͭ thy meat for whom Chriſt dyed. Cauſe not your treaſure to be euil ſpoken of. For the kyngdome of god is not meat ⁊ drink, but righteouſnes, ⁊ peace, and ioy in the holy goſt. For he that in theſe thynges ſerueth Chriſte, pleaſeth God, ⁊ is commended of men.

Let vs therefore folow thoſe thynges which make for peace, ⁊ thinges wherwͭ one may edifye another. Deſtroy not the worke of God for a litle meates ſake. *
*1.Tit.1.d All thynges are pure: but it is euyll for yͤ man, which eateth with hurte of conſcience.
It is good neyther to eate fleſhe, neither to drinke wyne, neither any thing wherby thy brother ſtũbleth eyther falleth, or is made weake. Haſt thou faith? haue it with thy ſelfe before god. Happy is he that condemneth not hymſelfe, in the thyng whiche he aloweth. For he that maketh conſcience is damned, if he eate: becauſe he eateth not of faithe. For whatſoeuer is not of fayth, that ſame is ſinne.

The firſte Epiſtle of Sainct Paule the Apoſtle to the Corinthians.

The.i.Chapter.

He commendeth the Corinthians, exhorteth them to bee of one mynde, and rebuketh the deuiſion that was among them, worldly wiſedome is fooliſhenes before God, yea there is no wiſedom but in the deſpyſed croſſe of Chriſt.

A PAule called an Apoſtle of Ieſus Chriſte throughe the will of God, and brother Soſtenes. Unto the congregacyon of God, which is at Corinthum. To thē that are ſanctifyed by Chriſte Ieſu, called ſainctes, with all that call on the name of oure Lorde Ieſus Chriſte in euerye place, Rom.1.a Gala.1.a eyther of theyres or of oures. ‡ Grace bee vnto you, and peace from God oure father, and from the lord Ieſus Chriſt.

*I thanke my God alwayes on your behalfe, for the grace of God whiche is geuen you by Ieſus Chriſte, that in all thynges ye are made ryche by hym, in all vtteraunce, and in all knowelage, by the whiche thynges the teſtymonye of Ieſus Chriſt was confyrmed in you, ſo that ye are behynde in no gyfte, waytyng for the appearyng of oure Lorde Ieſus Chriſte, whiche ſhal alſo ſtrength you vnto the ende, that ye may be blameleſſe in the daye (of the cummyng) of oure num.23.c 1.Cor.10.c *God is faythefull, by whome ye are called vnto the feloweſhyppe of hys ſonne Ieſus Chriſte oure Lorde. I beeſeche you brethren by the name of oure Lorde Ieſus Chriſte, that ye all ſpeake one thynge, and that there bee no dyſſencyon amonge you: but that ye maye bee a whole body: of one mynde and of one meanyng. For it is ſhewed vnto me (my brethren) of you, by them whiche are of the houſe of Cloe, that there is ſtryfes among you. I ſpeake of the ſame that euerye one of you ſayth: I holde of Paule: I holde of * Apollo: I holde of Cephas: I holde of Chriſte. Is Chriſte deuyded? Was Paule crucifyed for you? eyther were ye baptiſed in the name of Paul? Acte.18.a 1.Cor.3.a. and.16.c I thank God that I baptyſed none of you, but Criſpus and Gayus: leſte anye ſhould ſaye, that I had baptyſed in myne owne name. I baptiſed alſo the houſe of Stephana. C

Ferthermore knowe I not, whether I baptiſed any manne (of you) or no. For Chriſte ſente me not to baptiſe, but to preache the Goſpell, not with wiſedom of wordes, leſt the croſſe of Chriſt ſhoulde haue bee made of none effecte. For the preachynge of the croſſe is to them that periſhe, foolyſhenes: but vnto vs whiche are ſaued, * It is the power *Ro.1.b

Where is the ſcribe? Where is the dyſputer of thys worlde? Hathe not God made the wyſedome of thys worlde foolyſhenes?

For after that the worlde through wiſedome, knewe not God in the wiſedome of God, it pleaſed God through foolyſhenes of preachyng, to ſaue them that beleue. D For * the Iewes require a ſygne, and the Grekes ſeeke after wiſedome. Mat.12.d Luk.11.d Ioh.6.d But we preache Chriſt crucifyed, vnto the Iewes an occaſyon of fallyng, and vnto the Greekes foolyſhenes, but vnto them whiche are called both of the Iewes and Greekes, we preache Chriſt the power of God, and the wiſedome of God. For the foolyſhenes of God, is wyſer then menne, and the weakenes of God is ſtronger then menne. Brethren, ye ſee your callyng, howe that not many wyſe menne after the fleſhe, not many mighty, not many of hye degree, are called: but God hath choſen the foolyſhe thinges of the worlde, to confounde the wiſe. And god hath choſē the weke thinges of the world, to confound thinges which are mighty. And vile thinges of ẏ world, and thinges which are deſpiſed hath god choſen, yea ⁊ thinges of no reputaciō, for to bring to nought thinges of reputacion, ẏ no fleſhe should reioyce in hys preſence. And of hym are ye in Chriſte Ieſu, which of god is made vnto vs wiſedome, and ryghteouſnes, and ſanctiſainctifiyng, and redempcion. That according as it is written: he whiche reioyſeth, ſhould reioyſe in the Lorde.

The.ii.Chapter.

It is not eloquence and glorious painted wordes of worldly wyſdome, that can edifie, and conuerte ſoules vnto Chriſt, but the playne wordes of the ſcripture, for they make mēciō of him & his croſſe.

A AND I brethren (when I came to you) came not in gloriouſnes of wordes, or of wiſedome, ſhewyng vnto you ẏ teſtimony of God.
Neither ſhewed I my ſelfe that I knewe any thyng emong you, ſaue Ieſus Chryſte, euen the ſame that was crucyfyed. And I was emong you in weaknes, & in feare, and in muche trembling.
And my wordes and my preaching was not with entiſyng woordes of mannes wiſedome: but in ſhewyng of the ſpirite and of power, that your fayth ſhoulde not ſtande in the wyſedome of menne, but in the power of God.

B We ſpeake of wyſedome emong them that are perfecte: not ẏ wiſedome of thys worlde, neither of ẏ rulers of this world, (whiche go to naught) but wee ſpeake
the wyſedome of God whiche is in ſecret

Actes.13.d *none of the rulers of thys worlde woulde not haue crucified the Lorde of

Rom.8.a But God hath opened theim vnto vs by his ſpirite. For *the ſpirite ſearcheth all thinges, yea the botome of Goddes ſecretes.
For what manne knoweth ẏ thynges of a manne: ſaue the ſpirite of man which is wythin hym? Euen ſo the thynges of God knoweth no manne, but the ſpirite of God. And wee haue not receyued the ſpirite of the world: but ẏ ſpirite whiche commeth of God, for to knowe ẏ thynges ẏ are geuē to vs of God, whych thynges alſo wee ſpeake, not with woordes that mannes wiſedom teacheth, but with woordes which the holy ghooſte doeth teache, making ſpiritual cōpariſons of ſpirituall thinges. The naturall manne perceiueth not the thynges that belonge to the ſpirite of God. For they are but fooliſhnes vnto hym: Nether can he perceiue thē, becauſe they are ſpiritually examined. But he that is ſpirituall, diſcuſſeth all thynges: yet he hymſelfe is iudged of no manne. *For who hath knowen the Eſai.40.c

The.v.Chapter.

After what maner Paule curſeth the man, that hadde committed fornicacion wyth hys mother in lawe.

THere goeth a commen ſaying, yͭ ther is fornicacion among you, A and ſuche fornicacion, as is not named among the gentyles: * *Leu.18.a that one ſhoulde haue his fathers wyfe.
And ye ſwel, & haue not rather ſorowed,
that he whiche hath done thys dede, might be put from among you. For I verely as abſente in body, but preſente in ſpyrite, haue determyned alreadye (as though I wer preſent) concernyng hym that hath done this dede: in the name of our Lord Ieſu Chriſt, whē ye are gathered together, & my ſprite with you, wyth yͤ power of the Lorde Ieſus Chriſt, *to *mat.18.c deliuer him vnto Satan, for the deſtruccion 1.tim.1.d of the fleſhe, that the ſpyrite maye be ſaued in the daye of the Lorde Ieſus.

Your reioyſyng is not good: knowe ye not that a lytle leuen ſowreth the whole B lompe of dowe? *Pourge therfore yͤ old leuen, that ye maye be newe dowe, as ye are ſwete bread. For Chriſt oure paſſeouer uer is offered vp for vs. Therfore, let vs kepe holy daye, not wyth olde leuen, nether wyth the leuen of maliciouſnes and wyckednes: but wyth the ſwete bread of purenes and truthe. ⸣

I wrote vnto you in a piſtle, yͭ ye ſhould not companye wyth fornicators. And I meante not at all of the fornicatoures of this worlde, either of the couetous, or extorcyoners, either the ydolaters: for then muſt ye nedes haue gone out of yͤ world. 2.Teſſ.3.b But nowe I dyd wryte vnto you, * that ye company not together, yf any that is called a brother, be a fornicator, or coueteous, or a worſhipper of ymages, ether a rayler, ether a dronkarde, or an extorcioner: with hym that is ſuch, ſee that ye eate not. For what haue I to dooe, to iudge thẽ which are without? Doe ye not iudge them that are within? Thẽ that are without, Deu.13.b God iudgeth. * Put awaye the euill from among you.

The.vi. Chapter.

He rebuketh them for goynge to lawe together before the Heathen, ⁊ reproueth their vnclenneſſe.

DAre one of you hauyng buſines A with another, go to law vnder the wicked, ⁊ not rather vnder the ſayntes? * Do ye not know Mat.12.d and.19.d that the ſaintes ſhall iudge the worlde? If the worlde ſhalbee iudged by you, are ye not good ynoughe to iudge ſmall trifles? Knowe ye not, howe that wee ſhall iudge the angels? Howe muche more, maye we iudge thinges that pertaine to yͤ life? If ye haue iudgementes of worldlye matters, take them which are deſpiſed in the congre- B gacion, and make them iudges. This I ſaye to youre ſhame. Is there vtterlye no wiſe man amõg you? What not one at all, that can iudge betwene brother ⁊ brother, but one brother goethe to lawe with another, and that vnder the vnbeleuers?

Now therfore, there is vtterly a faut among you, becauſe ye go to law one with another. Why rather ſuffer ye not wrong? why rather ſuffer ye not youre ſelues to haue harme? Naye, ye youre ſelues dooe wrong, and robbe: ⁊ that the brethrẽ. Doe ye not knowe, howe that the vnrighteous ſhall not inherite the kingdom of God? Be not deceyued. For ‡ neyther fornicatours, Gala.5.d Ephe.5.a neither worſhippers of ymages, neyther aduouterers, neither weakelinges, neither abuſers of themſelues with mankind, neither theues, neyther couetous, neyther drõkardes, neither curſed ſpeakers, neither pillers, ſhal inherite the kingdome of God.

And ſuche were ſome of you, but ye are C waſhed: but ye are ſanctified: but ye are iuſtified by the name of the Lorde Ieſus, and by the ſpirite of oure God. I maye do all thynges, but * all thynges are not pro- Eccl.37.d fitable. 1.Cor.10.e I maye do al thynges: but I wyll be brought vnder no mans power. Meates are ordained for yͤ belly, and the bellye for meates: but God ſhall deſtroye bothe it and them. Lette not the bodie be applied vnto fornicacion, but vnto the Lorde, and the Lorde vnto the bodye. God hath rayſed vp the Lorde, and ſhall rayſe vs vp by D hys power. 1.Cor.3.c ⸢ * Either know ye not, that your bodies are the members of Chriſt? ſhall I nowe take the members of Chriſt, ⁊ make them the members of an harlot? God forbidde. Dooe ye not knowe, that he whiche coupleth himſelfe with an harlot, is become one bodye? Gene.2.d Mat.19.a Mar.10.a Ephe.5.g ‡ For two (ſayeth he) ſhal bee one fleſhe. But he that is ioyned vnto the Lorde, is one ſpirite.

Flye fornicacion. Euerye ſynne that a man doth, is without the body. But he that is a fornicator, ſynneth agaynſte hys owne body. Either knowe ye not, how that your bodyes are the temple of the holye ghoſte whiche dwelleth in you, whome ye haue of God, and howe that ye are not youre own? For ye are derely bought. Therfore glorifie God in youre bodies, and in youre ſpirites, whiche are Goddes. ⸣

Of Mariage, virginitie, and widowhead.

AS concerning yͤ thinges where- A of ye wrote vnto me: ‡ it is good for a manne, not to touche a woman. Neuertheleſſe to auoyde whoredome, lette euerye manne haue hys wyfe: and lette euerye woman haue her houſebande. Lette the houſebande geue vnto the wyfe due beneuolence. Lykewiſe alſo the wyfe vnto yͤ houſeband. The wife hath not power of her owne bodye: but yͤ houſebande. And lykewyſe the houſebande hath not power of his own bodye: but the wyfe. * Withdrawe not youre ſelues one Tob.6.d and 8.a Ioel.2.d from another, excepte it bee wyth conſente for a tyme, for to geue your ſelues to faſting and prayer. And afterwarde come together agayne, leſte Satan tempt you for your incontinencie. ⸣

This I ſaye of fauour, and not of com- B maundemente. For I woulde that al men wer as I my ſelf am: but euery man hath his proper gyfte of God, one after thys maner, another after that. I ſay vnto thē that be vnmaryed and wyddowes: it is good for them, if they abide euen as I do. 1.Tim.5.c But and *if they cannot abſteyne, let them marye. For it is better to marye, then to burne. Vnto the maryed commaund, not Mat.5.e and.19.a I, but the Lord: *Let not the wyfe be ſeparated frō the huſeband. If ſhe ſeparate her ſelfe, let her remayne vnmaryed, or be reconciled vnto her houſeband again. And lette not the houſeband put away his wife from him.

C To the remnaunt ſpeake I, not the Lord: If any brother haue a wyfe that beleueth not, if ſhe be content to dwel with him, let hym not put her awaye. And the woman whiche hath to her houſebande an infydell, and conſente to dwell wyth her, let her not put him away. For the vnbeleuing houſebande is ſanctified by the wife, ⁊ the vnbeleuing wife is ſanctified by the houſebāde. Or els were youre children vncleane: but nowe are they holye. But and yf the vnbelyuing departe, let hym depart. A brother or a ſiſter is not in ſubieccion to ſuche. But God hathe called vs in peace. For howe knoweſte thou (o woman) whether thou ſhalte ſaue thy houſebande or no? Either how knoweſt thou (o man) whether thou ſhalt ſaue thy wife or no? but euē as God hath diſtributed to euery manne.

D Ephe.4.a *As the Lorde hath called euerye man, ſo let hym walke, ⁊ ſo ordein I in al congregacions. If any man be called being circūciſed, lette hym not adde vncircumciſion. If any bee called vncircumciſed, lette hym not bee circumciſed. Circumciſion is nothyng, and vncircumciſion is nothing: but the kepynge of the commaundementes of God. ‡ Lette euerye manne abyde in the ſame callyng, wherein he was called. Arte 1.tim.6.a ‡thou called a ſeruaunte? care not for it. Neuertheleſſe if thou mayeſt be free, vſe it rather. For he that is called in the Lord beyng a ſeruaunte, is the Lordes freman. Likewyſe, he that is called beeyng free, is Chriſtes ſeruaunt. ye are dearly bought, bee not ye the ſeruauntes of menne. Brethren, lette euery man, wherein he is called, therein abyde with God. ‡

E As concernyng virgins, I haue no commaundement of the Lord, yet geue I coūſayle, as one that hath obtained mercye of the Lord, to bee faythfull. I ſuppoſe therfore that it is good for ẏ preſent neceſſitye. For it is good for a manne ſo to bee. Arte thou bounde vnto a wyfe? ſeeke not to bee leuſed. Arte thou leuſed from a wyfe? ſeke not a wyfe. But and if thou marye a wife thou haſte not ſynned. Likewiſe, if a virgin marie, ſhe hath not ſynned. Neuertheleſſe ſuche ſhal haue trouble in theyr fleſh: but I fauour you. This ſaie I brethren, ‡ ‡Pſa.90.a 2.Pet.3.b the tyme is ſhorte. It remaineth that they which haue wiues, be as though they had none: and they that wepe, bee as thoughe they wept not: and they that reioyce, be as though they reioyced not: ⁊ they that bye, be as thoughe they poſſeſſed not: and they that vſe this worlde, be as though they vſed it not. *Eſa.40. 1.Joh.2.c. For * the faſhion of this worlde goeth awaye. ‡I woulde haue you without care. ‡Mat.6.d Luke.5.c. He that is vnmaried, careth for the thinges that belong to the Lord, how he maye pleaſe the Lorde.

But he that hath maried a wyfe careth for the thinges that are of the world, how F he maie pleaſe his wife. There is differēce betwene a virgin and a wyfe. The ſingle woman careth for the thynges that are of the Lorde, that ſhe maye be holye both in bodye and alſo in ſpirit. Agayn, ſhe that is maryed, careth for the thynges that pertaine to the worlde, howe ſhe maye pleaſe her houſebande. This ſpeake I for your profit, not to tangle you in a ſnare but that ye maye folowe it whiche is honeſte and comely, and that ye maye cleaue vnto the Lorde without ſeperacion. If any manne thinke that it is vncomelye for his virgin yf ſhe paſſe the tyme of mariage, and yf ſo nede require, lette him do what he luſteth, he ſynneth not, let them bee coupled in mariage. Neuertheleſſe, he ẏ purpoſeth ſuerly in his heart, hauinge no neede, but hath power ouer his owne will: and hath ſo decreed in his heart, that he wil kepe his virgin, doeth well. So then, he that ioyneth hys virgin in mariage, dooeth wel. But he that ioyneth not his virgin in mariage, dooeth better. The ‡wyfe is bounde to the mariage, as long as her houſeband liueth. ‡Ro.7.a If her houſebande dye, ſhe is at libertie to marie with whome ſhe wyll, onelye in the Lorde. But ſhe is happier, yf ſhe ſo abide, after my iudgemente. And I thinke verely that I haue the ſpirite of God.

A man ought not to couer his head, for as much as he is the ymage and glorye of God. But the woman is the glory of the Gene.1.d man. For *the man is not of the woman, but the woman of the man. Nether was the man created for the womans sake: but the womā for the mannes sake. For this cause oughte the woman to haue

Neuerthelesse, nether is the man without the woman, nether the woman without the man in the Lorde. For as the woman is of the man, euen so is the man by the woman: but all of God.

C Iudge in youre selues, whether it be

The.xiii. Chapter.

The natures and condicions of loue.

Though I ſpake with yͤ tõgues A of men and of angels, and haue no loue, I am euen as ſoundyng braſſe: or as a tinklinge cimbal.
And*thoughe I coulde prophecye, and vnderſtode all ſecretes, & all knoweledge:
yea, yf I haue all faythe,*ſo that I can moue mountaynes oute of theyr places, Mat.7.c. and yet haue no loue, I am nothyng. And Luke.13.c though I beſtow al my goodes to fede yͤ *Luke.17.d poore, and though I geue my body euen that I burned, and yet haue no loue, it profyteth me nothyng.

Loue ſuffreth long, & is curteous. Loue B enuyeth not. Loue doth not frowardlye, ſwelleth not, dealeth not diſhoneſtlye, 1.Cor.10.f
*ſeketh not her owne, is not prouoked Phili.2.a to anger, thynketh no euyll, reioyſeth not in iniquitie, but reioyceth in the truth, ſuffreth all thynges, beleueth all thynges, hopeth all thinges, endureth all thynges.
Though that prophecyinges fayle, eyther tõgues ceaſe, or knowlage vaniſhe away, yet loue falleth neuer awaye.
For our knowlage is vnperfect, and oure C prophecying is vnperfect. But whẽ that which is perfect is come, then that whiche is vnperfect, ſhall be done awaye. When I was a childe, I ſpake as a chylde, I vnderſtode as a childe, I ymagined as a childe. But aſſone as I was a man, I ſhall we ſee face to face. Nowe I knowe vnperfectly: but then ſhall I knowe euen as I am knowen. Nowe abydeth fayth, hope, and loue, euen theſe thre: but the chefe of theſe is loue. +

The.xiiii. Chapter.

wͭ tongues:but rather ẏ ye prophecied.
For greater is he that prophecieth, thē
he that ſpeaketh with tongues, excepte

B haue edifying. Now brethren if I come vnto you ſpeaking with tongues: what ſhal I profit you, except I ſpeke to you, either by reuelacion, or by knowlege, or by prophecying, or by doctrine? More-ouer, whē thinges wͭout life geue soūd (whether it be a pipe or an harpe) except they make a diſtincciō in ẏ soūdes, how ſhall it be knowen what is piped or harped? For if the trumpe geue an vncertain voyce, who ſhal prepare himſelfe to the warre? Euen ſo likewiſe when ye ſpeake with tonges, except ye ſpeake woordes that haue ſignificacion, howe ſhall it be vnderſtande what is ſpoken? For ye ſhal C but ſpeake in the ayre.
Many kindes of voyces are in ẏ world, ⁊ none of thē are without ſignificacion.
If I knowe not what ẏ voyce meaneth,
I ſhalbe vnto him that ſpeaketh, an alyent: and he that ſpeaketh, ſhalbe an aliēt vnto me. Euen ſo ye (for aſmuche as ye couet ſpirituall giftes) ſeke that ye may excel, vnto the edifying of the congrega-cion. Wherefore, let hym that ſpeaketh with tonge, pray, that he may interprete alſo. For if I praye with tonge, my ſpirite prayeth, but my vnderſtanding doth no good. What is it then? I wil pray wͭ the ſpirit, and wil pray with the vnder-ſtanding, and will ſyng with the ſpirite, and wil ſing with the vnderſtandyng.
For els, whē thou bleſſeſt with ẏ ſpirit, how ſhal he that occupieth the roume of the vnlearned, ſaye Amen, at thy geuing of thankes, ſeeing he vnderſtandeth not,
what thou ſayeſt. Thou verelye geueſt thankes well, but ẏ other is not edified.
I thanke my God that I ſpeake wͭ tongues more then ye al. Yet had I leuer in the congregacion, to ſpeake fiue wordes with my vnderſtanding to the informacion of other, rather then ten thouſande
D woordes with the tongue.
Brethren, be not ye chyldren in witte.
Esai.28.c Howbeit, as concerning malicioуſenes be children: but in witte be perfecte. In the law it is written‡with ſondrye ton-ges, ⁊ with ſondry lippes wil I ſpeake vnto this people, and yet for al that, wil they not heare me ſayeth ẏ lorde. Wherfore tonges are for a ſigne, not to them that beleue, but to them that beleue not.
Contrarywiſe, prophecying ſerueth not for them ẏ beleue not, but for thē which beleue. If therfore when all the congregacion is come together, and all ſpeake with tongues, there come in they ẏ are vnlearned, or they which beleue not: wil they not ſay, that ye are out of your wit-tes? But and if al prophecy, ⁊ there come in one that beleueth not, or one vnlear-ned, he is rebuked of all men, and is iudged of euery manne, ⁊ ſo are the ſecretes of hys heart opened, and ſo falleth he downe on hys face, ⁊ wurſhippeth God and ſaith, that God is in you of a trueth. E Howe is it then brethren? As oft as ye come together, euerye one of you hath a ſong, hath a doctrine, hath a tonge, hath a reuelacion, hath an interpretacion. Let all thinges be doen vnto edifying. If any man ſpeake with tonge, let it bee by two or at the moſt by thre, ⁊ that by courſe, ⁊ let another interprete it. But if there be no interpreter, let hym kepe ſilēce in the congregacion, ⁊ let hym ſpeake to hym-ſelfe ⁊ to god. Let the prophetes ſpeake 1.Joh.4.a two, or thre, ⁊* let the other iudge. If any reuelacion be made to an other ẏ ſitteth by, let ẏ firſt holde his peace. For ye may all prophecy one by one, that al may learne, and ẏ al may haue comforte. And the ſpirites of the prophetes are in the power of the prophetes. For God is not cauſer of ſtrife*but of peace, as (I teache) *Ro.15.g in al congregacions of the saintes. F
*Let your weomen kepe ſilence in the 1.tim.2.b congregacyons. For it is not permytted Gen.3.c vnto them to ſpeake, but to be vnder o- 1.Cor.11.a bedience, as ſayeth the lawe. If they wil learne any thing, let them aſke theyr huſbandes at home. For it is a ſhame for weomen to ſpeake in the congregacion.
Sprong the woorde of God from you?
Either came it vnto you onelye? If any man thinke himſelfe to be a prophete, either ſpiritual: let him know what thyn-ges I write vnto you. For they are ẏ cōmaundementes of the lord. But and if any manne be ignoraunte, let him be ignoraunt. Wherfore brethren, couet to prophecy, ⁊ forbyd not to ſpeake with tongues, let all thinges be doone honeſtlye and in ordre (emong you.)

The.xv.Chapter.

The reſurreccion of the dead.

A Brethren, as pertaynyng to the gospel which I preached vnto you, which ye haue alſo accepted, & in the which ye continue,
by the which alſo ye are ſaued: I do you to wete, after what maner I preached vnto you, if ye kepe it, except ye haue beleued in vayn. For firſt of al I deliuered vnto you, yͭ whiche I receyued: how yͭ*
Esai 53. b Chriſt died for our ſinnes, agreeing to yͤ Mat 28. b ſcriptures. ‡And yͭ he was buried, & that Ioh. 20. a he aroſe agayn yͤ third day according to Luk. 24. b yͤ ſcriptures: & that he was ſene* of Cephas, thẽ of yͤ twelue. After that he was ſene of mo then fyue hundred brethrẽ at once, of whiche many remayne vnto thys day, & many are fallẽ a ſlepe. After yͭ appered he to James, thẽ to al yͤ apoſtles.
And laſt of al he was ſene of me, as of B one that was borne out of due time. For I am the leaſte of yͤ Apoſtles, which am not woorthy to be called an Apoſtle, because* Actes. 4. a I perſecuted the congregacion of 9. a. & 22. a God. But by the grace of God, I am yͭ and. 26. b. I am. And his grace which is in me, was Gala. 2. c. not in vayne: ‡But I laboured more aboundauntly then they al, yet not I, but the grace of God whiche is with me.
Therfore whether it were I or they, ſo we preache, and ſo haue ye beleued. *If Chriſte bee preached howe that he roſe from the dead: how ſay ſome emong you that there is no reſurreccyon of yͤ dead?
If there be no ryſing agayn of the dead, then is Chriſt not riſen agayn. If Chriſt be not riſen agayn, then is our preaching in vayne, and your faith is alſo in vayne.
Yea and we are founde falſe witneſſes
C of God. For we haue teſtifyed of God, how yͭ he raysed vp Chriſt: whõ he raysed not vp, if it be ſo yͭ the dead ryſe not agayn. For if yͤ dead ryſe not agayn, thẽ is Chriſt not riſen agayn. If it be ſo that Chriſt roſe not again, then is your faith in vayn, & ye are yet in your ſinnes. Therfore thei which are fallẽ a ſlepe in Chriſt are periſhed. If in this life onely we beleue on Chriſt, thẽ are we of al mẽ moſt miſerable. But now is Chriſt riſẽ from Coll. 1. b the dead, & become* the firſt fruites of thẽ that ſlept. For by a man came death, and by a man came the reſurreccion of yͤ dead. For as by Adam all dye, euen ſo by Chriſte ſhall all bee made alyue: but euery manne in hys owne ordre. ‡ The firſt is Chriſt, thẽ they that are Chriſtes at his cumming. Then cummeth yͤ ende, when he hath deliuered vp the kingdom to God the father, when he hath putte downe all rule, & al auctoritie & power. D For he muſt raygne ‡ tyll he haue put all ‡Pſal. 110. a his enemies vnder his feete. The laſt enemy Mat. 22. d he hath put all thynges vnder hys feete. *Pſa. 8. b

But when he ſayeth all thynges are put Hebre. 2. b vnder him, it is manifeſt yͭ he is excepted whiche dyd put all thinges vnder him.
Whẽ all thinges are ſubdued vnto him,
then ſhal yͤ ſonne alſo himſelf be ſubiect vnto him, that put al thinges vnder him, that God may be al in all. Els what doe they which are baptiſed ouer the dead, if the dead ryſe not at all? Why are they thẽ baptiſed ouer thẽ? Yea, & why ſtande we alway then in ieoperdy? By our reioyſyng whiche I haue in Chriſte Jeſu our Lorde, I dye daylye. That I haue fought with beaſtes at Epheſus after yͤ maner of men, what auauntageth it me if the dead ryſe not agayn? ‡Let vs eate E & drinke, for to morow we ſhall dye. Be ‡Eſa. 22. d not ye deceyued: euill woordes corrupt Sapi. 2. b good maners. Awake truly out of ſlepe, & ſinne not. For ſome haue not yͤ knowelage of god: I ſpeke this to your ſhame.
But ſome man wil ſaye: how aryſe the dead? with what bodye ſhal they come?
Thou foole, *yͭ whiche thou ſoweſt, is Ioh. 12. d not quickened, except it dye. And what ſoweſt thou? Thou ſoweſt not the body that ſhalbe, but bare corne (as of whete, or of ſome other) but God geueth it a body at his pleaſure, to euery ſeede his owne body. ‡ All fleſhe is not one maner of fleſhe: but there is one maner of fleſhe
of men, another maner of fleſhe of beaſtes, another of fyſhes, & another of byrdes.
There are alſo celeſtial bodies, & ther are bodies terreſtriall. But the glory of the celeſtial is one, and the glory of the terreſtrial is another. Ther is one maner glory of yͤ ſũne, and another glory of the mone, & another glory of the ſtarres. For one ſtarre diffreth from another in glory.
So is the reſurreccion of the dead. It is ſowen in corrupcion, it riſeth agayne in incorrupciõ. It is ſowẽ in diſhonor, it riſeth again in honor. It is ſowẽ in wekenes, it riſeth agayn in power. It is ſowẽ a natural body, it riſeth again a ſpiritual body. Ther is a natural body, & ther is a ſpiritual body: as it is alſo writtẽ: *Gen. 2. b
The firſt man* Adã was made a liuing nyng ſpirite. Howbeit, that is not firſte whiche is ſpirituall: but that whiche is

If any man truſt in hymſelfe, that he C is Chriſtes, let hym conſydre this agayn of hymſelfe: that as he is Chriſtes, euen ſo are we Chriſtes. For though I boaſt my ſelfe ſomewhat more of our authoritie (which the Lord hath geuẽ vs, *to edifye 2.Cor.13.c & not to deſtroy you) it ſhall not be to my ſhame: leſte I ſhould ſeme, as though I wente aboute to make you afrayde wyth ſoore and ſtrong: but his bodyly preſence is weake, and his ſpeache rude. Let hym that is ſuche thinke on this wyſe: that as we are in wordes by letters when we are abſente, ſuche are we in dedes, when we are preſent.

D For we cannot fynde in oure hertes to make our ſelues of the nombre of them, or to compare our ſelues to them, which prayſe them ſelues. Neuertheles, whyle they meaſure themſelues with thẽſelues, and compare them ſelues with them ſelues, they vnderſtande nought. But we wyll not reioyce aboue meaſure: but accordyng to the meaſure of the rule, which God hath diſtributed vnto vs, a meaſure to reache euen vnto you. For we ſtretche not out our ſelues beyonde meaſure, as though we reached not vnto you. For euen to you alſo haue we come with the goſpell of Chriſt, and we boaſt not oure

paſſe, ꝧ whẽ your faith is increaſed emõg you, we ſhall bee magnifyed accordyng to oure meaſure more largely, and that I ſhall preache the goſpell in thoſe regions whiche are beyonde you: and not to boaſte of thoſe thynges whiche by another mannes meaſure are prepared alreadye.
But let hym that reioyſeth, reioyce in the Lorde. For he that prayſeth hymſelfe, is not allowed: but he whom the Lorde prayſeth.

¶The.xi.Chapter.

Paul (vnder ſufferaunce) commendeth himſelfe, and defendeth his autoritie againſte the falſe Prophetes.

A WOulde to God, ye coulde haue yea ye do alſo forbeare me.

For I am gelous ouer you,

But I feare leſte it come to paſſe, that
*Gen.3.a as the ſerpente * begyled Eue through

The firſt Chapter. ✠

Howe God dealt louyngly with them of the olde tyme in ſendyng them hys Prophetes, but muche more mercye hath he ſhewed vs, in yͭ he ſent vs hys owne ſonne. Of the moſte excellent glory of Jeſus Chriſte, whiche in all thynges is lyke to his father.

GOD in tyme paſt diuerſly and A many wayes, ſpake vnto yͤ fathers by prophetes: but in theſe laſt dayes he hath ſpoken vnto vs by his owne ſonne, whõ he hath made heyre of all thynges * by whome alſo he *Collo.1.a made the worlde. * Which (ſonne) beyng *Sap.7.a the brightnes of his glorye, & the very ymage of his ſubſtance ruling all thinges with the worde of his power, hath by his owne perſõ pourged our ſinnes, & ſitteth on the right hand of yͤ maieſtie on hye: beyng ſo muche more excellent then the Angels, as he hath by inheritaunce obteyned a more excellent name then they. For vnto which of the Angels ſayd he at any B time? * Thou art my ſõne, this day haue *Pſal.2.a I begotten the. And again ‡ I will be his Acte.13.e father, & he ſhalbe my ſonne. And agayn, ‡2.Re.7.b when he bryngeth in the firſte begotten ſonne into the world, he ſayeth. And * let *pſa.97.a all the Angels of God worſhyp him. And vnto the Angels he ſayeth. ‡ He maketh ‡pſ.104.a his Angels ſprytes, and his miniſters a flame of fyre. But vnto the ſõne he ſayth: * Thy ſeate (O God) ſhalbe for euer and Pſa.45.b euer. The.ii. Chapter.

He exhorteth vs to bee obediente vnto the newe lawe whiche Chriſt hath geuen vs, and not to be offended at the infirmitie and lowe degree of Chriſte, becauſe it was neceſſary yͭ for our ſakes he ſhoulde take ſuche an humble ſtate vpon him, that he might be lyke vnto his brethren.

A Wherfore, we ought to geue the more earneſt hede to yͤ thinges yͭ are ſpoken vnto vs, leſt at any time we periſhe. For yf yͤ worde whiche was ſpoken by angels was ſtedfaſt:
and euery tranſgreſſion and diſobedience receaued a iuſt recõpence of rewarde:
how ſhall we eſcape, yf we deſpiſe ſo great ſaluacion, whiche at the firſt began to bee preached of the Lorde hym ſelfe, and was confirmed vnto vs warde, by them that Mar.16.d hearde it? *God bearyng wytnes therto, both with ſignes & wonders alſo, & with diuers myracles, and gyftes of the holy ghoſte accordyng to hys owne wyll.

For vnto the angels hath he not ſubdued
yͤ world to come, wherof we ſpeake.
But one in a certayne place witneſſed, ſaying.
Pſal.8.a *What is man that thou art myndefull

B thou viſiteſt hym? Thou madeſt hym a

Pſal.8.b. him with honour and glory, and *haſt
1.Cor.15.d ſet hym aboue the workes of thy handes.
Thou haſt putte all thynges in ſubieccion vnder hys fete. In that he putte al thinges vnder hym, he lefte nothyng that is not that was made leſſe then the angels, wee ſee that it was Jeſus, whiche is crouned with glory and honour, for the ſufferynge of death: that he by the grace of GOD, ſhoulde taſte of death for all menne.

C For it became hym (for whom are all thinges, and by whom are all thynges (after that he had brought many ſonnes vnto glory) that he ſhoulde make the Lorde of their ſaluaciõ perfect through afflicciõs.
For both he yͭ ſanctifieth, & they which are ſanctified, are al of one. For whiche cauſes ſaying: I will declare thy name vnto my ‡ brethren, in the middes of the con- Pſal.22.e gregacion will I prayſe thee. And again, Joh.20.d I wil put my truſte in hym. And agayne, behold, here am I, and the childrẽ whom GOD hath geuen me.

For as muche then as the children are D partakers of fleſhe and bloud, he alſo him ſelfe lykewiſe toke parte with them, that (through death) he might expell him that had lordſhip ouer death, that is to ſaye the deuell: and that he mighte deliuer them, whiche throughe feare of death were all their life time ſubdued vnto bondage. For he in no place taketh on hym the angels:
but the ſeede of Abraham taketh he on
hym. Wherfore, in all thynges it became hym to bee made like vnto hys brethren, that he might bee mercifull, and a faithfull hie prieſte in thynges concernyng GOD, for to purge the peoples ſynnes. For in that it fortuned hymſelfe to bee tempted, he is hable to ſuccoure them alſo that are tempted.

The.iii. Chapter.

He requireth vs to be obedient vnto the word of Chriſte, which is more worth then the ceremonial lawe of Moyſes. The puniſhment of ſuche as wyll nedes harden their hartes.

Therfore holy brethrẽ, partakers A of the celeſtiall calling, conſider

of our profeſſion, Chriſt Jeſus:

houſe it ſelfe: So muche honoure is he coumpted worthy of more then Moſes.
For euery houſe is builded of ſome man.
But he that ordayned all thinges, is God.
And Moſes verely was faythefull in all his houſe, as a miniſter, to beare witnes of thoſe thynges whiche were to bee ſpoken afterwarde. But Chriſte as a ſonne hathe rule ouer the houſe, whoſe houſe are we, yf wee holde faſte the confidence *and the reioyſyng *Rom.5.a of that hope vnto the ende.

Wherefore (as the holy ghoſte ſayeth) to daye yf ye will heare his voyce, harden B not youre heartes, as in the prouokynge, in the daye of temptacion in the wylderneſſe, where youre fathers tempted me, proued me, and ſawe my workes fourty yere. Wherefore I was greued with that generacion, and ſayed: They dooe alwaye erre in their heartes: They verelye haue not knowen my wayes, ſo that I ſware in my wrathe: they ſhall not entre into my reſte. Take hede brethren, leſte at any time there bee in any of you a frowarde hearte, ſubiecte vnto vnbelefe, that he ſhoulde departe from the liuyng God: but exhort ye one another dayly, whyle it is called to daye: leſte any of you were hearde hearted through the deceitfulnes of ſynne.

C Wee are made partakers of Chriſte, yf wee kepe ſure (vnto the ende) the begynnynge of the ſubſtance, ſo longe as it is ſayed: to daye yf ye will heare hys voyce, hardẽ not youre heartes, as in the prouokyng: for ſome when they heard dyd prouoke: how beit not al yͭ came out of Egipt by Moſes. But with whom was he dyſpleaſed fourty yeres? Was he not diſpleaſed with them that had ſynned, whoſe carkaſes were ouerthrowen in the deſert? To whom ſware he that they ſhoulde not enter into his reſt, but vnto them that wer not obediente? And wee ſee that they coulde not entre in, becauſe of vnbelefe.

The.iiii. Chapter.

The Sabboth or reſt of the Chriſten: puniſhment of vnbeleuers: the nature of the worde of God.

A Let vs feare therfore, leſte any of you (forſakynge the promes of enterynge into hys reſte) ſhoulde ſeme at any time to haue been diſapoincted. For vnto vs is it declared, as wel as vnto thẽ. But it profited not them, yͭ they hearde the worde: becauſe they whiche hearde it, coupled it not with faithe. For we which haue beleued, doe enter into hys reſte, as he ſayed: Euen as I haue ſworne in my wrath, they ſhall not enter into my reſte. And that ſpake he verily long after yͭ the workes wer made, and the foundacion of the worlde layed. For he ſpake in a certayne place of the ſeuenth daye on thys wiſe. ‡Gene.2.a ‡And God dyd reſte the ſeuenth day from al hys workes. And in thys place againe: They ſhall not enter in to my reſte.

B Seyng therfore it foloweth, that ſome muſte enter thereinto, and they (to whom it was firſte preached) entered not therein for vnbelefes ſake: he appoynteth a certayne daye after ſo longe a tyme, ſaying in Dauid (as it is rehearſed:) this daye yf ye will heare hys voyce, harden not youre heartes. For if Joſue had geuen them reſt, then woulde he not afterwarde haue ſpokẽ of another daye. There remaineth therfore yet a reſt to yͤ people of God. For he that is entered into hys reſte, hath ceaſed alſo frõ his owne workes, as God did frõ his.

C Let vs ſtudy therefore to entre into that reſte, leſte any manne fall after the ſame enſample of vnbelefe. For yͤ word of God is quicke and mightie in operacion, ⁊ ſharper then any two edged ſwearde: and entereth throughe, euen vnto the diuidyng a ſunder of the ſoule, and the ſprite, and of the ioynctes and the mary: and is a diſcerner of yͤ thoughtes, and of the intentes of the hearte: nether is there any creature that is not manifeſt in yͤ ſight of hym: but all thynges are naked and open vnto the eyes of hym, of whom wee ſpeake.

D Seeyng then, that wee haue a greate hye prieſt whiche is entered into heauen (euen Jeſus the ſonne of GOD) lette vs hold the profeſſiõ (of oure hope.) For we haue not an hie prieſt whiche cannot haue compaſſion on our infirmities: but ‡was in all ‡Phil.2.a pointes tempted, like as wee are: but yet without ſynne. Lette vs therfore go boldly vnto yͤ *ſeate of grace, yͭ we may obtain *Exo.25.b mercy, ⁊ find grace to helpe in time of nede.

The.v. Chapter.

Chriſt is oure hie prieſte, and ſeate of grace, and more excellent then the hie prieſtes of the olde lawe.

A For euery hie prieſt that is taken from among menne, is ordeyned for menne, in thynges pertaining to God ‡to offer giftes and ſacri‡Leui.9.b fices for ſinne: which can haue compaſſion on the ignoraunte, and on them that erre out of the waye, for as muche as he hym ſelfe alſo is compaſſed with infirmitie. And for the ſame infirmities ſake, he is bounde to offer for ſynnes, as well for hymſelfe, as for the people. And no manne taketh honour vnto hymſelfe, but he that is called of God as was Aaron.

B Euen ſo Chriſte alſo gloryfied not hym ſelfe, to be made the hie prieſt: but he that ſayed vnto hym, *thou art my ſonne, thys *Pſal.2.b daye haue I begotten thee, glorified hym. Acte.13.e As he ſayeth alſo in a nother place: ‡thou Hebre.1.b art a prieſt for euer after the order of Mel‡Pſa.110.b chiſedeche. Whiche in the dayes of hys fleſhe, when he had offered vp prayers and ſupplycacions, with ſtronge crying and teares (vnto hym that was hable to ſaue hym from death) and was hearde becauſe of his reuerence: though he were the ſonne (of God) yet learned he obediẽce, by thoſe thynges, whiche he ſuffered: and he beyng perfecte, was the cauſe of eternall ſaluacion vnto al them that obeyed hym, and is called of God an hye prieſte, after the ordre of Melchiſedech.

C Wherof we would ſpeake many thiges, but they are harde to be vttered: ſeyng ye are dull of hearing. For when as concernyng the tyme, ye ought to bee teachers, yet haue ye nede againe, that we teache you the firſt principles of the woorde of God: and are become ſuche as haue nede

The.vi.Chapter.

He goeth forth with the thyng that he began in the latter ende of the fyft Chapter, and exhorteth them not to faynt, but to be ſtedfaſt, and pacient: for ſo muche as God is ſure in his promeſſe.

A Therfore leauyng the doctryne that pertayneth to the begynnyng of Chriſten menne, let vs go forth vnto perfeccion, not laying agayne the foundacion of repentaunce from dead workes, and of fayth toward God, of baptiſynges, of doctrine, and of laying on of handes, and of reſurrecciõ from death, and of eternal iudgemente. *Rom.2.c galath.3.c * If now therfore perfeccion came by the

what neded it furthermore, that an other then of neceſſitie muſte the lawe be

For it is euident that our Lorde ſpronge

And it is yet a more euident thyng, yf after the ſimilytude of Melchiſedech

Rom.8.b. For *the law brought nothyng to

¶ The.viii. Chapter.

The offyce of Chriſte is more worthye then the prieſtes offyce of the olde lawe: whiche was vnperfecte, and therfore abrogate.

it is of neceſſitie, that this man haue that I made with theyr fathers in that daye, when I toke thē by the handes, to leade them out of the lande of Egypte.

For they continued not in my teſtamente,
and I regarded them not, ſayth the Lorde.
C For this is the teſtament, that I wyll make with the houſe of Iſrael: After thoſe dayes (ſayeth the Lorde) I wyll put my

I wyll wryte them, and I wilbee theyr God, and they ſhalbe my people. And they ſhall not teache euery man his neighbour, and euery man his brother, ſaying: knowe the Lorde: For they ſhall knowe me, from the leaſt to the moſte of them. For I will bee mercyfull ouer theyr vnrighteouſnes, and theyr ſynnes and theyr iniquities wyll
I thinke vpon nomore. In that he ſayeth a newe teſtament, he hath worne oute the

But within the ſeconde vayle was there a

When theſe thynges were thus ordeyned, the prieſtes wente alwayes into the firſte tabernacle, whiche executed the ſeruyce of the holy thynges. But into the ſecond
*Exo.30.b went the hye prieſte alone * once euery

C for hym ſelfe, and for the ignoraunces of the people. Wherewith the holy ghoſte this ſignified, yͤ the waye of holy thinges was not yet opened, whyle as yet the firſt tabernacle was ſtandynge. Whiche was a ſimilitude for the tyme then preſente, in which were offered gyftes and ſacrifyces, that coulde not make the myniſter perfect, as pertaynyng to the conſcience, with onely meates and drynkes, and diuers waſhynges, and iuſtifiinges of the fleſhe, which were ordeyned vntyll the tyme of reformacion.

But † * Chriſt beyng an hye prieſte of Hebre.6.d good thynges to come, came by a greater and.8.a and a more perfect tabernacle, not made with handes: that is to ſaye, not of thys and calues: but * by hys owne bloude he 1.Pet.1.b

For if the * bloude of oxen and of goates, Leui.16.c and the aſſhes of a younge cowe, when it was ſprynkled, puryfyeth the vncleane, as touchynge the purifying of the fleſhe:
how much more ſhall the bloud of Chriſt (whiche thorow the eternall ſpirite, offred hym ſelfe without ſpotte to God) pourge youre conſcience from dead workes, for to

And for thys cauſe is he the * mediator 1.tim.2.a

whiche chaunced for the redempcion of

† For † where as is a teſtamēt there muſte alſo (of neceſſitie) be the deathe of hym that maketh the teſtament. For the teſtamente taketh authoritie when menne are dead: for it is yet of no value, as longe as he that maketh the teſtament is alyue, for whiche cauſe alſo, nether the firſte teſtamente was ordeyned without bloude.
For when Moſes had declared al the commaundement to al the people according to the lawe, he toke the bloude of calues and of goates, with water & purple wolle, & yſope, and ſprynkled both the boke, and all the people, ſaying: * this is the bloud of the Exo.24.b teſtamente, whiche God hath appoynted vnto you. Moreouer, he ſprinckled the tabernacle with bloud alſo, and al the miniſtryng veſſels. And almoſte all thynges are by the law purged with bloud, and without ſhedyng of bloud is no remiſſion.

❡ The. v. Chapter.

Thys Jeſus Chriſt is he that came by B water and bloude. And it is the ſprite that bereth witnes, becauſe the ſprite is truth.

(For there are thre which beare recorde in heuen, the one.) And there are thre which beare recorde (in earth) the ſprite, and water, and bloude, and theſe thre are one. Yf wee receaue the wytnes of men, the wytnes of GOD is greater. For thys is the wytnes of God (that is greater,) whiche he teſtified of hys hathe the witnes in hym ſelfe. He that beleueth not GOD, hathe made hym a lier,

¶ The ſecond Epiſtle of Saynt Iohn.

He wryteth vnto a certayne Lady, reioyſeth that her children walke in the truthe, exhorteth them vnto loue, warneth them to beware of ſuch diſceauers as denye ŷ Ieſus Chriſt came in the fleſh, prayeth the to continue in the doctrine of Chriſt, & to haue nothing to do with the that bring not this lerning.

A The elder to the electe ladye and her chyldren, whom I loue in the truth: and not I only, but alſo al that haue knowen the truthe, for the truthes ſake which dwelleth in vs, & ſhalbe in vs for euer.

With vs ſhalbe grace, mercy, & peace from God the father and from the Lorde Ieſus Chriſte the ſonne of the father, in truthe and loue.

B I reioyſed greately, that I founde of thy chyldren walkynge in truthe, as wee haue receyued a commaundemente of the father. And nowe beſeche I thee lady, not as though I wrote a newe commaundement vnto thee, but that ſame whiche wee haue had from the begynnyng: that wee ſhoulde * loue one another. And thys is the loue, that we ſhoulde walke after hys commaundemente.

Joh.14. c
Joh.5. a

Thys commaundement is, that (as ye haue heard from the beginning) ye ſhould walke in it. For many diſceauers are entred into the worlde, whiche confeſſe not that Ieſus Chriſte is come in the fleſhe. Thys is a dyſceauer and an Antichriſte. Loke on youre ſelues, that wee looſe not C that we haue wrought, but that we may haue a full rewarde. Whoſoeuer tranſgreſſeth and bydeth not in the doctrine of Chriſte, hath not GOD. He that indureth in the doctryne of Chriſte, hath bothe the father and the ſonne.

If there come any vnto you, and bring not thys learnynge, hym receyue not to houſe: nether byd hym God ſpede. For he that byddeth hym GOD ſpede, is partaker of hys euell deades. (Beholde, I haue tolde you before, that ye ſhoulde not bee aſhamed in the day of the Lorde.) I had many thynges to wryte vnto you, neuertheleſſe I would not write with paper and ynke, but I truſt to come vnto you, and ſpeake with you mouthe to mouthe, that oure ioye maye bee full. The elder vnto the beloued Gaius, whom I loue in ŷ truthe. A Beloued, I wyſhe in all thynges ŷ thou proſperedſte, and faredſt well, euen as thy ſoule proſpereth. For I reioyſed greatelie, when the brethren came and teſtified of the truthe that is in the, how thou walkeſt in ŷ truth. B Beloued, thou doeſt faithfully whatſoeuer thou doeſt to the brethren, and to ſtraungers, which beare witnes of thy loue before the congregacion. Whiche brethren yf thou bringe forwardes of their iourney (after a godly ſorte) thou ſhalt do wel, becauſe that for his names ſake they went forth: and toke nothyng of the Gentyles. We therfore ought to receyue ſuche, that we mighte be the helpers to the truthe. C

I wrote vnto the congregacion: but Diotrephes which loueth to haue the preeminence among them, receyueth vs not. Wherfore yf I come, I will declare hys dedes whiche he doth, ieſtyng on vs with malicious wordes, nether is there with content. Not onely he hym ſelfe receaueth not the brethren, but alſo he forbyddeth them that woulde, and thruſteth them out of the congregacion.

Beloued, folowe not that whiche is euell, but that which is good. D He that doeth well, is of God: but he that doth euel ſeeth not GOD. Demetrius hath good re-

The.iiii. Chapter. ✠

He ſeeth the heauẽ open and the ſeat, and one ſitting vpon it, and .xxiiii. ſeates about it, with .xxiiii. elders ſitting vpon them, and foure beaſtes pꝛaiſing God day and nyght.

A After thys I looked, and beholde a dooꝛe was open in heauen: and the firſt voyce which I hearde, was as it were of a trompet talkyng with me, whiche ſayde: come vp hither, and I wil ſhew thee thinges, which muſt be fulfilled hereafter. And immediatly I was in the ſpirite: and behold, a ſeat was ſet in heauen, and one ſate on the ſeate. And he that ſate, was to loke vpon, lyke vnto a Iaſpar ſtone, and a Sardine ſtone. And there was a raynebow about the ſeate, in ſight lyke to an Emerald. And about B the ſeate were .xxiiii. ſeates. And vpon the ſeates .xxiiii. elders ſitting, clothed in white raiment, and had on theyꝛ heades crounes of golde.

And out of the ſeate pꝛoceded lightenynges, ⁊ thundꝛinges, and voyces: and there were ſeuen lampes of fyꝛe burning befoꝛe the ſeate, whiche are the ſeuen ſpirites of God. The. v. Chapter.

He ſeeth the lambe opening the boke, and therfore the foure beaſtes, the. xxiiii. elders, and the Angels prayſe the lambe, and doe him worſhip.

A AND I ſaw in the right hande of him that ſate in the trone, a booke written within, and ou the backeſyde, ſealed with ſeuen ſeales. And I ſawe a ſtrong Angel, whiche preached with a loude voyce: Who is woorthye to open the booke, and to leuſe the ſeales therof? And no man in heauen nor in earth, neyther vnder the earthe, was able to open the booke, neither to loke theron. And I wept much becauſe no man was founde worthy to open, and to reade the booke, neither to looke theron.

B And one of the elders ſayde vnto me: wepe not: Beholde, a lyon of the tribe of Iuda, the roote of Dauid, hath obtayned to open the booke, and to leuſe the ſeuen ſeales therof. And I behelde, ⁊ loe in the middes of the ſeate, ⁊ of the foure beaſtes, and in the middes of the elders, ſtode a lambe as though he had bene killed, hauyng ſeuen hornes, and. vii. eyes, which are the ſeuen ſpirites of God, ſent into al yͤ worlde. And he came ⁊ toke the boke out of yͤ right hãd of him yͭ ſat vpõ the ſeat.

C And when he had takẽ the boke, the. iiii. beaſtes, ⁊. xxiiii. elders fel downe before yͤ lambe, hauing euery one of thẽ harpes, ⁊ golden vyalles ful of odours, which are the prayers of ſainctes, ⁊ they ſong a new ſõg, ſaying: thou art worthy to take yͤ boke, ⁊ to open yͤ ſeales therof, for thou waſt kylled, ⁊ haſt redemed vs by thy blud out of al kinreds, ⁊ tonges, and people, and nacions, and haſt made vs vnto our God, kynges and prieſtes, and we ſhall raygne on the earth.

D And I behelde, and I hearde the voyce of many Angels aboute the trone, and aboute the beaſtes and the elders, and I hearde thouſande thouſandes, ſaying wͭ a loud voyce. Worthy is the lambe that was killed to receiue power and riches, and wiſedome, and ſtrength, and honor, and glory, and bleſſing. And all the creatures whiche are in heauen, and on the earth, and vnder the earth, and in the ſea, and all that are in them, heard I, ſaying: bleſſing, honor, glory, and power, be vnto him that ſytteth vpon the ſeate, and vnto the lambe for euermore. And the iiii. beaſtes ſayde: Amen. And yͤ. xxiiii. elders fell vpon their faces, and worſhipped him, that liueth for euermore.

The. vi. Chapter.

The lambe openeth the. vi. ſeales, and many thinges folow the opening therof.

A AND I ſaw, when the lambe opened one of the ſeales, ⁊ I heard one of the. iiii. beaſtes ſaye, as it were the noiſe of thunder: come and ſe and I ſaw. And beholde, there was a whyte horſe, and he that ſate on hym, had a bow, and a croune was geuen vnto him, ⁊ he went furth conquering, and for to ouercome. And when he had opened yͤ ſecond ſeale, I hearde yͤ ſecond beaſt ſay: come and ſe. And ther went out an other horſe yͭ was red, and power was geuen to hym that ſat theron to take peace from the earth, ⁊ that they ſhould kil one an other. * And ther was geuẽ vnto him a great ſword. Ezal.

B And when he had opened the third ſeale, I hearde the thirde beaſt ſaye: come and ſee. And I behelde, ⁊ loe, a blacke horſe, ⁊ he that ſate on hym, had a payre of balãces in his hande. And I heard a voyce in the middes of the foure beaſtes, ſaye: a meaſure of wheate for a peny, and three meaſures of barly for a peny: and oyle, ⁊ wyne ſe thou hurt not. And when he had opened the fourth ſeale, I heard yͤ voice of the fourth beaſte ſaye: come, and ſee: ⁊ I loked. And behold a pale horſe, and his name that ſat on him was death, and hell folowed after him, and power was geuen vnto them ouer the fourth parte of the earth, to kill with ſweord ⁊ with hunger, and with deathe that cummeth of vermen of the earth.

C And when he had opened the fifthe ſeale, I ſawe vnder the aulter * the ſoules of them that were killed for the woorde of God, and for the teſtimony whiche they had, and they cryed with a loude voyce, ſaying: How long tarieſt thou Lord holy and true, to iudge and to auenge our bloude on them that dwel on the earth? And long whyte garmentes were geuẽ vnto euery one of them. And it was ſaid vnto them, that they ſhould reſt yet for a litle ſeaſon, vntil the number of theyr felowes ⁊ brethren, ⁊ of them that ſhould be killed as they were, were fulfilled. Iſo.

And I behelde, when he had opened the

The.vii.Chapter.

He ſeeth the ſeruauntes of God ſealed in theyr foreheades out of all nacyons and people, whiche thoughe they ſuffre trouble, yet the lambe feedeth them, leadeth them to the fountaynes of liuing water,and God ſhall wype awaye al teares from theyr eyes.

A AND after yͤ, I ſaw .iiii.āgels ſtand

And I ſaw an other angel aſcende from

⁊ of the elders, ⁊ of the.iiii.beaſtes,and

I ſaid vnto him: Lord,thou woteſt.And which is in the middes of the ſeate, ſhall wype away all teares from theyr eyes.

The.viii.Chapter.

The ſeuenth ſeale is opened,there is ſilence in heauen,the foure angels blow theyr trumpettes, ⁊ great plages folow vpon the earth.

A AND when he had opened the ſeuēth ſeale,there was ſilence in heauen about yͤ ſpace of halfe an houre.And I ſaw.vii.angels ſtāding before God,⁊ to them were geuē ſeuen trompets.And another angel came and ſtode before the aulter,hauing a golden ſenſer,and much of odours was geuen vnto him:that he ſhould offer of yͤ praiers of al ſaintes vpō yͤ golden alter,which was before the ſeate.And yͤ ſmoke of the odours which came of the prayers of al ſainctes,aſcended
B vp before god out of yͤ angels hand.
And the angel toke the ſenſer, and filled it with fyre of the aulter, and caſte it in to the earthe : and voyces were made, and thundringes,and lightenynges,and earthquakes.And yͤ ſeuē angels whiche hadde the ſeauen trumpettes, prepared

themſelues to blowe. The fyrſt Aungell blew, and there was made haile and fyre, whiche were myngled wyth bloude, and they were caſt into the earth, and the thirde parte (of the earth was ſet on fire, & the third parte) C of trees was burnte, and all grene graſſe was burnte. And the ſeconde angel blewe, ⁊ as it were a greate mountayne burnyng with fire was caſt into the ſea, and ỹ third parte of the ſea turned to bloude, and the thirde parte of the creatures which hadde lyfe, died: and the thyrde parte of ſhyppes wer deſtroyed. And the thirde angel blew, and there fel a great ſtarre frõ heauen, burnyng as it were a lampe, and it fell into the third part of the riuers, ⁊ into fountaynes of waters, and the name of the ſtarre is called wormewood. And the thirde parte D was turned to wormewood. And manye men dyed of the waters, becauſe they wer made bitter.

And the fourthe angell blewe, and the thyrde parte of the ſunne was ſmitten, and the thyrde parte of the moone, and ỹ thyrd parte of ſtarres: ſo that the thyrde parte of them was darkened. And the daye was ſmitten, that the thirde parte of it ſhoulde not ſhine, and lykewyſe the nyghte. And I beheld, and heard an angel flying through the myddes of heauen, ſaying with a loud voyce: Woe, woe, to the inhabyters of ỹ yearth, becauſe of the voyces to come of ỹ trompe of the three angels, which wer yet to blowe.

The .ix. Chapter.

The fift and ſyxte Angell blowe theyr trompettes: the ſtarre falleth from heauẽ: the locuſtes come out of the ſmoke. The fyrſte woe is paſte: the foure Angels that wer bounde are leuſed, and the thyrd part of men is kylled.

AND the fyfte Angell blewe, and I ſawe a ſtarre fall from heauen vnto A the yearth. And to him was geuen the keye of the bottomleſſe pitte: And he opened the botomleſſe pytte, and the ſmoke of the pyt aroſe, as ỹ ſmoke of a great fornace. And ỹ ſunne, and the aire were darkned, by the reaſon of ỹ ſmoke of the pitte. And there came out of the ſmoke locuſtes vpon the earth, and vnto them was geuen power, as the ſcorpions of the earth haue power. And it was commaunded them, that they ſhoulde not hurte the graſſe of the yearthe: neyther anye grene thinge: neither anye tree: but onelye thoſe men which haue not the ſeale in theyr foreheades.

And to them was commaunded, that they ſhoulde not kyll them, but that they ſhoulde bee vexed fyue monethes, and theyr payne was as the payne that commeth of a ſcorpion, when he hathe ſtunge a manne. * And in thoſe dayes ſhall menne ſeke deathe, and ſhall not fynde it, and ſhall deſyre to dye, and deathe ſhall flye from them.

Oſe.10.c
Luk.23.d

B And the ſimilitude of the locuſtes was lyke vnto horſes prepared vnto battayle, and on their heades wer as it wer croũes, lyke vnto golde, and theyr faces were as it hadde bene the faces of menne. And they hadde heere as the heere of women. And theyr tethe were as the teth of lyons. And they hadde habbergions, as it were habbergions of yron. And the ſounde of theyr wynges, was as the ſound of Chariotes when manye horſes runne together to battayle. And they hadde tayles lyke vnto ſcorpions, and there were ſtynges in theyr tayles. And theyr power was to hurt mẽ fyue monethes. And they hadde a kynge ouer them, whyche is the angel of the bottomleſſe pytte, whoſe name in the Hebrew toungue, is Abadon: but in the Greke tongue, Apollion, that is to ſay a deſtroyer. One woe is paſte, and beholde twoo woes come yet after this.

C And the ſyxt angell blewe, and I hearde a voyce from the foure corners of the golden aulter, whiche is before God, ſayinge to the ſyxt angell, whiche hadde the trompet: Leuſe the foure angels, which are bounde in the great riuer Euphrates. And the .iiii. angels were leuſed, whiche were prepared for an houre, for a daye, for a moneth, and for a yeare, for to ſleye the thyrde parte of menne. And the number of horſemen of warre wer twenty .M. times .x. thouſand. And I hearde the number of them: ⁊ thus I ſawe the horſes in a viſion, and them ỹ ſate on them, hauing fyrye habbergions of a Iacincte couloure, ⁊ brymſtone: and the heades of ỹ horſes were as ỹ heades of lions. D And out of theyr mouthes wẽt forth fier and ſmoke, and brimſtone. And of theſe three was the thyrde parte of menne kylled: that is to ſaye, of fyer, ſmoke, ⁊ brymſtone, which proceded out of the mouthes of them. For theyr power was in theyr mouthes, and in theyr tayles: for theyr tayles wer lyke vnto ſerpentes, and hadde heades, and with them they dydde hurte. And the remnaunte of the menne whyche were not kylled by theſe plages, repented not of the deedes of theyr handes, that they ſhoulde not worſhippe deuyls, and images of golde and ſiluer, and braſſe, and ſtone, and of wood, whiche neither can ſee neither heare, neyther goe. Alſo they repented not of theyr murther, and of theyr ſorcery, neyther of theyr fornicacion, neyther of theyr thefte.

The .x. Chapter.

The Angell hath the booke open, he ſweareth there ſhalbe nomore time: he geueth the boke vnto John, whiche eateth it vp.

A AND I ſawe another myghtye Angel come down from heauen, clothed with a cloude, & the rainebow vpon his head. And his face as it wer the ſunne, and his feete as it were pillars of fire: and he had in his hande a litle booke open, and he putte his righte foote vpon the ſea, and hys lefte foote on the yearthe. And cryed with a loude voice, as when a lion roreth. And when he hadde cried, ſeuen thonders ſpake theyr voyces. And when the ſeuen thonders had ſpoken theyr voices, I was aboute to wryte. And I heard a voyce frō heauē, ſaying vnto me: ſeale vp thoſe thinges whiche the ſeuen thunders ſpake, and write them not.

B And the angel whiche I ſawe ſtand vpon the ſea, and vpon the earth, lyfte vp his hande to heauen, and ſware by hym that liueth for euermore, which created heauen, and the thinges that therein are (And the earth, and the thinges that therein are,) and ÿ ſea, and the thinges which therein are, ÿ there ſhoulde be no lenger tyme: but in the daies of the voyce of the ſeuenth angell, when he ſhall beginne to blowe: euen the miſtery of God ſhalbe finiſhed, as he preached by his ſeruauntes the Prophetes.

C And the voice which I heard from heauē, Eze. 2.c ſpake vnto me agayne and ſaid*: goe and take the litle boke which is open in the hād of the angel whiche ſtandeth vpō the ſea, & vpon the yearth. And I went vnto the angel, and ſaied to him: geue me the litle boke: and he ſayed vnto me: take it and eat it vp, and it ſhall make thy bellye bytter, but it D ſhalbee in thy mouthe as ſwete as honye. Eze. 3.c *And I toke the litle boke out of his hand and eate it vp, and it was in my mouth as ſwete as hony, and as ſone as I had eatē it, my belly was bitter. And he ſayed vnto me: thou muſt prophecy again among the people, and nacions, and tounges, and to many kinges.

The .xi. Chapter.

The temple is meaſured. The ſeconde wo is paſte.

A AND then was geuen me a reede, like vnto a rodde, and it was ſayed vnto me: Riſe and mete the temple of god, and the aulter, and them that worſhyppe therein: and the quire whiche is within the temple, caſte oute, and mete it not: for it is geuen vnto the gentiles, and the holye cytye ſhall they treade vnder fote fourty and twoo monethes. And I will geue power vnto my two witneſſes, and thei ſhal prophecy a thouſande, two hundred, and ſixty daies, clothed in a ſacke clothe. Theſe are twoo oliue trees, and twoo candelſtickes ſtandyng before the God of the yearth. B And if any man will hurte them, fyer ſhall procede out of their mouthes, and cōſume their enemies. And if any manne will hurt them, this wiſe muſte he bee kylled. Theſe haue power to ſhut heuen, ÿ it rain not in ÿ daies of their prophecying: & haue power ouer waters to turne them to bloude, and to ſmite the yearth with al maner plages, as often as they wyll.

And when they haue finiſhed theyr teſtimony, ÿ beaſt that came out of ÿ bottomleſſe pit, ſhall make warre againſt thē, and ſhall ouercome them, and kyll them. And theyr bodyes ſhall lye in the ſtretes of the greate citie, whiche ſpiritually is called Zodom and Egipt, where our Lord was crucifyed. And they of the people and kynredes, and tongues, and they of the nacyons, ſhall ſee their bodies thre dayes and an halfe, and ſhall not ſuffer their bodyes to bee put in graues. And they that dwell vpon the earth, ſhal reioyſe ouer them and bee glad, and ſhall ſende gyftes one to another: for theſe two prophetes vexed them that dwelte on the earth.

And after three dayes and an halfe, the C ſpryte of lyfe from God, entred into them. And they ſtode vp vpon their feete, & great feare came vpon them whiche ſawe them. And they hearde a great voyce from heauen, ſaying vnto them: Come vp hither.

And they aſcended vp into heauen in a cloude, and their enemies ſawe them. And the ſame houre was there a greate earthe quake, and the tenthe part of the citie fel, and in the earth quake were ſlayne names of menne. vii. M, and the remnaunte wer feared, and gaue glory to ÿ God of heauē. The ſeconde woe is paſte: and behold the thyrde woe wyll come anone.

And the ſeuenth angell blew, and there were made greate voyces in heauen, D ſaying: the kyngdomes of thys worlde are our Lordes, and hys Chriſtes, and he ſhal raigne for euermore (Amẽ). And yͤ .xxiiij. elders, which ſit before God on their ſeates, fel vpon their faces, and worſhipped God, ſaying: wee geue the thankes O Lorde God almightie, which art ⁊ waſt, and art to come, for thou haſt receyued thy great might, and haſte reigned. And the nacions were angrye, and thy wrath is come, and the tyme of the dead that they ſhoulde bee iudged, ⁊ that thou ſhouldeſt geue reward vnto thy ſeruauntes the Prophetes and Sainctes, ⁊ to them that feare thy name ſmall and greate, and ſhouldeſt deſtroye them whiche deſtroye the earth. And the temple of God was opened in heauen, and there was ſene in hys temple, the arcke of hys teſtament, and there folowed lighteninges, and voyces, and thondrynges, and earthquake, and muche hayle.

The .xii. Chapter.

The ſeuenth Angell bloweth his trompet. There appeareth in heauen a womã clothed with yͤ Sunne: Michaell fyghteth with the dragon, which perſecuteth the woman.

A AND there apeared a great wonder in heauen: A woman clothed with yͤ ſunne, and the moone vnder her feete, and vpon her head a croune of .xii. ſtarres. And ſhe was with chylde, ⁊ cryed trauaylyng in byrth, ⁊ payned redy to bee delyuered. And there appeared another wonder in heauẽ: for behold, a great red dragon hauing .vii. heades, and .x. hornes, and crounes vpon his heades: ⁊ hys tayle drew the third part of the ſtarres (of heauen) ⁊ caſt thẽ to yͤ earth.

B And the dragon ſtode before the woman whiche was readye to bee delyuered, for to deuoure her chylde as ſoone as it were borne. And ſhe brought forth a man chylde, whiche ſhoulde rule all nacions with a rodde of yron. And her ſonne was taken vp vnto God, and to hys ſeate. And the woman fled into wyldernes, where ſhe had a place, prepared of God, that they ſhoulde feede her there a thouſande two hundred and .lx. dayes.

C And ✝ there was a great battayle in heauen, Michaell and hys angels foughte with the dragon, and the dragon foughte and hys angels, and preuayled not, neyther was their place founde any more in heauen. And the great dragon, that olde ſerpente, called the deuell and Sathanas, was caſte oute. Whiche diſceaueth all the worlde. And he was caſte into the earthe, ⁊ hys angels were caſt oute alſo (with him.)

And I hearde a loude voyce ſayinge: in heauen is now made ſaluacion ⁊ ſtrength, ⁊ the kingdom of oure God, and the power of hys Chriſte. For the accuſer of oure brethren is caſte downe, whiche accuſed them before oure God daye ⁊ nighte. And they ouercame hym by the bloude of the lambe, and by the worde of their teſtimonye, and they loued not their lyues vnto D the death. Therfore reioyce heauens, and ye that dwell in them. Woe to the inhabiters of the earth, and of the ſea: for the deuel is come downe vnto you, whiche hath great wrathe, becauſe he knoweth that he hath but a ſhort tyme. ✝

And when the dragon ſawe that he was caſte vnto the earth, he perſecuted the woman, which broughte forthe the man chylde. And to the woman were geuen .ii. wynges of a greate Egle, that ſhe myghte flye into the wyldernes, into her place, where ſhe is noryſhed for a tyme, tymes, and halfe a tyme, from the preſence of the ſerpente. And the dragon caſte oute of hys mouth water after the woman, as it had ben a ryuer, becauſe ſhe ſhoulde haue ben caught of the floude. And the earth holpe the woman: ⁊ the earth opened her mouth and ſwalowed vp the ryuer, whiche the dragon caſte out of hys mouthe. And the dragon was wrothe wyth the woman: and went, and made warre with the remnaunte of her ſeede, whiche kepe the commaundementes of God, and haue the teſtimonye of Jeſus Chriſte. And he ſtode on the ſea ſande.

The .xiii. Chapter.

A beaſte ryſeth out of the ſea with ſeuen heades and ten hornes. Another beaſt commeth out of the earth with two hornes.

A AND I ſawe a beaſte riſe out of the ſea, hauyng ſeuen heades, ⁊ ten hornes, ⁊ vpon his hornes ten crounes, and vpõ his heades, the name of blaſphemy: And the beaſte which I ſaw was lyke a cat of the mountayne, and hys feete were as the feet of a bear, and hys mouthe as the mouthe of a lyon. And the dragon gaue him his power and hys ſeat, and great auctoritie: and I ſawe one of hys heades as it wer wounded to death, and hys deadly wounde was healed. And all the worlde wondred at the beaſte, and they worſhypped the dragon, whiche gaue power vnto the beaſte, and they worſhypped the beaſte, ſaying: Who is lyke vnto the beaſte? Who is able to warre with hym?

B And there was geuen vnto him a mouth that ſpake greate thynges, and blaſphemyes, and power was geuen vnto hym, to doe .xlii. monethes.

And he opened hys mouthe vnto blaſphemy agaynſte God, to blaſpheme hys name and hys tabernacle, and them that dwell in heauen. And it was geuen vnto hym to make warre with the ſainctes, and to ouercome them. And power was geuē him ouer al kinred, & people, & tōgue, & nacion, and all that dwell vpon the earthe worſhypt hym, whoſe names are not written in the boke of lyfe of the lambe, which was kylled from the begynnynge of the worlde. Yf any manne haue an eare, let him

And I behelde another beaſt comming vp out of the earthe, & he had two hornes lyke a lambe, and he ſpake as dyd the dragon. And he dyd all that the fyrſte beaſte could do in hys preſence, and he cauſed the earthe, and them whiche dwell therin, to worſhyp the fyrſte beaſte, whoſe deadlye wounde was healed. And he dyd greate wonders, ſo that he made fyre come downe from heauen in the ſighte of menne. And deceaued them that dwelte on the earthe by the meanes of thoſe ſignes whiche he had power to doe in the ſyght of the beaſt, ſaying to them that dwelte on the earthe: that they ſhoulde make an ymage vnto the beaſt, whiche had the wound of a ſweard, and dyd lyue.

D And he had power to geue a ſpryte vnto the ymage of the beaſte, and that the ymage of the beaſt ſhoulde ſpeake, & ſhould cauſe that as manye as woulde not worſhyppe the ymage of the beaſte, ſhould be kylled. And he made all bothe ſmall and greate, ryche and poore, free and bonde, to receaue a marke in their ryght handes or in their forheades. And that no man might bye or ſell, ſaue he that had the marke, or the name of the beaſte, either the noumber of hys name. Here is wyſedome. Let him that hathe wyt, counte the noumber of the beaſt. For it is the noumber of a man, and hys noumbre is ſixe hundred, threſcore and ſixe.

The .xiiii. Chapter.

The lambe ſtandeth vpon the mounte Syon, and the vndefyled congregacion with hym. The angell exhorteth to the feare of God, and telleth of the fall of Babylon.

A AND* I loked, & loe, a lambe ſtode on the mounte Syō, & with hym an .C. and .xliiii. thouſande, hauyng his (name and hys) fathers name writtē in their forheades. And I hearde a voyce from heauen, as the ſounde of many waters, & as the voice of a greate thūdre. And I heard the voice of harpers harpyng with their harpes. And they ſong as it were a newe ſonge, before the ſeate, and before the foure beaſtes, and the elders: and no man coulde learne that ſonge but the houndred and .xliiii. M. whiche were redemed from the earthe. Theſe are they whiche were not defyled wyth women, for they are virgyns. Theſe folowe

B the lambe whyther ſoeuer he goeth. Theſe were redemed from menne, beyng the firſt frutes vnto GOD and to the lambe, and in theyr mouthes was founde no gyle. For they are withoute ſpot before ẏ trone of GOD.*

And I ſawe another angell flye in the myddes of heauen hauynge the euerlaſting Goſpell, to preache vnto them that ſit and dwell on the earthe, and to al nacions, kinredes and tongues, & people, ſaying with a loude voyce: *Feare God and geue ho- Acte.14. nour to him, for the houre of his iudgemēt is come: and worſhip hym, that made heauen and earth, and the ſea, and fountaynes of water. And there folowed another angel, ſaying: *Babilō is fallē, is fallen, that great citie, for ſhe made all nacions drinke of the wyne of her fornicacion. Eſay.21. Iere.li.a.

C And the thirde angel folowed them, ſaying with a loude voyce: Yf any man worſhyp the beaſt and hys ymage, and receaue hys marke in hys forhead, or on hys hand, the ſame ſhall drinke the wyne of the wrath of God, which is powred in the cup of his wrath. And he ſhal be puniſhed in fyre and brimſtone, before the holy angels, and before the lambe.

And the ſmoke of their torment aſcendeth vp euermore. And they haue no reſt daye nor night whiche worſhip the beaſte, & his image, and whoſoeuer receaueth the print of his name. Here is ẏ paciēce of ſainctes. Here are they that kepe the commaundementes and the fayth of Jeſu.

And I heard a voyce from heauē ſaying vnto me, wryte: Bleſſed are the dead, which here after dye in the Lord: euen ſo ſayth the ſpirite that they reſt from theyr labours, but theyr workes folowe them.
And I looked, & beholde a whyte cloude,
and vpon the cloude one ſitting lyke vnto
the ſonne of man, hauyng on hys head a goldē croune, and in his hand a ſharpe ſyckle. And another Angell came out of the temple, cryng with a loude voyce to Joel.3.c hym that ſate on the cloude: * Thruſt in D thy ſickle, & reape, for thy time is come to reape, for the corne of yͤ earth is ripe. And he that ſate on the cloude, thruſte in his ſyckle on yͤ earth, & the earth was reaped.
And another Angel came out of the temple, whiche is in heauen, hauyng alſo a ſharpe ſyckle. And another Angell came out frō the aulter, which had power ouer fyre, and cryed with a loude crye to hym that had the ſharpe ſyckle, & ſayd: thruſt in thy ſharpe ſyckle, and gather the cluſters of the earth, for her grapes are ripe.
And the Angel thruſt in his ſharpe ſickle
on the earth & cut downe the grapes of yͤ vynyarde of the earth, & caſt thē into the great wynefat of the wrath of God: and the wynefat was troden without the citie,
and bloude came out of the fat, euen vnto the horſſe brydels, by the ſpace of a thouſande and .vi. C. furlonges.

The .xv. Chapter.

He ſeeth ſeuen Angels, hauyng ſeuen vyals full of wrathe.

A AND I ſawe another ſigne in heauen great and merueylous, ſeuē Angels hauyng the ſeuen laſt plages, for in them is fulfilled the wrathe of God. And I ſawe as it were a glaſſye ſea, myngled with fyre, and them that had gotten victorye of the beaſte, and of his ymage, and of the nombre of hys name, ſtande on the glaſſye ſea, hauyng the harpes of God: and they ſonge the ſonge of Moſes the ſeruaunte of God, and the ſonge of the lambe, ſaying: Greate and maruelous Esai.21.c. are thy workes, * Lorde God almightie, Jere.51.a iuſte & true are thy wayes, thou kyng of ſayntes. Who ſhall not feare, O Lorde, & glorifye thy name? For thou onlye art holy, and all Gentyles ſhall come and worſhyp before thee, for thy iudgementes are made manifeſt.
B And after that, I loked, and behold, the temple of the tabernacle of teſtimonye was open in heauen, & the ſeuen Angels came out of the temple, which had the ſeuen plages, clothed in pure and bryght lynnen, and hauyng theyr breſtes gyrded with golden gyrdels. And one of yͤ foure beaſtes gaue vnto yͤ ſeuen Angels, ſeuen golden vyals, full of the wrathe of God, whyche lyueth for euermore. And the temple was full of the ſmoke of the glorye of God and of his power, and no man was hable to entre into the temple, tyll the ſeuen plages of the ſeuen Angels were fulfylled.

The .xvi. Chapter.

The Angels powre out theyr vyals full of wrath.

AND I hearde a great voyce out of A
the temple ſaying to the ſeuen Angels:
go your waies, powre out your vials of wrathe vpon the earth. And the firſt Angell wente, and powred out hys vyall vpon the earth, & there fell a noyſome and a ſore botch vpon the menne whiche had the marke of the beaſte, and vpon them whiche worſhypped hys ymage.
And the ſeconde Angell ſhed out his vyall vpon the ſea, and it turned as it were into the bloud of a dead man: and euery lyuyng thyng dyed in the ſea. And the thyrd Angel ſhed out his vyall vpon the ryuers & fountaynes of waters, and they turned to bloud.

And I hearde an Angell ſaye: Lorde, B whiche arte and waſte, thou arte ryghteous and holy, becauſe thou haſte geuen ſuche iudgementes, for they ſhed out the bloud of ſayntes and Prophetes, & therfore haſte thou geuen them bloude to drynke: for they are worthy. And I heard another out of the aulter ſaye: euen ſo Lorde God almightie: true and ryghteous are thy iudgementes.

And the fourth Angell powred out hys vyal on the ſunne, and power was geuen vnto hym to vexe men with heate of fyre.
And the men raged in great heat: & ſpake euil of yͤ name of God, which hath power ouer thoſe plages, and they repented not of their euyll dedes, to geue hym glorye.
And the fyft Angel powred out his vyal vpon the ſeate of the beaſte, & his kyngdome waxed darke, and they gnewe their tongues for ſorowe, and blaſphemed the God of heauen for ſorowe and payne of their ſores, & repented not of theyr dedes. C

And the ſixt Angel powred out his vyal vpon the great ryuer Euphrates, and the water dꝛyed vp, that the wayes of the kynges of ẏ eaſt ſhould be pꝛepared. And I ſaw thꝛe vncleane ſpꝛites like frogges, come out of the mouth of ẏ dꝛagon, ⁊ out of the mouth of the beaſt, and out of the mouth of the falſe pꝛophete. Foꝛ they are the ſpyrites of deuyls, woꝛkyng myꝛacles, to goe out vnto the kynges of the earth and of the whole woꝛlde, to gather them to the battayle of that great daye of and mē ſee his filthynes. And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebꝛue tong Armagedon. And the ſeuenth Angel powꝛed out his vyall into ẏ ayꝛe. And there came a great voyce out of heauē from the ſeat, ſaying: it is done.

And there folowed voyces, thōdꝛynges, and lyghtnynges, and there was a great earthquake, ſuche as was not ſence men were vpon ẏ earth, ſo myghty an earthquake ⁊ ſo great. And the great citie was deuided into thꝛee partes, ⁊ the cities of all nacions fel. And great Babilon came in remembꝛaunce befoꝛe God, to geue vnto her the cup of the wine of the fearcenesse of his wꝛathe. Euery yle alſo fled away, and the mountaines were not foūd.
And there fel a great haile (as it had been talentes) out of heauen vpon the menne:
and the menne blaſphemed God becauſe C of the plage of the hayle, foꝛ it was great and the plage of it ſoꝛe.

The. xvii. Chapter.

He deſcribeth the woman ſyttyng vpon the beaſt with tenne hoꝛnes.

AND there came one of the ſeuen Angels,
A which had the ſeuen vyals ⁊ talked wͭ me, ſaying vnto me: come, I will ſhew vnto thee ẏ iudgement of the great whoꝛe that ſitteth vpon many waters, with whome haue committed foꝛnicacion the kynges of the earth: ⁊ the inhabiters of the earth are dꝛoncken wyth
the wine of her foꝛnicacion. And ẏ ſpirite caryed me away into the wildernes. And I ſawe a woman ſit vpon a roſecoloured beaſt, full of names of blaſphemy, which had. vii. heades, ⁊. x. hoꝛnes. And the womā was arayed in purple ⁊ roſecoloure, and decked with gold, pꝛecious ſtone, ⁊ pearles, ⁊ had a cup of gold in her hand, full of abhominacions and filthyneſſe of her foꝛnicaciō. And in her foꝛehead was a name wꝛytten, a miſterye, greate Babilon the mother of whoꝛdom ⁊ abhominacions of the earth. And I ſawe ẏ wyfe dꝛoncken with the bloud of ſainctes, and with the bloud of the witneſſes of Ieſu.
And when I ſawe her, I wondꝛed with B great maruaile. And ẏ Angel ſayed vnto me: wherfoꝛe maruaileſt ẏ? I will ſhewe thee ẏ miſtery of the womā, ⁊ of the beaſt that beareth her, which hath ſeuen heads and ten hoꝛnes. The beaſt that thou ſeeſt, was ⁊ is not, ⁊ ſhall aſcende out of ẏ bottomleſſe pitte, ⁊ ſhall go into perdicion: ⁊ they that dwel on the earth ſhall wonder (whoſe names are not wꝛitten in ẏ booke of lyfe from the begynning of the woꝛld) when they behold the beaſt that was ⁊ is not. And here is a minde that hath wiſedome.
The ſeuen heads are ſeuen mountaynes, on which the woman ſitteth: they C are alſo ſeuen kynges. Fiue are fallen, ⁊ one is, and another is not yet come. And when he cōmeth, he muſt continue a ſhoꝛt ſpace. And the beaſt yͭ was, and is not, is euen the eight, ⁊ is one of the ſeuen, and ſhall goe into deſtruccion. And the tenne hoꝛnes whiche thou ſaweſt, are tenne kynges whiche haue receyued no kyngdome as yet, but ſhall receyue power as kynges at one houre with ẏ beaſt. These haue one mynde, ⁊ ſhal geue their power and ſtrength vnto the beaſt. These ſhall fight with the lambe, ⁊ the lambe ſhall overcome thē. * Foꝛ he is Loꝛd of Loꝛdes, *1. Ti. 6. d and kyng of kinges, and they that are on his ſyde are called, ⁊ choſen, ⁊ faythfull.
And he ſayd vnto me: the waters whiche D thou ſaweſt, where the whoꝛe ſitteth, are people, and folke, and nacions, ⁊ tonges.
And the tenne hoꝛnes, which thou ſaweſt vpō the beaſt, are they that ſhall hate the whoꝛe, ⁊ ſhal make her deſolate ⁊ naked, and ſhall eate her fleſhe, ⁊ burne her with fyꝛe. Foꝛ God hath put in theyꝛ heartes to fulfil his wil, and to do with one conſent, foꝛ to geue theyꝛ kyngdom vnto the beaſt, vntyll the woꝛdes of God be fulfilled.
And the womā which thou ſaweſt, is that great citie, whiche raigneth ouer
the kynges of the earth.

The. xviii. Chapter.

The louers of the woꝛlde are ſory for the fal of Babilon, but they that be of God haue cauſe to reioyce foꝛ her deſtruccion.

AND after that, I ſawe another Angel come from heauen, hauing A greate power, and the earth was lightened wͭ his bꝛightnes. And he cried mightely

mightelye with a ſtrong voyce, ſaying. Eſay.21.c *Great Babilon is fallen, is fallen, and Iere.50.a is become the inhabitacion of deuyls, ⁊ the holde of al foule ſpirites, and a cage of all vncleane and hateful byrdes: for al nacions haue dronken of the wine of the wrath of her fornicacion. And the kinges of yͤ earth haue cōmitted fornicacion wͭ her, ⁊ yͤ marchantes of yͤ earth are wexed ryche of yͤ aboundaūce of her pleaſures.

B And I hearde another voyce from heauē, ſay: come away from her my people, that ye bee not partakers of her ſynnes, and that ye receyue not of her plagues. For her ſynnes are gone vp to heauen, and God hathe remembred her wickednes. Rewarde her euen as ſhe rewarded you, ⁊ geue her double according to her woorkes. And powre in double to her in the ſame cup whiche ſhe fylled vnto you. As muche as ſhe glorifyed herſelfe and liued wantonly, ſo muche powre ye in for her of puniſhment ⁊ ſorow, for ſhe Eſai.47.b ſaid in her ſelfe: *I ſitte being a quene, and am no widdowe, and ſhall ſee no ſorow. C Therefore ſhall her plagues come in one daye, death, and ſorowe, and honger, and ſhe ſhalbe brente with fyre: for ſtrōg is yͤ lord god which ſhal iudge her.

And the kynges of the earthe ſhal bewepe her, ⁊ waile ouer her, which haue cōmitted fornicacion with her, and haue liued wantonly with her, when they ſhal ſee the ſmoke of her burnyng, and ſhall ſtande a farre of, for feare of her puniſhmente, Iere.51.a ſaying. *Alas, alas, that greate citie Babilon, that myghtie citie: for at one houre is thy iudgement come.

D And the marchauntes of the earthe ſhal wepe ⁊ wayle in themſelues, for no manne will bye theyr ware anye more, the ware of golde, and ſyluer, and precious ſtones, neyther of pearle ⁊ raynes, and purple, ⁊ ſkarlet, ⁊ all thynne wood, and all maner veſſels of yuery, ⁊ al maner veſſels of moſt precious wood, ⁊ of braſſe, and yron, (& marble) ⁊ ſinamon, and odours, ⁊ ointementes, ⁊ frankenſence, ⁊ wyne, ⁊ oile, and fine floure, and wheat, beaſtes, and ſhepe, and horſes, and charettes, and bodies, and ſoules of menne. And the apples that thy ſoule luſted after, are departed from thee. And al thinges which were deintie and had in price, are departed frō thee, ⁊ thou ſhalte fynd them no more. The marchantes of theſe thynges which were wexed ryche, ſhall ſtande afarre of from her, for [illegible] of yͤ puniſhment of her, weping and wa[illegible] and ſaying: *Alas, alas, that great cit[illegible] that was clothed in raynes, and purple, and ſkarlet, and decked with golde, and precious ſtones, and pearles, for at one houre ſo great riches is come to nought.

And euery ſhyppe gouernour, and all they that occupied ſhippes, and ſhipmen which worke in the ſea, ſtode a farre of ⁊ cryed, whē they ſaw yͤ ſmoke of her burning, ſaying: what citie is lyke vnto this great citie. And they caſt duſte on theyr heades, and cryed weping, and wailing, Iere.51 and ſayde: *Alas, alas, that great citie F wherin wer made riche al that had ſhippes in the ſea, by yͤ reaſō of her coſtlines, for at one houre is ſhee made deſolate. Reioyce ouer her thou heauē, and ye holy Apoſtles and Prophetes: for God hath geuen your iudgement on her. And a mightie Angel tooke vp a ſtone lyke a great myſtone, and caſte it into the ſea, ſaying: with ſuch violēce ſhal that great citie Babilon be caſt, and ſhalbe founde no more. G And the voyce of harpers, and muſicions, and of pipers, and trumpeters, ſhalbe heard no more in thee: and no craftes man, of whatſoeuer craft he be, ſhalbe found any more in thee. And yͤ ſound of a myll ſhalbe heard no more in thee, (and candle light ſhalbe no more burning in thee) and the voyce of the brydegrome and of yͤ bryde, ſhalbe heard no more in thee: for thy marchantes were the great men of the earth. And with thyne inchauntement were diſceaued all nacions: and in her was founde the bloude of the Prophetes, and of the ſainctes, and of al that were ſlayne vpon the earth.

The.xix. Chapter.

Prayſe is geuen vnto god for iudging the whore, and for auenging the bloud of hys ſeruauntes. The Angel will not be wurſhipped. The foules and byrdes are called to the ſlaughter.

AND after yͭ, I heard a great voice of A much people in heauen, ſay[illegible] Alleluya. Saluaciō and glory and honour and power, be aſcribed to the lord our God, for true and righteous are his iudgemētes, for he hath iudged yͤ great whore which did corrupt the earth with her fornicacion, and hathe auenged the bloude of hys ſeruauntes of her hande. And agayne they ſayde: Alleluya. And ſmoke roſe vp for euermore. And the .xxiiii. elders, ⁊ the .iiii. beſtes fel down ⁊ wurſhipped ypped God that ſate on the ſeate, ſaying: Amen, Alleluia. And a voice came out of the ſeate, ſaying: prayſe our lord God al ye that are his ſeruantes, and ye that feare him, both ſmal and great.

And I hearde the voyce of much people, euen as the voyce of many waters, &
as the voyce of ſtrong thondrynges, ſaying: Alleluia, for the Lorde oure God B omnipotente raygneth. Let vs be glad & reioyce, and geue honour to him: for the mariage of the lambe is come, and hys wyfe made her ſelfe readye. And to her was graunted, that ſhe ſhoulde be arayed with pure & goodly raynes. For the raynes is the righteouſneſſe of ſainctes.
at.22. a And he ſayd vnto me, write: *happy are ke.14. a they which are called vnto the ſupper of yͤ lambes mariage. And he ſayd vnto me: theſe are the true ſayinges of god. And I fell at hys feete, to wurſhip him. And he ſayd vnto me: ſe thou do it not. For I am thy felow ſeruant, & one of thy brethren, euen of them that haue the teſtimony of Jeſus. Wurſhip God. For the teſtimony
C of Jeſus is the ſpirite of prophecy.

And I ſaw heauen open, and beholde
a whyte horſe: and he that ſat vpon hym was called faithful & true, and in righteouſnes he doeth iudge and make battail.
His eies wer as a flame of fire: & on his name written, that no man knewe but he ap.53. b hymſelfe. *And he was clothed with a which were in heauen, folowed him vpon whyte horſes, clothed with whyte and pure raynes: and out of his mouth wente a ſharpe two edged ſweorde, that with it he ſhoulde ſmyte the Heathen.

And he ſhal rule them with a rodde of yron:
& he trode the wynefat of fearſenes D and wrath of almightie God. And hath on his veſture and on hys thygh a name writte: king of kinges, & lord of lordes.

And I ſaw an angel ſtand in the ſunne,
and he cryed with a loude voyce, ſaying
to all the foules that flye by the middes of heauen: come and gather your ſelues together vnto the ſupper of the greate god, that ye may eate the fleſh of kinges, and the fleſhe of hye capitaynes, and the fleſhe of mightie menne, and the fleſhe of horſes, and of them that ſit on them, and the fleſhe of all freemen and bondemen, and of ſmall and greate. And I ſawe the beaſte, and the kynges of the earthe, and theyr warryers gathered together to make battayl agaynſt him that ſat on the
the horſe, and agaynſt his ſouldiers.
And the beaſte was taken, and with him that falſe prophet that wroughte miracles before hym, with which he deceiued them that receyued the beaſtes marke, & thē that worſhipped hys ymage. Theſe both wer caſt quicke into a pond of fyre burning with brimſtone: & the remnaūt wer ſlayne with the ſweord of hym that ſate vpon the horſe, whiche ſweord proceded out of his mouth: & al the foules were fulfilled with theyr fleſhe.

The .xx. Chapter.

The dragon is bounde for a .M. yeres. The dead aryſe, and receiue iudgement.

AND I ſawe an Aungell come A downe from heauen, hauing the kaye of the botomleſſe pyt, and a great chayne in hys hande.

And he toke the Dragon that olde serpent, which is the Deuil and Satanas,
and he bounde hym a thouſande yeres:
and caſt hym into the botomles pit, and he ſhut hym vp, and ſette a ſeale on hym, that he ſhoulde dyſceaue the people no more, till the thouſande yeres were fulfilled.
And after that he muſte ber leuſed
for a litle ſeaſon.

And I ſawe ſeates, and they ſat vpon B them, and iudgemente was geuen vnto them: and I ſaw the ſoules of them that were beheaded for the witnes of Jeſu, and for the woord of God, & which had not wurſhipped the beaſte, neyther hys ymage, neyther had taken hys marke vpon their forheades, or in their handes, and they liued, and raygned with Chriſt
a thouſand yere: but the other of yͤ dead men liued not again, vntil the thouſande yere were finiſhed. Thys is that firſt resurreccion.
Bleſſed and holye is he that hath part in the firſt reſurreccion. For on ſuch ſhall the ſeconde death hane no power, but they ſhalbe the prieſtes of God and of Chriſt, and ſhal raygne with hym a thouſande yere. C

And when the thouſande yeres are expyred, Eze.38.

people whiche are in the foure quarters of the earth, Gog and Magog: to gather them together to battayle, whoſe number is as the ſand of the ſea : and they went vp in the playne of the earthe, and compaſſed the tentes of the ſayntes aboute, and the beloued citie. And fyre came downe from God out of heauen, and deuoured them: and the deuell that diſceiued them was caſte into a lake of fire and brimſtone, where the beaſte and yͤ falſe prophetes ſhalbe tormented daie and nyghte for euermore. And I ſawe a greate white ſeate, and hym that ſate on it, from whoſe face fled awaye both the yearth

and heauen, and theyr place was nomore D founde. And I ſawe the dead, bothe greate and ſmal ſtand before God: And the bokes wer opened, and another boke was opened, whyche is the boke of lyfe, and the deade were iudged of thoſe thynges whyche were writtẽ in yͤ bokes accordyng to theyr dedes:
and the ſea gaue vp her dead, whyche were in her, and death and hel delyuered vp the deade, whyche were in them: and they were iudged euery man accordyng to his dedes.
And death and hel were caſte into the lake of fire. This is yͤ ſecond death. And whoſoeuer was not founde written in the boke of life, was caſt into the lake of fyre.

The .xxi. Chapte[illegible]

In this chapter is deſcrybed the new and ſpirituall Jeruſalem.

Eſa.45.c. AND I ſawe a newe heauen ⁊ a and.66.b newe earth. For the firſt heauen, 2.Pet.3.a. ⁊ the firſte earth were vaniſhed awaye, and there was nomore
ſea. And I Jhon ſawe that holy citie, newe Jeruſalem, come downe from God oute of heauen, prepared as a bryde garniſhed for her huſbande. And I herde a great voyce out of heauẽ, ſaying: beholde, the tabernacle of God is wyth men, and he wyll dwel with them. And they ſhalbe his people, and God him ſelfe ſhalbe with them, ⁊ be theyr God.
Eſa.25.c, * And God ſhal wipe away all teares from theyr eyes. And there ſhalbe nomore death, nether ſorowe, nether cryyng, nether ſhall
there be any more payne, for the olde thynges are gone. And he that ſate vpõ the ſeat, Eſai.43.d ſaid: * Behold, I make all thynges newe.
2.Cori.5.d And he ſaied vnto me: wryte, for theſe wordes are faythfull and true.

And he ſaied vnto me: it is done, I am Alpha and Omega, the begynnyng and the ende: I wyll geue to hym that is a thyrſt, of the well of the water of life, free. He that ouercommeth, ſhall inherite all thynges, nd I will be hys God, and he ſhalbe my ſonne. But the fearefull ⁊ vnbeleuyng, and C the abhominable, ⁊ murderers, and whoremongers, and ſorcerers, and ydolaters, and all lyars ſhall haue their parte in the lake whyche burneth with fyre and brymſtone, whiche is the ſecond death.

And ther came vnto me one of yͤ .vii. angels, whiche had the ſeuẽ vialles full of [illegible] ſeuen laſt plages: and talked wyth me, ſaying:
come hyther, I wyll ſhewe thee the bryde, the lambes wife. And he caryed me away in the ſpirite to a great ⁊ an hie mountayne, and he ſhewed me the greate citie holy Jeruſalem, deſcendyng out of heauen from D God, hauing yͤ bryghtnes of God. And her ſhynyng was lyke vnto a ſtone moſte precious, euen lyke a Jaſper clere as Criſtal: ⁊ had walles greate and hye, and had .xii. gates, and at the gates .xii. Angels ⁊ names wrytten, whyche are the names of the .xii.
tribes of Iſrael: on the Eaſt parte .iii. gates, and on the Northſyde thre gates, and towardes the South .iii. gates, and from the Weſt .iii. gates, and the wal of the citie had
.xii. foundacions: and in them the .xii. names of the lambes .xii. Apoſtles.

E And he that talked with me, had a golden reede to meſure the citie wythall, and the gates thereof, and the wall thereof. And the cytie was builte .iiii. ſquare, and the lengthe was as large as the bredth, and he meaſured yͤ citie with the (golden) rede .xii. M. furlõges: ⁊ the length and the bredth, and the heigth of it, were equall. And he meaſured the wall therof, an .cxliiii. cubites: the meaſure that the angell had, was after the meaſure that man vſeth. And the buyldyng of the wall of it was of Jaſper. And the citie was pure gold, like vnto clere glaſſe, ⁊ the foundaciõs of the wall of the cytie were garniſhed with F all maner of precious ſtones. The fyrſte foundaciõ was Jaſpys, yͤ ſecond Saphire, the thyrde a Calcedony, yͤ .iiii. an Emeralde, the .v. Sardonix, the .vi. Sardeos, [illegible] Cryſolyte, the .viii. Berall, the .ix. a [illegible] the .x. a Cruſopraſos, the .xi. a Jacy[illegible] the
.xii. an Amathiſte.

The twelue gates were .xii. pearles, euery gate was of one pearle, and the ſtrete of the citie was pure golde, as thorowe ſhynyng

G For the Lorde God almightie and the lãbe Eſai. are the temple of it. * And the citie hath no nede of the ſunne neither of the moone to lyghten it. For the bryghtnes of God of it.

of it. And yͤ people which are ſaued ſhall walke in the lighte of it. And the kynges of the earth ſhall bryng their glorye (and honoure) vnto it. Eſai.60.a *And yͤ gates of it are not ſhut by daye. For there ſhalbe no nyghte there. (And into it ſhall they bryng the glory and honoure of the nacions.) And there ſhall entre into it none vncleane thing, nether whatſoeuer worketh abhominacion, or maketh lyes: but they only which are wrytten in the lambes boke of life.

¶ The.xxii. Chapter.

The ryuer of the water of lyfe, the frutefulnes and lyght of the cytie of God. The Lorde geueth euer hys ſeruauntes warnynge of thynges to come, the angell wyll not be worſhipped. To the worde of God maye nothyng be added nor mynyſhed.

And he ſhewed me a pure ryuer of water of life, clere as Chriſtal, procedyng out of yͤ ſeat of God, and the lambe. In the myddes of the ſtrete of it, and of ether ſyde of the ryuer was there wood of life: which bare twelue manner of frutes: and gaue frute euery moneth: and the leaues of the wood ſerued to heale the people wythall. And there ſhalbe nomore curſe, but the ſeat of God and the lambe ſhalbe in it: and hys ſeruauntes ſhal ſerue hym. And they ſhall Eſai.60.d B ſe his face, and his name ſhalbe in their forheades. *And ther ſhalbe no night ther, and they nede no candle, nether light of the ſunne: for the Lord God geueth them light, and they ſhal reigne for euermore.

And he ſaied vnto me: theſe ſayinges are faythfull and true. And the Lord God of the holy prophetes ſente his angell to ſhewe vnto hys ſeruauntes, the thynges whiche muſte ſhortly be fulfilled. Beholde, Apoca.1.a I come ſhortely. *Happy is he that kepeth the ſaying of the prophecye of this boke. I am Jhon whiche ſawe theſe thynges, and heard the. And when I had heard and ſene, [illegible] downe, to worſhip before the feete of [illegible] whiche ſhewed me theſe thinges. [illegible] ſaied vnto me: ſe thou do it not, for I am thy felowe ſeruaũt, & the felowe ſeruaũt of thy brethren the prophetes, and of them which kepe yͤ ſayinges, of (the probecie of) thys boke. But worſhip God.

And he ſaied vnto me: ſeale not the ſayinges of the prophecye of this booke. For the tyme is at hande. He that doeth euyll let hym do euyll ſtyll: and he whiche is fylthy, let hym be fylthy ſtyll: and he that is righteous, let hym be more righteous: and he that is holye, let hym be more holy. And beholde, I come ſhortly, and my rewarde is with me, to geue euery man accordynge as his dedes ſhalbe. I am Alpha & Omega, the begynnyng and the ende: the fyrſte and the laſte. Bleſſed are they that do hys commaundementes, that their power maye be in the tree of life: and maye entre in thorowe the gates into yͤ citie. Eſa.44 Apoca.1 ‡ For without ſhalbe dogges and inchaunters, & whoremongers, & murtherers, and idolaters, and whoſoeuer loueth or maketh leaſynges.

I Jeſus ſent myne Angel, to teſtyfy vnto you theſe thynges in yͤ congregacions. D I am the roote and the generacion of Dauid, and the bryght mornyng ſtarre. And the ſpyryte and the bryde ſaye, come. And let hym that heareth, ſaye alſo: come. Eſai.55 John.7 *And let hym that is a thirſt, come. And let whoſoeuer wyll, take of the water of life, free.

I teſtifye vnto euery man that heareth the wordes of the prophecye of this boke: Deut.4. and.12.d Prou.30 *yf any man ſhall adde vnto theſe thynges, God ſhall adde vnto hym the plages that are wryttẽ in this boke. And yf any mã ſhal mynyſhe of the wordes of the boke of thys prophecy, God ſhal take away his parte out of the boke of lyfe, & out of the holye cytie, & frõ the thinges whyche are wryttẽ in this boke. He which teſtifieth theſe thynges, ſaith: be it. I come quickelye: Amen. Euen ſo come Lorde Jeſu. The grace of our Lord Jeſu Chriſt be with you all. Amen.

The.x ii. Chapter.

Certayne men are ſent to ſearche the lande of Canaan.

ANd the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes, A ſaying: *Sende mē out to ſearche Deut.

amōg them. And Moſes at the cōmaundement of yͤ LORD ſent foꝛth out of the wyldernesse of Pharan ſuche men as were al heades of the childꝛē of Iſrael. D Theyꝛ names are theſe. Of the tribe of Rubē, Sāmua the ſonne of Zacur. Of the tribe of Simeō, Saphat yͤ ſonne of Hoꝛi. Of the trybe of Iuda, Caleb the ſonne of Iephune. Of the trybe of Iſachar, Igeal yͤ ſonne of Ioſeph. Of the trybe of Ephꝛaim, Oſea yͤ ſōne of Nun.
Of yͤ trybe of BenJamin, Palthi the ſonne of Raphu. Of yͤ trybe of Zabulō, Gadiel the ſonne of Sodi. Of yͤ trybe of Ioſeph, namely of the trybe of Manaſſe, Gaddi yͤ of ſon Suſi. Of yͤ trybe of Dan, Amiel yͤ ſonne of Gemali. Of yͤ trybe of Aſer, Sethur yͤ ſonne of Michael.
Of the trybe of Nephtali, Nahebi B the ſonne of Uaphſi. Of the trybe of Gad, Guel the ſonne of Machi. Theſe are the names of the men, whych Moſes ſent to ſpye out the land. And Moſes called the name of Oſea the ſonne of Nun, Ioſua.

And Moſes ſent them foꝛth to ſpye out yͤ lande of Canaā, ⁊ ſayd vnto thē:
get you vp this waye ſouthwarde, that ye may go vp into the hye coūtrey, and ſe the lande what maner thyng it is, ⁊ the people yͭ dwelleth therin: whether they be ſtronge oꝛ weake, ether fewe oꝛ many, and what the lande is that they dwell in, whether it be good oꝛ bad: and what maner of cyties they be, that they

of lande it is, whether it be fatte oꝛ leane, and whether there be trees therin oꝛ not. Be of a good coꝛage, ⁊ bꝛyng of the frute of the lande. And it was about yͤ tyme that grapes are fyꝛſt rype.

C And ſo they went vp, ⁊ ſearched out the lande frō the wyldernesſe of Zin vnto Rehob, as mē come to Hemath, ⁊ they aſcended vnto the ſouth, and came vnto Hebꝛon, where Ahiman was ⁊ Seſai ⁊ Thalmani, the ſonnes of Enack. Hebꝛon was buylt .vii. yere befoꝛe Zoan in Egipte. And they came vnto yͤ ryuer of Eſcol, and cutte downe there a bꝛaūche wyth one clouſtre of grapes ⁊ twayne bare it vpon a ſtaffe: and they bꝛought alſo of the pomgranates ⁊ of the fygges. And the place was called the ryuer Eſcol: becauſe of the clouſtre of grapes whych yͤ chyldꝛen of Iſrael cut downe thēce. And they turned backe agayne frō ſearchyng of yͤ lande after fourty dayes. And they went and came to Moſes ⁊ Aaron and vnto all

D the multitude of the chyldꝛen of Iſrael in the wyldernesſe of Pharan: whyche is Cades, and bꝛought them woꝛde, ⁊ alſo vnto al the cōgregacion, ⁊ ſhewed them the frute of the lande. And they tolde hym, and ſayd: we came vnto the land whither thou ſenddeſt vs, ⁊ ſuerly it floweth with mylke and hony: ⁊ here is of the frute of it. Neuertheleſſe, the people be ſtronge that dwell in yͤ lāde, ⁊ the cyties are walled and exceadyng great: and moꝛeouer, we ſawe the chyldꝛē of Enacke there. The Amalechites dwell in the ſouth coūtrey, and the Hethites, Jebuſites, ⁊ the Amoꝛites dwel in the mountaynes, and the Cananites dwel by yͤ ſea, ⁊ by yͤ coſtes of Joꝛdan.

And Caleb ſtylled yͤ (murmure that was rayſed vp) of the people befoꝛe Moſes, ſaying: we wyl go vp, and conquere it: foꝛ we be able to ouercome it. But the men that went vp wyth hym, ſayd: We be not able to go vp againſt the people foꝛ they are ſtrōger then we. And they bꝛought vp an euel repoꝛt of the lande whych they had ſearched, ſaying vnto the chyldꝛen of Iſrael: the lande which we haue gone thoꝛow to ſearche it out, is a lāde that eateth vp the inhabiters therof: and the people that we ſawe in it, are men of a great ſtature. And there we ſawe alſo gyauntes, the chyldꝛen of Enacke, whych come of the gyauntes. And we ſemed in our ſyght as it were greſhoppers, and ſo we dyd in theyꝛ ſyght.

The .xiiii. Chapter.

The people murmure agaynſt God / and woulde haue ſtoned Caleb and Joſue. The ſearchers of the lande dye. Amalech kylleth the Iſraelites.

A And all the multitude of the people cryed out, and wepte thoꝛowe out that nyght, and all the chyldꝛen of Iſrael murmured agaynſt Moſes and Aaron. And the whole congregacion ſayd vnto them: woulde GOD that we had dyed in the lande of Egypt, eyther that we had dyed in thys wyldernesſe. Wherfoꝛe hath the LORD bꝛought vs vnto thys lande, to fall vpon yͤ ſweard: and that our wyues, and our chyldꝛen ſhould be a pꝛaye? Were it not better yͤ we returne vnto Egypt agayne? And they ſayd one to another: We wyl make a captayne and returne vnto Egypte agayne.

B But Moſes and Aaron fell on theyꝛ faces befoꝛe al the cōgregacion ⁊ multytude of yͤ chyldꝛen of Iſrael. And Joſua the ſōne of Nun, ⁊ Caleb the ſonne of Jephune (whych were of them that ſearched the lande) rent theyꝛ clothes, and ſpake vnto all the company of the chyldꝛen of Iſrael, ſaying: The lande whyche we walked thoꝛowe to ſearche it, is a very good lande. yf the LORDE hath luſte to vs, he wyll bꝛynge vs into thys land and geue it vs, which is ſuch a lāde as floweth wyth mylke ⁊ hony. But in any wyſe rebell not ye agaynſte the LORDE. *Neyther nede ye to feare the people of the lande foꝛ they are but bꝛead foꝛ vs. Theyꝛ ſhadowe is departed from them, and the LORDE is wyth vs: feare them not therfoꝛe. Deut. 20.

But al they whych were in that multitude bad ſtone them with ſtones. And the gloꝛy of the LORD appeared in the Tabernacle of wytnesſe, befoꝛe all the chyldꝛen of Iſrael. And the LORD ſaid vnto Moſes: How long do this people pꝛouoke me, ⁊ howe long wyll it be yer they beleue me, foꝛ al yͤ ſygnes whyche I haue ſhewed amonge them? I wyll ſmyte them wͭ the peſtilence, ⁊ deſtroye them: ⁊ wyl make of thee a greater nacion, and a myghtyer then they.

And Moſes ſayde vnto the LORDE: then the Egipcians ſhall heare it, foꝛ thou bꝛoughteſt thys people in thy myght frō among them. And it wyll be tolde to the inhabyters of thys lande alſo: foꝛ they haue heard lykewyſe, that thou LORD art amonge thys people:

And now I beſeche the, let the

The.xv Chapter.

¶The drynke offerynges of them that entre into the lande. The punyſhment of him that ſynneth of arrogancie or pride.

A AND the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes,ſayinge:ſpeake vnto the chyldren of Iſraell, and ſaye vnto thē: Leuit.23.b *whē ye be come into the land of youre habitacions,whiche I geue vnto you, and wyll offer an offerynge vnto the LORDE. Namely a burntofferyng or a ſpeciall ſacrifice,ether of a vowe or of a wyllyng mynde, and in your principal feaſtes, to make a ſwete ſauoure vnto the LORDE of the oxen or of yͤ flocke.

Leuit.2.a. and.6.b. Then*let him that offereth his offerynge vnto the LORDE, brynge alſo a meateofferyng of a tenth deale of flour myngled with the fourth parte of an hin of oyle, and the fourthe parte of an hin of wine for a drynke offeryng, and offer with the burntofferynge or anye other offeryng when it is a lambe. Or yf it be a ramme,thou ſhalte offer for a meate offerynge, two tenthe deales of floure myngle wyth the thyrde parte of ān hin of oyle:and for a drynke offerynge,thou ſhalte offer the thyrde part of an hyn of wyne for a ſwete ſauoure vnto the LORDE.

B And when thou offereſt a bullocke for a burnteofferynge or for a ſpecyall vowe or peaceoffering vnto yͤ LORDE, lette hym brynge with a bullocke a meateofferynge of three tenth deales of floure myngled with halfe an hin of oyle. And thou ſhalt brynge for a drink offeryng:euen halfe an hin of wyne, for an offeryng of a ſwete ſauoure vnto yͤ LORDE. After thys maner ſhall it be done for an oxe,or for a ramme, or for a lambe or a kyd. Loke what nūbre thou makeſt in theſe, ſuche a numbre ſhalte thou make in them alſo.

And according to the numbre of ſuch offrynges thou ſhalte encreaſe yͤ meat offerynges and the drynkeofferynges. All that are of your ſelues ſhal do theſe thynges after this maner, to offer an offerynge of ſwete ſauoure vnto the LORDE. And yf a ſtraūger ſoiourne wͭ you, or whoſoeuer be amonge you in your generacions,& wyll offer an offeryng of a ſwete ſauoure vnto yͤ LORD: euen as ye do, ſo he ſhall do. One ordynaunce ſhalbe both for you of the congregacyō,& alſo for the ſtraunger. It ſhalbe an ordynaunce for euer in your generacions,both vnto you and to the ſtraunger before the LORD. One law C and one maner ſhall ſerue, both for you and for the ſtraunger that ſoiournethe with you. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes,ſayinge:ſpeake vnto the chyldren of Iſrael,and ſay vnto thē:* Whē Deute.8 ye be come into the lande to the which I brynge you, then when ye wyll eate of the breade of the lande, ye ſhall take vp an heue offeryng vnto the LORDE.

And yf ye ouerſe youre ſelues, and obſerue not al theſe commaundementes, whiche the LORDE hathe ſpoken vnto Moſes,euen all that the LORDE hath commaunded you by the hande of Moſes from the firſt day that the LORDE commaunded Moſes, and hence forwarde amonge youre generacyons.

If it happen that ought is commytted ignorauntlie of the cōgregacion,al the multytude ſhall offer a bullocke for a burntofferyng,to be a ſwete ſauour vnto the LORDE,with the meateoffering and drynkeofferyng therto, according to the maner, and an he goat for ſinne. And the prieſt ſhal make an attonemēt for all the multytude of the children of Iſraell, and it ſhall be forgeuen them: for it is ygnoraunce. And they ſhall bryng theyr offeryng for a ſacrifice vnto the LORD:& their ſynoffering before the LORDE for theyr ygnoraunce. And it ſhall be forgeuen vnto all the multytude of the children of Iſraell,and vnto the ſtraunger that dwelleth amōge you:ſeynge all the people were in ygnoraunce.

D Leuit.4. * If any one ſoule ſynne thorowe ygnoraunce,he ſhall bryng a ſhe goate of a yeare olde for ſynne. And bothe thou that arte borne of the children of Iſraell, and the ſtraunger that dwelleth among you, ſhall haue bothe one lawe, whoſo doth ſynne thorowe ignoraunce. But the ſoule that doeth ought preſumptuouſly, whither he be an Iſraelite or a ſtraunger, the ſame blaſphemeth the LORDE. And that ſoule ſhall be roted out frō amōge his people, becauſe he hath diſpiſed the worde of the LORDE, and hath broken his cōmaundemente: that ſoule therefore ſhall peryſhe, and his ſynne ſhalbe vpō him. And while the children of Iſraell were in the wyldernes, they foūd a man that gathered ſtyckes vpon the od. 31. c *Sabboth daye.

And they that found him gathering ſtickes, brought him vnto Moſes and Aaron, and vnto all the congregacion: ui. 24. d *and they put him in warde, ſeynge it was not declared what ſhould be done vnto him. And the LORDE ſayde vnto Moſes: Let the man dye: and let all the multitude ſtone him with ſtones without the hooſt. And all the multytude broughte hym without the hooſte, and ſtoned him with ſtones, and he died as the LORDE commaunded Moſes. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: ſpeake vnto the children of Iſrael and eut. 22. b. byd them that they *make thē gardes in the quarters of their garmentes thorowout their generacions, and put vpon the garde of the quarters a ribande of yelowe ſylke. The.xvi.Chapter.

¶ The rebellyon of Corah, Dathan and Abiram.

A cle. 45. c And *Corah the ſonne of Jezehar, the ſonne of Cahath, the ſon of Leui, and Dathan, and Abiram yͤ ſon of Eliab, and On the ſonne of Peleth, the ſonne of Ruben: roſe vp before Moſes, wyth other men of the children of Iſraell, two hundred and fyftie, which were captaines of the multitude, great and famous men in the congregacion: and they gathered thē ſelues together againſte Moſes and Aaron, and ſayde vnto them: ye make muche to do, ſeyng all the multitude are holy euery one of them, and the LORDE is among them. Why heue ye your ſelues vp aboue the cōgregacyō of the LORDE? And when Moſes hearde it, he fell vpon his face, and ſpake vnto Corah and vnto all his company, ſayinge: to morowe yͤ LORD wyll ſhewe who are his, who is holye, and who oughte to approche nye vnto him, and whō he hath choſen to come to him. This do therfore, take you firepās bothe Corah and all hys cōpanye and do fire therin, and put cens in them before the LORDE to morowe.

And the man whō the LORDE doth B Nũm. 27. choſe, the ſame ſhalbe holy. ye make muche to do, ye children of Leui. And Moſes ſayde vnto Corah: *heare ye Num. children of Leui: Is it but a ſmal thīg vnto you that the GOD of Iſrael hath ſeperated you frō the multitude of Iſraell: and broughte you to hym ſelfe, to do the ſeruyce of the dwellīg place of the LORDE, and to ſtande before the D multitude and to miniſter vnto him? he hath taken the to hym and all thy brethren the ſonnes of Leui with the, and ſeke ye the office of the prieſt alſo? For whiche cauſe both thou and al thy cōpanie are gathered together agaynſte the LORDE. And what is Aarō that ye murmur agaynſt him?

And Moſes ſente, and called Dathā, C and Abiram the ſonnes of Eliab, which ſayd: we wyll not come vp. Is it a ſmal thing that thou haſt brought vs out of a lande that floweth with mylke and hony, to kyl vs in the wylderneſſe, and to raygne ouer vs alſo: Haſte thou brought vs vnto a land that floweth wͭ mylke and hony, and geuen vs inherytaunce of feldes and vyneyardes? Wylt thou pull oute the eyes of theſe men? we wyl not come vp. And Moſes waxed very angry, and ſayde vnto the LORDE. E Turne not thou vnto their offerynge. I haue not taken ſo muche as an aſſe frō thē, nether haue I hurte any of them. And Moſes ſayed vnto Deut. 11. a. Num 26. b Pſa. 106. c Corah: Be thou and all thy cōpany before the LORDE: bothe thou, they, and Aarō to morowe. And take euery man hys cenſer, and put cens in them, that ye may offer before the LORDE: euery man of the two hundred and fyftie take his cenſour, thou alſo Aarō, that euery one maye haue his cenſer. And they toke euery man his cenſer, and put fire in them, and layde cens thereon, and ſtode in the dore of the Tabernacle of wytneſſe with Moſes and Aarō. And Corah gathered all the cōgregacyō agaynſte them vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytneſſe.

And the glory of the LORDE appeared vnto all the cōgregacyō. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes and Aarō, ſayinge: ſeperate your ſelues frō amōg this cōgregaciō, that I maye conſume them at once. And they fel vpō their faces Num.27.a and ſayde. *O moſt myghtie GOD of the ſprites of all fleſhe, if one manne hath ſinned, wilte thou be wroth with all the multitude? And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: ſpeake vnto the congregacyon and ſay: Get you away frō about yͤ dwellyng of Corah, Dathan, and Abiram. And Moſes roſe vp, and went vnto Dathan and Abirā, and the elders of Iſrael folowed hym. D And he ſpake vnto the congregacyon, ſaying: depart from the tentes of theſe wycked men, and touche nothynge of theyrs: leſt ye periſhe in al their ſinnes. And ſo they gate them from the dwellynge of Corah, Dathan and Abiram on euery ſyde. And Dathan and Abirā came out and ſtode in the dore of theyr tentes with their wiues, their ſonnes, and their lytle children. And Moſes ſayde: Here by ye ſhall knowe that the LORDE hathe ſente me to do all theſe workes, and that I haue not done thē of myne owne mynde. If theſe men die the comen death of al men: or yf they be viſyted after the viſitacion of all men, then the LORDE hath not ſente me. But and yf the LORDE make a newe thyng, and the earth open her mouth, and ſwalow them vp with al that they haue: and they goe downe quicke into hell: then ye ſhal vnderſtand, that theſe men haue prouoked the LORDE.

E And it fortuned that as ſone as he had made an ende of ſpeakyng al theſe Deut.11.a. wordes, * yͤ groūd claue a ſunder that Num.26.b was vnder thē: ⁊ the earth opened her Psa.106.c. mouth, and ſwalowed them vp, and their houſes, and al the men that were with Corah, and al theyr goodes. And they and all that they had, went down alyue vnto hell, and yͤ earth cloſed vpō them and they peryſhed from amonge the congregacion. And all Iſraell that were aboute them fledde at the crie of them. And they ſayed: leſte the earth ſwalowe vs vp alſo. And there came out a fyre from the LORDE, and conſumed the two hundred and fyftie men yͭ offered cens. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: Speake vnto Eleazar, the ſonne of Aaron the Prieſte that he take vp the cenſers oute of the burnyng and ſkater the fyre here and there, for the cenſers of theſe ſynners are halowed in their deathes: and lette them make of them thynne beaten plates for a couering of the altar. For they offered them before the LORDE, ⁊ therfore they are halowed, and they ſhalbe a ſygne vnto the children of Iſraell. And Eleazar the prieſt toke the braſen cenſers whiche they that were burnte had offered, and beate them thynne for a coueryng of the altar, to be a remem- G braunce vnto the children of Iſraell, yͭ no ſtraunger whiche is not of the ſede of Aaron, come nere to offer cens before the LORD, that it happē not vnto hym, lyke as vnto Corah and hys company: as the LORDE ſayde of him by yͤ hand of Moſes. But on the morowe all the multytude of the chyldren of Iſraell murmured agaynſt Moſes and Aarō, ſayinge: ye haue killed the people of the F LORDE. And it fortuned that whē the multytude was gathered agaynſt Moſes and Aaron, they loked towarde the Tabernacle of wytneſſe. And beholde. (when they were entred into it) the cloude couered it, and the glorye of the LORDE appeared. And Moſes and Aarō came before the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: Get you from amonge this congregacion, that I may conſume them quickly. And they fell vpon their faces. And Moſes ſayde vnto Aaron: take a cenſer, and put fyre therin out of the altar, and powre on cens, and go quyckelye vnto the congregaciō, that thou maiſte obtayne forgeueneſſe for them. For there is wrathe gone oute frome the LORDE, and there is a plage begonne.

And Aarō toke as Moſes commaunded hym, and ranne into the myddes of the congregacyon, and beholde, the plage was begonne amonge yͤ people, ⁊

he put on cens,and made an attonemēt for the people. And when he stode betwene the deade and them that were alyue,the plage ceaſed. They that dyed in the plage were fourtene thouſand & ſeuen hundred : beſyde them that dyed aboute the buſines of Corah . And Aaron went agayne vnto Moſes before the dore of the tabernacle of wytneſſe, and the plage ceaſed.

And he ſhall purifie himſelfe wᵗ this water the thyrd day & the ſeuenth daye, and he ſhalbe cleane.

C But if he purifie not himſelfe the thyrd day and the ſeuenth day, he ſhall not be cleane. Whoſo euer toucheth the corſe of any mã that is dead, and ſprinkleth not him ſelfe, defyleth the dwellyng of the LORD, and that ſoule ſhalbe roted oute of Iſraell, becauſe the ſprynklynge water was not ſprynkled vpon him. He ſhalbe therfore vncleane, and his vnclenneſſe ſhall remayne vpõ him. This is the lawe of the man that dyeth in a tente: all that come into the tent, and al that is in ẏ tent ſhal be vncleane ſeuen dayes. And all the veſſels D that be opẽ which haue no lyd nor couering vpõ thẽ ſhalbe vncleane. And whoſoeuer toucheth one that is ſlaine with a ſwearde in the feldes, or a dead perſon, or a bone of a dead mã, or a graue, ſhalbe vncleane ſeuẽ dayes. Therfore, for an vncleane perſon they ſhall take of the burnt aſſhes of the ſynofferyng, and runnynge water ſhal be put therto in a veſſell. And let a cleane perſone Psal.51.b. *take yſope and dippe it in the water, and ſprynkle it vpon the tent, and vpon all the veſſelles, and on the ſoules that were therin, and vpõ him that touched a bone, or a ſlayne perſone, or a dead bodye, or a graue. And the cleane perſone ſhall ſprynkle vpon the vncleane the thyrd day & the.vii.day, & ẏ ſeuẽth daye he ſhal purifie himſelfe, and waſhe his clothes, and bath hymſelfe in water, & ſhal be cleane at euen. But the mã that is vncleane and ſprynkleth not hymſelfe, the ſame ſoule ſhall be deſtroyed from amonge the cõgregacion: becauſe he hathe defyled the holye place of the LORDE, and the ſprinkling water hath not bene ſprynkled vpon him, therefore ſhall he remayne vncleane. And thys ſhalbe a perpetuall lawe vnto them. And he that ſprynkleth the ſprynklyng water, ſhall waſhe his clothes. And he that toucheth the ſprynklynge water, ſhal be vncleane vntyl euen. And what ſoeuer the vncleane perſone toucheth ſhalbe vncleane. And ẏ ſoule that toucheth it ſhalbe vncleane vntyl the euẽ.

MirJam dyeth. The people murmur. They haue water euen out of the rocke. Edom denyed the Iſraelites paſſage thorowe his realme. The death of Aaron in whoſe rowme Eleazar ſucceđeth

A AND the children of Iſrael came wᵗ the whole multitude into the deſert* of Syn in the fyrſt moneth, & Num.3 the people abode at Cades. And there died MirJam, & was buried there. But there was no water for the multitude, and they gathered themſelues together agaynſte Moſes and Aaron. And the people chode with Moſes, and ſpake, ſayinge: woulde GOD that we had periſhed, when our brethren dyed before ẏ LORD. Why haue ye brought the congregacyon of the LORDE vnto this wilderneſſe, that both we and our catell ſhould dye in it? * Wherfore haue Exod.17 ye made vs to go out of Egipt, to bring vs into this vngracyous place, which is no place of ſede nor of figges, nor vines, nor of pomgranates, neyther is B there any water to drinke. And Moſes and Aaron wente from the congregacyon vnto the dore of the Tabernacle of wytneſſe, and fell vpon their faces. (And they cried vnto the Lord / and ſayd: o Lorde God heare the cry of this people / and open them thy treaſure / euen a fountaine of liuynge water / that they may be ſatiſfied / and that theyr murmuring maye ceaſſe.) And the glorye of ẏ LORDE appeared vnto them. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: take ẏ rod, and gather thou and thy brother Aarõ the congregacion together, and ſpeake vnto the rocke before theyr eyes, and it ſhall geue forth his water. And thou ſhalt bring them water out of ẏ rocke, to geue the companye drynke, & theyr Exo.17.c beaſtes alſo. * And Moſes toke ẏ rod from before the LORD, as he commaũded hym. And Moſes and Aaron gathered the congregacyon together before the rocke, and Moſes ſayde vnto them: heare ye rebellyons: muſt we fet you water out of this rocke? And Moſes Pſal.78.c lyfte vp hys hande, & wyth his* rod he ſmote the rocke two tymes, and the water came out abundauntly, and the multitude dranke and their beaſtes alſo.

C And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes and Aaron: becauſe ye beleued me not, to ſanctifie me in the eyes of the childrẽ of Iſrael, therfore ye ſhall not brynge this congregacion into the land which I haue geuen them. This is the water of ſtryfe, becauſe the chyldren of Iſrael ſtroue with the LORDE, and he was Iudg.11.c ſanctified in them. And Moſes * ſente meſſengers from Cades vnto the king of Edom. Thus ſayth thy brother Iſraell: Thou knoweſt al the trauayle ẏ hath happened vs. Our fathers went downe into Egipt, and we haue dwelt in Egipte a longe tyme, and the Egipcians vexed vs and our fathers. And when we cryed vnto the LORDE, he hearde our voyce, and ſent an aungell, and hath fet vs vp out of Egipte. And beholde we are in Cades, euen in ẏ vttermoſte citye of thy border. We wyll Num.21.c go nowe thorowe thy countre* but we wyll not go thorowe the feldes or vinyardes, neyther wyll we drynke of the water of the fountaynes: we wil go by the kynges hye way, and nether tourne vnto the ryghte hande nor to the lefte, vntyll we be paſt thy countrie. And Edom anſwered him.

D Thou ſhalt not go by me: leſt I come out agaynſt thee with the ſwearde. The children of Iſrael ſayde vnto him: we wyl go by the beaten way: and if I and my cattell drynke of thy water, I wyll pay for it, I wyll but onely (with out any harme) go thorowe on my fete. He anſwered: Thou ſhalt not go thorowe. And Edom came out agaynſte hym with muche people, and with a myghtie power. And thus Edom denied to geue Iſraell paſſage thorow hys countrye, wherefore Iſraell turned aawaye from him. And the children of Iſraell departed from Cades, & came vnto mounte Hor wyth all the congregacion. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes and Aaron in mount Hor, hard by the coaſt of the lande of Edom, ſaying: Aaron ſhalbe gathered vnto hys people, for he ſhal not come into ẏ land, whiche I haue geuen vnto the chyldrẽ of Iſraell, becauſe ye dyſobeyed my mouth at the water of ſtryfe. Take Aaron and Eleazar his ſonne and brynge them vp into mounte Hor, & thou ſhalt ſtryppe Aaron oute of his veſtimentes and put them vpon Eleazar his ſonne, and Aaron ſhall be gathered vnto hys people and ſhall dye there. And Moſes dyd as the LORDE commaunded, and they went vp into mount Hor in ẏ ſight of all the multitude. And Moſes toke of Aarons clothes, and put them vpon Eleazar hys ſonne, * and Aaron dyed Deut.10. there in the top of the mounte. and.32.g. And Moſes and Eleazar came downe out of the mounte. When all the multytude ſawe that Aaron was dead, they mourned for Aarõ thyrtie dayes, thorowout all the houſholdes of Iſraell.

Kynge

Kyng Balac ſendeth for Balaam whoſe name in the Hebrue is written Bileam. Balaams aſſe ſpeaketh.

A AND the chyldren of Iſraell departed & pitched in the feldes of Moab, on the other ſyde of Iordane, ouer againſt Iericho. Io.24.b. *Balac the ſonne of ziphor ſawe al that Iſrael had done to the Amorites: & the Moabytes were ſore afrayde of the people, becauſe they were many, and ſtode in feare of yͤ children of Iſrael. And Moab ſayde vnto the elders of Madian: nowe ſhall this company licke vp al yͭ are rōude about vs, as an oxe lycketh vp yͤ graſſe of the felde. B And Balac the ſonne of zyphor was kyng of the Moabites at yͭ tyme. Deu.23.a. 2.Pet.2.c. He ſent meſſengers therfore vnto *Balaam yͤ ſonne of Beor in Pethor (which is by the ryuer in the lande of the children of his folke) to call him, ſayinge: beholde, there is a people come out of Egipt: and beholde, they couer the face of yͤ earth, and dwell ouer againſte me. Come nowe therfore, & curſe this people for my ſake. For they are to mighty for me, yf ſo peraduenture I mighte be able to ſmite them and to dryue thē out of the lande. For I wote that he whom thou bleſſeſt, is bleſſed: and whom thou curſeſt, is curſed. And yͤ elders of Moab and yͤ elders of Madian departed, hauinge the rewarde of the ſothſaying in their hāde. And they came vnto Balaam, and tolde him yͤ wordes of Balac. He anſwered thē: tary here this night, and I will bringe you worde, euen as the LORDE ſhal ſaye vnto me. And the Lordes of Moab abode with Balaam. C

And GOD came vnto Balaam: and ſaid, what men are theſe with the? And Balaā ſaid vnto GOD: Balac the ſonne of ziphor, kyng of Moab, hath ſēt vnto me, ſayinge: beholde, there is a people come out of Egipt and couereth yͤ face of the earth: come nowe therfore, and curſe them for my ſake, yf ſo peraduenture I maye be able to ouercome them in battell, and to dryue them oute. And GOD ſayd vnto Balaam: Go not thou with them, nether curſe the people, for they are bleſſed. And Balaam roſe vp in the mornyng, & ſayde vnto yͤ Lordes of Balac: get you vnto your lande: for yͤ LORDE wyll not ſuffer me to goe with you. And the Lordes of Moab roſe vp, and went vnto Balac and ſayde: Balaam woulde not come wͭ vs. And Balac ſente againe a greater cōpany of Lordes, & more honorable then they: which came to Balaam, and tolde him: Thus ſayeth Talac the ſonne of ziphor: oh, let nothing let the, but come vnto me, for I wyll greatly promote the vnto greate honour, and wil doe what ſo euer thou ſayeſt vnto me: come I pray the, curſe this people for my ſake. And Balaam anſwered and ſayde vnto the ſeruauntes of Balac: D Nu.24. *If Balac woulde geue me his houſe ful of ſyluer and golde, I can not go beyonde yͤ word of yͤ LORD my GOD, to do leſſe or more. Nowe therfore tary ye here this night: that I may wete, what the LORD wyl ſay vnto me more. And GOD came vnto Balaam by night, and ſaid vnto him: If yͤ men come to call the, ryſe vp & go with thē: but loke what I ſay vnto the, that ſhalt thou do. And Balaam roſe vp earely, and ſadled his aſſe, & went with the Lordes of Moab.

And the countenaunce of GOD was angry becauſe he went. And the aungel of the LORD ſtode in the waye againſt him, as he rode vpon his aſſe, and hys two ſeruauntes were with him. And when yͤ aſſe ſawe the angel of yͤ LORD ſtande in yͤ waye, & hauyng a ſwearde drawen in his hāde, yͤ aſſe turned aſide out of the waye, and went out into the felde. And Balaam ſmote the aſſe, to turne her into the waye.

E But the aungel of the LORD ſtode in a path betwene the veyneyardes, and there was a wall on the one ſide and another on the other. And when the aſſe ſawe the aungel of the LORD, ſhe wrēched vnto the wall, & thruſte Balaams fote vnto the wall, and he ſmote her againe. And the angel of the LORD wēt further & ſtode in a narow place, where was no waye to turne, eyther to the right hande or to yͤ lyft. And when the aſſe ſawe the angel of the LORD, ſhe fel downe vnder Balaam: & Balaam was wroth, and ſmote the aſſe with a ſtaffe. And the LORD opened the mouth of yͤ aſſe, and ſhe ſayd vnto Balaam: what haue I done vnto the, that thou haſte ſmytten me nowe thre tymes? And Balaam ſayde vnto the aſſe: becauſe thou haſte mocked me: I woulde alſo there were a ſwearde in my hande, for euen nowe woulde I kyll the. And the aſſe ſaid vnto Balaam: am not I thine aſſe whiche thou haſt rydden vpō ſence thou weſt borne vnto this daye? Was I euer wonte to doe ſo vnto the? he ſayde: naye.

F And the LORDE opened the eyes of Balaam: and he ſawe the aungel of the LORD ſtandynge in the waye, hauinge a ſwearde drawen in his hande. He bowed him ſelfe therfore, and fel flat on his face. And the Aungell of the LORD ſayde vnto him: Wherfore haſt yͧ ſmittē thyne aſſe thre tymes? beholde, I came out as an aduerſary, becauſe thou makeſt thy waye contrary vnto me, & the aſſe ſaw me, and wēt backe fro me thre tymes: or elles yf ſhe had not turned fro me (geuing place to me that ſtode in the way) I had ſurely ſlayne the, and ſaued her

the LORD: I haue ſynned: for I wyſte not that thou ſtodeſt in the way agaiſt me. Nowe therfore yf it dyſpleaſe the I wyll turne home againe. The aungell ſayde vnto Balaam, go with yͤ mē: but what I ſay vnto the, that ſhalte thou ſpeake. And ſo Balaam went with the G Lordes of Balac. And when Balac heard that Balaam was come, he went out to mete hym vnto a Cytie of Moab, whiche is in yͤ border of Arnon, euē in yͤ vtmoſt coaſt. And Balac ſayd vnto Balaam: dyd I not ſende for the, to call the? And wherfore cameſt thou not vnto me? becauſe I am not able to promote the vnto honour? And Balaam made anſwer vnto Balac: Lo, I am come vnto the. And can I nowe ſay any Num.23.c. thing at al? The word yͭ GOD *putteth in my mouth that ſhal I ſpeake. And Balaam wente with Balac, and they came vnto a cytie of ſtretes.

And Balac offered oxen and ſhepe, and ſente (rewardes) for Balaam, and for the Lordes that were with him. And on the morowe Balac toke Balaam, & broughte him vp into the hye place of Baal, that thence he myghte ſe the vttermoſt

THe.xvii.yeare of Pekah ẏ ſonne of Remaliahu kinge of Iſraell, Ahaz the ſonne of Jotham kinge of Juda, beganne to raygne. So Ahaz ſent meſſengers to Thyglath Peleſer kyng of Aſſiria,ſayinge: I B am thy ſeruaunt ⁊ thy ſonne, come vp ⁊ deliuer me out of the hande of the king of Syria,⁊ out of the hande of the kyng of Iſraell whiche ryſe vp againſte me. And when kynge Ahaz ſawe an aulter that was at Damaſco, he ſente to Uria ẏ prieſt the paterne of the aulter,⁊ the faſhion of it,⁊ al the workemanſhip therof. And Uria the prieſt made an aulter in al poyntes lyke to the paterne which kynge Ahaz had ſente from Damaſco: Euen ſo dyd Uria the prieſte make it, agaynſt kinge Ahaz came from Damaſco. And ſo whē the kinge was come from Damaſco he ſawe the aulter:⁊ the kinge wente to it, and offered theron. Hozea king of Iſraell is taken. And he and al hys realme brought to the Aſſyrians.

And they buylt thē hilalters in al their

And they made them images ⁊ groues

And the kinge of Aſſyria brought mē from Babylon, frō Cutha, from Aua,

F in theyr cities, wherin they dwelt. The men of Babilō made Socoth Benoth.
⁊ the men of Cuth made Nergal: ⁊ the

the Sepharuites burnte theyr chyldrē

The .xxii. Chapter.

After Ioſia heard of the boke of the law that was founde in the temple, he ſendeth to Hulda the propheteſſe for counſell.

A 2.par.34.a IOſia was *eyght yeare old whē he begā to raygne, ⁊ he raigned .xxxi. yeare in Ieruſalē. His mothers name alſo was Iedida yͤ doughter of Adaia of Bozcath. 2.par.34.b *And it came to paſſe, yͤ in the .xviii. yere of the raygne of kinge Ioſia, the king ſent Saphan the ſonne of Azalia the ſonne of Meſulam the ſcrybe to the houſe of the LORDE, ſayinge: *go vp to Helkia yͤ hie prieſt: that he may ſumme yͤ ſiluer whiche is brought into yͤ houſe of the LORD, whiche the kepers of the porch haue gathered of the people, and let them delyuer it into the hand of thē that do the worke, and that haue the ouerſighte of the houſe of the LORDE, and let them gyue it to thē that worke in the houſe of the LORD: (to repayre yͤ decayed places of the temple) euen vnto carpenters and maſons, and workers vpō the walles: and for to bie timber, and fre ſtone to repayre the temple. para.34. *And Helkia the hye prieſt ſayd vnto Saphan the ſcrybe: I haue found yͤ boke of the lawe in the houſe of the LORD, ⁊ Helkia gaue the boke to Saphan, and he red in it. And Saphan the ſcribe came to the kinge, and brought him word againe, ⁊ ſaid: thy ſeruauntes haue beſtowed yͤ money (yͤ was founde

And Saphan the ſcribe ſhewed ẏ king, ſaying: Helkia the prieſt hath deliuered

the kinge.

C And it fortuned, ẏ when the kyng had heard the wordes of the boke of ẏ law,

So Helkia the hie prieſt and Ahikā,

My wrath alſo ſhalbe kyndled againſt

But to the kynge of Juda (which ſēt herdeſt what J ſpake agaiſt this place, ⁊ againſt the inhabiters of ẏ ſame (how and haſt rent thy clothes, and wept before me: of that alſo haue J heard, ſayeth ẏ LORD: Behold, therfore J wil receiue brought the kyng worde againe.

The. xxiii. Chapter.

¶ Joſia readeth Deuteronomy before the people.
He putteth down the Jdolles/after he had kylled

AND * then the kynge ſente, ⁊ there A gathered vnto him al the elders of 2.par.34.
Juda ⁊ of Jeruſalem. And ẏ king went vp into ẏ houſe of the LORDE, ẇ all the men of Juda and all the inhabitours of Jeruſalem, with ẏ prieſtes ⁊ prophetes, ⁊ all the people both ſmall ⁊ great. And he red in the eares of them *al the wordes of ẏ boke of ẏ couenāt: 2.Eſdr.8. whiche was founde in the houſe of the

of the ſayde appoyntmente that were written in the forſayde boke. And all ẏ people conſented to the appoinment. B

And the kynge cōmaunded Helkia ẏ and the kepers of the ornamentes, to brynge out of the temple of the LORD, all the veſſelles ẏ were made for Baal,

for the idoles groues, and for al ẏ hoſte of heauen. And he burnt them without Jeruſalem in the feldes of Cedron, and caried the aſhes of them into Bethel.
And he put downe ẏ miniſters of Baal, whō the kynges of Juda had founded to burne incenſe in ẏ* hylaulters ⁊ cyties 4.reg.28.
of Juda, ẏ were rounde about Jeruſalē:
⁊ alſo them ẏ burnt incenſe vnto Baal, to the ſunne, to the moone, to the planettes, ⁊ to al ẏ hoſt of heauen. And he brought oute the idoles groue frō ẏ temple of ẏ LORD without Jeruſalem vnto ẏ broke Cedrō, ⁊ burnt it there at the broke Cedrō, ⁊ ſtampt it to pouldre; ⁊ caſt the duſt thereof vpon the graues of the childrē of ẏ people. And he brake downe ẏ ſelles of ẏ male ſtues ẏ were by the houſe of ẏ LORD, where ẏ womē woue hāgynges for ẏ idoles groue.

And he brought al the prieſtes out of the cities of Juda, and defyled the hylaulters where the prieſtes had burnte incenſe, euen frō Geba to Berſeba: and deſtroyed the aulters of the gates, that were in yͤ entring in of yͤ gate of Joſua the gouernour of the cytie, which were (as a man goeth in) on the left hand of the gate of the citie. Neuertheleſſe the prieſtes of the hylaulters came not vp to the aulter of the LORD in Jeruſalē, saue onelye they dyd eate of the ſwete breade among theyr brethren.

C ere.7.d And he defyled *Topheth: whiche is in the valley of the children of Hinnom: bycauſe no mā ſhoulde offre hys ſon or his doughter in fire to Molech: he put down the horſes yͭ the kinges of Jſrael had gyuen to the ſunne, at yͤ entringe in of the houſe of the LORD, by the chambre of Nathanmelech, the chambrelain, which was ruler of the ſuburbes, and burnt the charrets of yͤ ſunne with fire. And the alters that were on the toppe of the parloure of Ahaz (whiche yͤ kinges of Juda had made) and the *alters .reg.21.a whiche Manaſſe had made in the two courtes of the houſe of the LORDE, did the kynge breake downe, ⁊ ran thence: and caſte the duſt of thē into the broke Cedron.

And the hylaulters that were before Jeruſalem on the ryghte hande of the mount Oliuete, *(which Salomon the reg.11.b kyng of Jſrael had buylded for Aſtharoth yͤ ydol of the zidons, and for Chamos the ydol of the Moabites, and for Milchom the abhominable ydoll of the children of Ammon) thoſe the kyng defyled: and brake the ymages, and cutte downe the ydole groues, ⁊ filled their places with the bones of men.

.reg.13.a Moreouer* the aulter that was at Bethel, the hilaulter made by Jeroboam, yͤ ſonne of Nebat (whiche made Jſrael ſinne) both the aulter ⁊ alſo the hil, he brake downe, and burnt yͤ hyl aulter D and ſtampt it to powder, and burnt the idol groue. And as Joſia turned hym ſelfe, he ſpied yͤ graues, that were in the mount, and ſent, ⁊ fet the bones out of yͤ graues, and burnt them vpon the aulter to polute it, accordyng to yͤ worde of the LORD, that the man of GOD proclaimed* .reg.13.a which told the ſame wordes.

Then he ſayde what graue ſtone is yonder that J ſee? And the mē of yͤ citie tolde him, it is the ſepulchre of yͤ man of GOD, whiche came from Juda, and told yͤ ſelfe ſame thinges that thou haſt done to the aulter of Bethell. And he ſaid let him be: ſe that no man moue his bones. And ſo his bones were ſaued wͭ the bones of a prophete that came oute of Samaria.

And all the houſes of the hilaulters in the cyties of Samaria, whyche the kinges of Jſraell had made to angre (the Lorde) withall, thoſe Joſia put oute of the way, ⁊ did to them accordyng to al yͤ actes yͭ he had done in Bethel. And he ſacrificed all the prieſtes of the hylaulters yͭ were there, euen vpon the alters, and burnt mennes bones vpō thē, and returned to Jeruſalem.

E And the kynge commaunded all the people, ſayinge: * kepe the feaſt of the 2.par.35.a paſſeouer vnto the LORDE your GOD, 1.Eſd.1.a *as it is written in the booke of thys *Deu.16.a couenaunt. *There was no paſſeouer *3.Eſd.1.c holden lyke yͭ frō the daies of yͤ Judges that iudged Jſrael, and in al the dayes of the kynges of Jſrael, and of yͤ kinges of Juda. Jn the .xviii. yere of kyng Joſia was thys paſſeouer holden to the LORD in Jeruſalem.

And therto workers with ſpirites ⁊ ſothſayers, ymages, ydols, ⁊ all the abhominacions that were eſpyed in the lande of Juda ⁊ in Jeruſalē, thoſe dyd Joſia put out of the waye, to performe yͤ wordes of yͤ law which were writē in the boke yͭ Helkia yͤ prieſt found in the houſe of yͤ LORD: like vnto hi was ther no kig before him, yͭ turned to yͤ LORD wͭ all his hert, wͭ all his ſoule, ⁊ all hys might according to al yͤ law of Moſes, neither after him aroſe there any ſuche as he.

F Notwithſtādyng, the LORD tourned not frō yͤ fearceneſſe of his great wrath (wherwith he was angry agaynſt Juda) bycauſe of al the prouocacions that Manaſſe had prouoked him wͭall. And the LORD ſayde: *J wyl put Juda al- 4.R.24.a ſo out of my ſight, as J haue done away Jſrael: ⁊ wil caſt of this citie Jeruſalē, whiche J haue choſen, and the houſe of which J ſayd: my name ſhal be there.

*Jn his daies Pharao Necho kynge 2.par.35.d of Egipt went vp againſte the kynge of Aſſiria to the riuer Euphrates. And king Joſia went agaynſte hym, ⁊ was ſlayne of him at Magiddo, whē he had ſene him. And his ſeruaūtes caried him dead from Magiddo, ⁊ broughte him to Ieruſalem, ⁊ buried him in his own ſepulchre. And the people of the lande, toke Iehoahaz, the ſonne of Ioſia, ⁊ annoynted hym, ⁊ made hym kynge in his fathers ſteade.

Iehoahaz was .xxiii. yere olde when he begā to raigne, ⁊ raigned thre monethes in Ieruſalē. His mothers name alſo was Hamiel the doughter of Ieremia of Libna. And he dyd euyll in the G ſyght of yͤ LORD, accordyng to al thynges as his fathers had done. And Pharao Necho put him in bondes at Ribla in the lande of Hamath, that he ſhould not raigne in Ieruſalem: ⁊ put the lāde to a tribute of an hūdred talentes of ſiluer, ⁊ a talent of golde. And Pharao Necho made Eliakim the ſonne of Ioſia king in yͤ roume of Ioſia his father: ⁊ turned his name to Iehoakim, ⁊ toke Iehoahaz away, which when he came to Egipt, died there.

And Iehoakim gaue the ſiluer ⁊ the gold to Pharao, ⁊ taxed the lād, to giue the money accordyng to the requeſt of Pharao: requirynge of euery man (accordyng to their abilite) ſiluer ⁊ golde: euen of the people of the lande to gyue vnto Pharao Necho. Iehoakim was .xxv. yere olde when he begā to raygne, ⁊ he raigned .xi. yere in Ieruſalem. His mothers name alſo was Zebuda the doughter of Pedaia of Ruma. And the LORD ſente vpon him men of warre from among yͤ Caldees, from among the Sirians out of yͤ Moabites, ⁊ from the children of Ammon: ⁊ ſent them agaynſte Iuda, to deſtroye it, accordyng to the ſaying of the LORD, which he ſpake by his ſeruaūtes the prophetes. Onely at the byddyng of the LORDE happened it ſo to Iuda, to put them out of his ſyght, for yͤ ſinnes of Manaſſe, accordinge to all that he dyd, and for the innocent bloud that he ſhed, ⁊ filled Ieruſalem with innocent bloud, ⁊ the LORDE woulde not be reconcyled.

And Nabuchadnezer kyng of Babylon came agaynſte the cytie, ⁊ his ſeruauntes dyd beſiege C it. *And Iehoachin the kynge of Iuda came oute to the kynge of Babylon, he ⁊ his mother, his ſeruaūtes, his lordes, and his chamberlaynes. And the kinge of Babylon toke him in the eyght yere of his raigne.

* And he caryed oute thence al the treaſures of the houſe of the LORDE, ⁊ the treaſure of yͤ kynges houſe: ⁊ brake al the veſſels of gold, which Salomon kyng of Iſrael had made in the temple of the LORD, as the LORDE had ſayde. * And the.ix. daye of the monethe, there was ſo greate hunger in the citie: that there was no bread for the people of the lād.

And the citie was broken vp: and al the men of armes fledde by nyghte, by a waye thorowe a gate, whiche is betwene two walles by the kynges gardeyne: the Chaldees lyeng aboute the Cytie.

And the kynge wente the waye towarde the playne. And the ſouldiers of the Chaldees folowed after the kyng, and toke him in the playne of Jericho: and all his army were ſcattered away from him, (and left him.) So they toke the kynge, and broughte him to Nabuchadnezar the kyng of Babilon to Rybla, wher they reaſoned with him. And they ſlue the ſonnes of Zedekia before his eies: & he put out yͤ eyes of zedekia, and fettered him with two chaines, and caried him to Babylon.

And the ſonnes of Iiſſi were: Zoheth, and Benzoheth.

*The ſonnes of Selah the ſonne of Gen.38.a Iuda were Er yͤ father of Lecha, and Laada the father of Mareſa, and the kinredes of the houſeholdes of them yͤ wrought lynnen in the houſe of Aſbea. And Iokim and the men of Choſebah and Ioas, & Saraph, whiche had the dominion in Moad, and Iaſubi, Lehē. Theſe alſo are wordes of olde. Theſe were potters, and dwelt there among trees & hedges, nye vnto the kynge becauſe of his worke.

E The ſonnes of Simeon were Nemuel, Iamin, Iarib, zerah & Saul: whoſe ſonne was Sallū, & the ſonne of hym was Mibſā, & his ſon was Miſma: And the ſonne of Miſma was Hamuel, & his ſon was zachur, & the ſon of hi was Semehi. Semehi had. xvi. ſons & .vi. doughters. But his brethren had not manye children, neyther was all the kynred of thē lyke to the children of Juda in multitude. And they dwelt at Beerſeba, Molada, and at Hazar Sual, at Bilha, at Ezē, ⁊ at Tholad, at Bethuel, at Horma and at Ziklag, at Bethmarcaboth, Hazar, Suſim, at Bethbirei, and at Saaraim. Theſe were theyr cities vnto the reygne of Dauid. And theyr vyllages were Etan, and Ain, Rimmon, C Tochen, and Aſan, fyue townes, ⁊ al theyr vyllages that were rounde aboute yͤ ſame cyties vnto Baal. Thys is the habitacyon F of them, and theyr genealogye. Moſobab and Jamlech, and Joſa the ſonne of Amaſia: and Joel and Jehu the ſonne of Joſibia, the ſonne of Saraia, the ſonne of Aſiel, and Elioenai, and Jaacoba, Jſohaia, and Aſaiah, Adiel, Jſimiel, ⁊ Benaia, and Ziza the ſonne of Schibhi, the ſonne of Allon, the ſonne of Jeoaia, the ſonne of Zemri, the the ſōne of Semaia. Theſe are famous capitaines in theyr kinredes, ſetting vp greatlye the houſe of theyr fathers. And they wēt to the entrynge in of Gedor: euen vnto the eaſte ſyde of the valley, to ſeke paſture for theyr ſhepe. And they found fat paſture and good, and a wyde land, quiet and fruitful: for they of Ham had dwelt there before.

G And theſe nowe afore wrytten by name, came in the dayes of Hezekia kynge of Juda, and ſmote the tentes of them, and the habitacions that were founde there, and D deſtroyed them vtterly vnto thys daye, and dwelt in theyr rowmes: becauſe there was paſture there for theyr ſhepe. And ſome of the children of Simeon wente to mounte Seir, euen .v. hundred menne, hauynge for theyr captaynes, Phelathia, Nearia, Raphaia, and Vziel the ſonnes of Jſi: ⁊ ſmote the reſte of the Amalekytes that were eſcaped, and they dwelt there vnto thys daye.

The .v. Chapter.

A The genealogie of Ruben and Gad: and of the halfe trybe of Manaſſe.

Gen.49.a Exod.6.b. Nu.26.a THe ſōnes of Ruben the eldeſt ſōne of Jſrael: for aſmuche as he was the eldeſte, *and had defyled hys fathers bed, his byrthryght was geuen vnto the ſonnes of Joſeph the ſonne E of Jſrael. Howebeit, the genealogie is not rekened after hys byrtheryght. For Juda, he preuayled aboue hys brethren, and of thys trybe came the chefe, and the byrtheryght was geuen to Joſeph. The ſonnes then of Ruben the eldeſt ſonne of Jſraell were, Henoch, Phalu, Hezrō and Charmi. The ſonnes of Joel: Samaiah hys ſonne, Gog his ſonne, and Semhi hys ſonne, Micah his ſōne, Reaia his ſonne, and Baal his ſonne, Beera hys ſonne, whom Thiglath Pilneſer kynge of Aſſiria caryed awaye: for he was a great lorde amonge yͤ Rubenites. And when hys brethren in theyr kinredes, rekened the genealogie of theyr generacions: Jeiel and zachariah were the chefe. And Baal the ſonne of Azan, the ſōne of Sema, the ſōne of Joel dwelt in Aroer: and ſo forth vnto Nebo ⁊ Baalmeon. And eaſtewarde, he inhabyted vnto the entryng B in of the wyldernes from the ryuer Euphrates, for they had much cattel in yͤ land of Gilead. And in the dayes of Saul they warred with the Hagarites, whiche were ouerthrowen into theyr hande. And they dwelt in theyr tentes thorowout al the eaſt lande of Gilgal. And the chyldren of Gad dwelt ouer againſt them in the land of Baſan: euen vnto Salcha. And in Baſan Joel was the chefeſt, and Sapham the next, thē Janai and Saphat. And theyr brethren of the houſholde of theyr fathers were Michael, Meoſueſam, Seba, Jorai, Jahcan, zia, Eber, Senē. Theſe are the childrē of Abihail, the ſōne of Huri, yͤ ſonne of Jeroah, the ſonne of Gilead, the ſonne of Michael, yͤ ſonne of Jeſiſai, yͤ ſonne of Jahdo, yͤ ſōne of Buz. Ahi (the ſōne of Abdiel) yͤ ſōne of Guni, was a captayne of yͤ houſhold of theyr fathers. And they dwelt in Gilead, in Baſā, and in her townes, ⁊ in all the Suburbes of Saron, and in theyr borders. C All theſe were rekened by kynredes in the dayes of Jotham kinge of Juda, and in the dayes of Jeroboam kynge of Jſrael. The ſonnes of Ruben and of Gad, and the halfe trybe of Manaſſe, were fyghtynge men, and able to beare ſhilde and ſwearde, and to ſhote with bowe, excercyſed in warre, euen foure and fourtye thouſande, ſeuen hundred and thre ſcore, that went out to the warre. And they foughte with the Hagarites, with Jetur, Nephis, ⁊ Nodab. And they were helped of the Lorde agaynſte them, and the Hagarites were delyuered into theyr hande, and ſo were all that were with them. For they cryed to God in the battayle, and he hearde them, becauſe they put theyr truſte in him.

And they toke of theyr cattel, and of theyr cameles fiftye thouſand, and two hundred and fyftye thouſande ſhepe, and two thouſande aſſes, and of the ſoules of menne an hundred thouſande, and there fell many wounded, becauſe the warre was of God. And they dwelte in theyr ſtedes, vntill the ſeuen dayes, he ſhal offer euerye daye a bullocke and a ramme, that are withoute blemiſhe, for a burnt offering vnto the Lord: and an he gote dayly for a ſinne offeringe. For the meate offeringes he ſhall geue euer an Ephah to a bullocke, an Ephah, to a rā, and an hyn of oyle to an Ephah. Upon the xv. daye of the ſeuenth moneth, he ſhal kepe the ſeuen dayes holy, one after another, euē as the other ſeuen dayes, with the ſinne offeryng, burnt offering, meat offering, and with the oyle.

The. xlvi. Chapter.

The ſacrifices of the Sabboth and of the new moones. Through which doores they muſte go in, or come out of the temple. &c.

A THus ſaith the lord god: the dore of the innermer court toward ẏ Eaſt, ſhalbe ſhut ẏ. vi. workinge dayes: but in the Sabboth, & in the daye of the new mone, it ſhalbe opened. Then ſhal the prince come vnder the doore portch, and ſtand ſtil without by the dore cheke. So ẏ preſtes ſhal offer vp his burnt and helth offeringes. And he ſhal worſhip at the dore poſte, and goe his waye foorth agayne, but the dore ſhall nomore bee ſhut tyl the euenyng. On the ſame maner ſhal ẏ B people of the lande alſo doe theyr worſhyp before the Lorde without thys dore, vpō the Sabbothes and new mones. This is now the burnt offering, that the prince ſhal bryng vnto the Lord vpon the Sabboth: ſyxe lambes without blemiſhe, and a ram wythoute blemiſhe, and an Ephah for a meat offering with the ramme. As for the lambes, he maye geue as many meate offerynges to them as he will: and an hyn of oyle to an Ephah. In the daye of the newe moneth, it ſhalbe a yonge bullocke without blemiſhe: ſixe lambes and a ram alſo without blemiſh: With the bullocke he ſhal geue an Ephah, and with the ramme an Ephah alſo for a meat offering, but to the lambes, what he maye come by. And euer an hin of C oyle to an Ephah. Whē the prince cōmeth, he ſhal goe vnder the dore portche, and euē there departe forth againe. But when the people of the lande come before the Lord in the hye ſolemne feaſte, as many as come in by the north dore to do woorſhip, ſhall go out againe at the ſouth dore. And they that come in at the ſouth dore, ſhall goe forth agayne at the north doore. There ſhal none go out at the dore, wher he came in, but ſhal go right forth ouer on the other ſide, and ẏ Prince ſhall goe in and out among thē. Upon the ſolemne and hye feaſte dayes, this ſhalbee the meate offering. An Ephah to a bullocke, & an Ephah to a ram, and to the D lambes, as many as he wil: but euer an hin of oyle to an Ephah. Now whē the prince bringeth a burnt offering, or an helthoffering with a fre will vnto the lord, the Eaſt dore ſhalbe opened vnto him, ẏ he maye do with his burnt and helthofferinges, as he doth vpon the Sabboth: & when he goeth forth, ẏ dore ſhal be ſhut after him againe. He ſhal daily bring vnto ẏ lord a lamb of a yere old without blemiſh, for a burnt offering: this ſhal he do euerye morning. And E for a meat offering, he ſhal geue ẏ. vi. part of an Ephah, and the thirde part of an hyn of oyle, to mingle with ẏ cakes euery morning. Yea, this ſhalbe a daily meat offering vnto ẏ lord, for an euerlaſting ordinaūce: & thus ſhal ẏ lamb, the meat offering, & oyle be geuen euery morning, for a daily burnt offering. Moreouer thus ſaith ẏ lord god: If the prince geue a gyfte vnto any of hys ſonnes, then ſhal it bee his ſonnes heritage perpetual, ẏ he maye poſſeſſe it. But yf he wil geue one of his ſeruaūtes ſome of his heritage, it ſhalbe his to the *fre yere, & thē to returne againe vnto the prince: for hys heritage ſhalbee his ſonnes onelye. ‡ The F prince alſo ſhal take none of the peoples inheritaunce, nor put them from theyr poſſeſſion: but to his own ſonnes ſhal he geue his poſſeſſion, that my people be not ſcatered abroad, but that euerye man maye haue his owne. And he brought me through the entraunce at the ſide of the dore, to the habitaciō of the Sanctuary, that belongeth to the prieſtes & ſtode toward ẏ north: & behold, there was a place vpon the weſt ſide, then ſaid he vnto me. This is the place wher the G Prieſtes ſhal dight the treſpaſſe & ſin offeringes, & bake the meate offeringes, ẏ they neede not beare them into the outwarde court, and ſo to vnhalowe the people. So he brought me into the vtmoſt court roūd about al the foure corners. Behold, in euery corner of the court, there was yet a lytle court. Yea, in al ẏ. iiii. corners of the court, there was made a litle court of fourtye cubites long, and thirty cubites broad: theſe foure litle courtes wer of one like meaſure, and there wente a ridge wal rounde about them all foure, vnder the whych there wer harthes made rounde about. Then ſaid he vnto me. This is the kytchen wher the mynyſters of the houſe ſhall dyghte the ſlayne offerynges of the people.

The.xlvii. Chapter.

The viſion of the waters that came oute of the temple. The coaſtes of the land of promeſſe, and the deuiſion therof by trybes.

A After thys he broughte me agayne before the doꝛe of the houſe: and beholde, there guſhed out waters from vnder yͤ poſtes of the houſe eſtwarde, foꝛ the houſe ſtode toward the eaſte, that ran downe vpō the ryghte ſyde of the houſe, whyche lyeth to the aultar ſouthwarde. Then caryed he me out to the noꝛth doꝛe, and broughte me foꝛth there round aboute by the vtmoſt doꝛe that turneth eaſtewarde. *Beholde, there came foꝛth the water vpon the ryghte ſyde. Zach.13.a and.14.b Nowe when the man that had the metrod in hys hande wente vnto the eaſt doꝛe, he meaſured a thouſand cubites, and then he broughte me thoꝛowe the water, euen to the ancles: ſo he meaſured yet a thouſand, and brought me thoꝛowe the water agayne vnto the knees: yet meaſured he a thouſande, B and brought me thoꝛowe the water vnto the loynes. After thys he meaſured a thouſande agayne, then was it ſuche a ryuer, yͭ I might not wade thoꝛow it. The water was ſo depe, that it was nedefull to haue ſwymmed, foꝛ it might no be waded ouer. And he ſaide vnto me: haſte thou ſene this, O thou ſon of man? and wyth that he broughte me to the ryuer banke agayne. Nowe when I came there, there ſtode many trees vpō ether ſide of the riuer banke. Thē ſaid he vnto me: This water yͭ floweth out toward the eaſte, ⁊ runneth downe into the playne felde, commeth into the ſea: and from the ſea runneth out, and maketh the waters whole. Yea, all that lyue and moue, whereunto thys ryuer commeth, ſhal recouer. *And where this water cōmeth there ſhalbe muche fyſh. Foꝛ al that ‡cōmeth to thys water, ſhall be luſty and whole. *Mat.4.c and.13.f ‡Joh.4.d and.7.d By thys ryuer ſhall the fyſhers ſtande from Engaddi vnto En Eglaim, and ther ſpꝛede out theyꝛ nettes: foꝛ there ſhall be greate heapes of fyſhe, lyke as in the mayne ſea. As foꝛ hys claye and pyttes, they ſhall not be whole: foꝛ why? it ſhall be occupied foꝛ ſalte.

C By thys ryuer vpon both the ſydes of the ſhoꝛe, there ſhal growe al maner of fruiteful trees, whoſe leaues ſhall not fall of, nether ſhall theyꝛ frute peryſhe, but euer be rype at theyꝛ monethes, foꝛ theyꝛ water runneth out of theyꝛ Sanctuarie. His frute is good to eate, and hys leafe pꝛofytable foꝛ medecyne. Thus ſayeth the Loꝛde God. Let thys be yͤ boꝛder wherein ye ſhall deuyde the lande vnto the twelue trybes of Iſraell, wyth the lyne. Parte it indifferently vnto one as vnto another: *of the whych lande I ſwoꝛe vnto your fathers, that it ſhoulde fall to your enherytaunce. *gene. Thys is the boꝛder of the lande vpō the noꝛth ſyde, from the main ſea, as mē go to Zadada: namely, Hemath, Berotha, Sabarim, from the boꝛders of Damaſcus and Hemath, vnto Hazar, Tichon, and that lieth vpon the coſtes of Haueran. Thus the boꝛders from the ſea foꝛth, ſhall be Hazar, Euan: the boꝛder of Damaſcus, the noꝛth: and the boꝛders of Hemah, that is the noꝛth parte. The eaſte ſyde ſhall ye meaſure from Haueran and Damaſcus, from Galead and D the land of Iſrael by Ioꝛdane, and ſo foꝛth from the ſea coaſte, that lyeth eaſtward: and thys is the eaſt parte. The ſouth ſide is, from Thamar foꝛth to the *waters of ſtryfe vnto Cades, the ryuer to the mayne ſea: and that is the ſouth parte. *Nu.20 Exo.17. The weſt parte, namely the greate ſea from the boꝛders therof, tyll a man come vnto Hemath, thys is the weſte parte. *Thys lande ſhall ye parte amonge you, accoꝛdyng to the trybes of Iſraell, and deuyde it to be an herytage foꝛ you ‡and foꝛ the ſtraungers that dwell among you, and beget chyldꝛen. *Nu.33. ‡Leu.19 Deut.10. and.24. Foꝛ ye ſhal take thē among the chyldren of Iſraell, lyke as though they were of your owne houſholde, and cōtrey: and they ſhall haue herytage wyth you among the childꝛen of Iſrael. Loke in what trybe the ſtraunger dwelleth, in the ſame trybe ſhal ye geue hym his herytage, ſayeth the Loꝛde God.

The ende of the prophecie of Ezechiel.

The booke of the prophet Daniel.

The fyrſt Chapter.

The prophet ſheweth the captiuitie of Jehoakim kyng of Juda. Of yͤ ſonnes that were in captiuitye: the kynge commaundeth to choſe whych of them ſhould be taught the learnyng and language of the Caldees. They are alowed yͤ kynges fedyng. Daniel abſteineth from the meate of the King of Babilon.

A IN the thyrde yere of the reigne of Jehoakim king of Juda, came Nabuchodonoſor kyng of Babylon vnto Jeruſalem, 1.pa.36.c [illegible].24.a. 4.re.24.a and beſeged it:*and the lord deliuered Jehoakim the kynge of Juda into hys hande, wyth certayne ornamentes of the houſe of God, whyche he caryed awaye vnto the lande of Sennar, to the houſe of hys god, ⁊ there he brought them into his goddes treaſury. And the kynge ſpake vnto Aſphanaz the chefe chamberlayne, that he ſhoulde brynge hym certayne of the chyldren of Iſrael, that were come of the kynges ſeede, ⁊ of princes, yong ſpryngaldes wythout any blemiſh, but fayre ⁊ welfauored, inſtructe in al wiſdome, connynge and vnderſtandynge, whych were able to ſtand in the kynges palace, to reade and to learne for to ſpeake Caldyſhe.

B Unto theſe the kynge appoynted a certayne porcion of hys owne meate: and of the wyne, whyche he dranke hym ſelfe, ſo to noryſhe them thre yere: that afterwarde they myghte ſtand before the kynge. Amonge theſe nowe were certayne of the childrē of Juda: namely Danyel, Ananias, Miſael, and Azarias. Unto theſe the chiefe chamberlayne gaue other names, and called Daniel, Balthaſar: Ananias, Sidrach: Miſaell, Miſach: and [illegible].41.c Aſarias, Abednago. But Danyel was at a Tobia.1.b poynte wyth hym ſelfe, *that he would not Judi.12.a be defyled thorowe the kynges meat, nor the C wyne whyche he dronke. And thys he deſired of the chiefe chamberlayne, leſte he ſhoulde defyle hym ſelfe. So God gaue Danyell fauour ⁊ grace before yͤ chiefe chamberlaine, that he ſayd vnto him: I am afrayde of my lord yͤ kynge, whyche hath appoynted you your meat ⁊ drynke, leeſt he ſpye your faces to be worſe lyking thē the other ſpringaldes of your age, ⁊ ſo ye ſhall make me looſe my heade vnto yͤ kyng. Then Daniel anſwered Melaſſar, whom the chiefe chamberlain had ſet ouer Daniel, Ananias, Miſael, ⁊ Aſarias, and ſayde: O proue but ten dayes wyth thy ſeruauntes, ⁊ let vs haue pottage to eate, ⁊ water to drinke, then loke vpō our faces, ⁊ theyrs that eate of yͤ kinges meate: And as thou ſeeſt, ſo deale with thy ſeruauntes. So he conſēted to them in this matter, ⁊ proued them .x. dayes. And after the ten dayes, theyr faces were better liking ⁊ fatter, then all the yong ſpringaldes, which did eat of yͤ kinges D meate. Thus Melaſſar toke awaye theyr meate and wyne, and gaue thē pottage therfore. God gaue nowe theſe four ſpringaldes connynge and learnyng in all ſcripture and wiſedom: but vnto Daniel ſpecially, he gaue vnderſtandyng of all viſions and dreames. Now when the tyme was expired, yͭ the kyng had appoynted to bryng in theſe yong ſpringaldes vnto him, the chefe chamberlaine brought thē before Nabuchodonoſor, ⁊ the king comoned wͭ them. But among them all were founde none ſuch as Daniel, Ananias, Miſael, ⁊ Aſarias. Therfore ſtode they before the king, which in al wiſdome, ⁊ matters of vnderſtāding, yͭ he enquired of thē, founde thē .x. times better, thē al yͤ ſouthſaters ⁊ charmers, that were in al his realme. And Daniel abode ſtill, vnto the fyrſt yere of king Cirus.

The ſeconde Chapter.

The dreame of Nabuchodonoſor. He calleth vnto hym ſothſayers, and requyreth of them both the dreame and the interpretacyon therof. They anſwer that they cannot ſhew it. The kyng commaundeth all the wyſe men of Babylon to be ſlayne. Danyel requyreth tyme to ſolute the queſtion. The Lorde openeth the miſtery vnto Daniel. Daniel is brought vnto yͤ king, ⁊ ſheweth him his dreame, ⁊ the interpretaciō therof. Of the euerlaſtyng kyngdome of Chriſt.

IN yͤ ſeconde yeare of the reigne of Nabuchodonoſor, had Nabuchodonoſor a A dreame, *wherethorowe his ſpirite was *Iob.7. Dani.4. and.5.a vexed, ⁊ his ſlepe brake from him. Then the kyng commaunded to call together all the ſothſayers, charmers, witches, and Caldees, for to ſhewe the kinge his dreame. So they came and ſtode before the kynge. And the king ſayde vnto them: I haue dreamed a dreame, ⁊ my ſprite was ſo troubled therewyth, that I haue cleane forgotten, what I dreamed. Upon this the Caldees aunſwered the kyng in yͤ Siryans ſpeche: O king, God ſaue thy lyfe for euer. Shewe thy ſeruaūtes the dreame, ⁊ we ſhal ſhewe the, what it meaneth. The king gaue yͤ Caldees their anſwer ⁊ ſaid: It is gone fro me. Yf ye will not make me vnderſtand yͤ dreame wͭ the interpretaciō therof, ye ſhal die, ⁊ your houſes ſhal be piſed. But yf ye tel me yͤ dreame ⁊ the meaning therof, ye ſhal haue of me giftes, rewardes ⁊

B yͤ ſygnifycaciō of it. They anſwered againe and ſayde:the kynge muſte ſhewe hys ſeruauntes the dreame:and ſo ſhall we declare what it meaneth. Then the kyng anſwered, ſayinge: I perceyue of a truth,that ye doe but prolonge the tyme,for ſo muche as ye ſe that the thyng is gone from me. Therfore yf ye wyll not tell me the dreame,ye ſhall all haue one iudgemente. But ye fayne and diſſemble wyth vayne wordes, whyche ye ſpeake before me,to put of yͤ tyme. Therfore tell me the dreame,and ſo ſhall I knowe,yf ye can ſhewe me what it meaneth. Upō this, the Caldees gaue anſwere before the Kyng, and ſayde: there is no man vpon earthe, that can tell the thynge, whyche the Kynge ſpeaketh of:yea,there is neyther kinge,prince nor Lorde,that euer aſked ſuche thinges at a ſothſayer,charmer or Caldee:for it is a very harde matter,that the kyng requyreth. Neyther is there any, that can certyfye the kynge therof, excepte the goddes: whoſe dwellyng is not amonge the creatures.

C For the whyche cauſe the kyng was wroth wyth great indignacyon,and commaunded to deſtroye all the wyſe men at Babylon: & the proclamacyon wente forth,and the wyſe men were ſlayne. They ſought alſo to ſlaye Daniell wͭ hys companyons. Thē Danyell enquired of Arioch the Kynges ſtewarde,of the iudgemente and ſentence,that was gone forth already to kyll ſuche as were wyſe at Babylon. He anſwered and ſayde vnto Arioch,being then the kinges deputye. Why hath yͤ king proclaimed ſo cruel a ſentence? So Arioch tolde Daniel the matter. Upon thys went Daniel vp,and deſyred the kyng that he might haue leiſure,to ſhewe the king the interpretacyon:and then came he home agayne & ſhewed the thynge vnto Ananias, Miſael,and Aſarias hys companyons:that they ſhoulde beſeke the God of heauen for grace in thys ſecret, that Danyell and hys fellowes wyth other ſuche as were wyſe in Babilon,peryſhed not. Then was yͤ miſtery ſhewed vnto Daniel in a viſyon by nyghte. And Daniel prayſed the God of Heauen.

Then Arioch brought Daniel in to the kynge in all the haſte,and ſaide vnto hym: I haue founde a man amonge the pryſoners of Iuda,that ſhall ſhewe yͤ kyng the interpretacyō. The.iii. Chapter.

The kyng ſetteth vp a golden Image, whyche he cōmaundeth to be worſhipped. Sidrach, Miſach, and Abednago are accuſed becauſe they deſpiſed the kynges commaūdement. They are broughte vnto the kynge, and commaunded to worſhyp the ymage, they refuſe to do it, and are put into a burnyng ouē. By belefe in God they are deliuered from the fyre. Nabuchodonoſor confeſſeth the power of God after the ſyght of the miracle.

NAbuchodonoſor the kyng cauſed A

yͤ debities and ſhreues, with all the rulers dedicacion of the ymage, whiche Nabuchodonoſor the kyng had ſet vp: So yͤ dukes, vnto the dedicating of the ymage, yͭ Nabuchodonoſor the kynge had ſet vp. Nowe B when they ſtode before the ymage, whyche Nabuchodonoſor ſet vp, the bedel cried out with all his myght: O ye people, kynreddes

Therfore when all the folke hearde yͤ noyſe of the trōpettes that were blowen, with the

and all kynde of melody, thē all yͤ people, kynreds ⁊ nacions, fel down, and bowed them ſelues vnto the golden ymage that Nabuchodonoſor the kynge had ſet vp.
Now were there certayne men of the Chaldees, C that wēt euē then ⁊ accuſed the Iewes, and ſayde vnto the kynge Nabuchodonoſor:
O kynge, God ſaue thy lyfe for euer.
Thou beyng kyng haſt geuē a commaundemente, that all men when they heare the noyſe of the trompets, harpes, ſhawmes, melodyes, ſhall fall downe and bowe them ſelues towarde the golden ymage: who ſo then fell not downe and worſhypped not, yͭ he ſhulde be caſt into an hote burnyng ouē. ani.2.g. Now are there certayne Jewes* whome yͧ haſt ſet ouer the officers of yͤ lande of Babilon: namely, Sidrach, Miſach, and Abednago. Theſe men (O kyng) regarde not thy commaundement, yea they wil not ſerue thy goddes, nor bowe them ſelues to the golden D ymage, that thou haſt ſet vp. ¶ Then Nabuchodonoſor in a cruell wrathe and diſpleaſure, commaunded that Sidrach, Miſach, and Abednago ſhuld be brought vnto him. So theſe men were brought before yͤ king. ¶ Then Nabuchodonoſor ſpake vnto them, and ſayde: what? O Sidrah, Miſach, and Abednago, will not you ſerue my goddes? nor bowe your ſelues to the golden ymage, that I haue ſet vp? Wel, be redy hereafter. When ye heare the noyſe of the trompettes blow, with the harpes, ſhawmes, pſalteries, ſymphonies, and al the other melodies: that ye fall downe, and worſhyp yͤ ymage which I haue made. But yf ye worſhyp it not, ye ſhalbe caſte immediatly into an hote burnynge ouen. Let ſe, what God is there, that maye deliuer you oute of my handes. Sidrach, Miſach, and Abednago anſwered yͤ kyng, and ſayde. O Nabuchodonoſor, we oughte not to conſent vnto the in this matter: Au.16.g. for why? oure God whome we ſerue * is able to kepe vs from the hote burning ouē, (O kynge) ⁊ can ryght well deliuer vs out of thy handes. And though he will not, yet E ſhalt thou know (O kynge) that we will not ſerue thy goddes, nor do reuerence to the Image, whiche thou haſt ſet vp. ¶ Then was Nabuchodonoſor full of indignacion, ſo yͭ the countenaunce of his face chaunged vpō Sidrach, Miſach, ⁊ Abednago. ¶ Therfore he charged and commaunded that the ouen ſhulde be made ſeuen tymes hotter then it was wonte to be: and ſpake vnto the strongeſt worthies that were in his hoſte, for to bynd Sidrach, Miſach, and Abednago, ⁊ to caſt them into the hote burnynge ouen. So theſe men were bounde in their coates, hoſen, ſhoes, with their other garmētes, and caſte into the hote burnynge ouen: for the kynges commaundement was ſo ſtrayte, ⁊ the ouen was exceadynge hote. As for the men that put in Sidrach, Miſach, and Abednago, F the flame of the fyre deſtroied thē.

And theſe thre men, Sidrach, Miſach, and Abednago fell downe in the hote burnynge ouen, beyng faſt bounde. ¶ Then Nabuchodonoſor the kyng marueyled ⁊ ſtode vp in al haſt: he ſpake vnto his counſayle, ⁊ ſayd: dyd not you caſt theſe thre men boūde into yͤ fyre? They anſwered, and ſayd vnto the kynge: Yea, O kyng. He anſwered and ſayde: loe, for all that, yet do I ſe foure men goyng leuſe in the myddeſt of the fyre, and nothing corrupte, and the fourth is like the ſonne of god to loke vpon. Upon this went Nabuchodonoſor vnto the mouth of yͤ hote burnynge ouen, he ſpake alſo and ſayde: O Sidrach, Miſach, ⁊ Abednago, ye ſeruauntes of yͤ hye god, go forth, and come hyther. And ſo Sidrach, Miſach and Abednago went out of the fyre. ¶ Then yͤ dukes, lordes, and nobles, and the kynges coūſayle came together to ſe theſe men, * vpon whome the Eſa.43.a. fyre had no maner of power in their bodies. The .v. Chapter.

Balthaſar kynge of Babilon, abuſynge the veſſels of the temple, ſeeth an hand wrytyng on the wall. The ſoth ſayers, called of the kynge, can not expounde the wrytyng. Daniel is called, which readeth it and interpreteth it alſo. Balthaſar beynge ſlayne, Darius ſucceadeth in his rowme.

A KYnge Balthaſar made a great banket to his thouſande lordes: with all theſe thouſande he made greate chere, and when he was dronken with wine, he cōmaunded to bring hym the golden and ſiluer veſſels *whyche his father Nabuchodonoſor had taken out of the temple at Jeruſalem: that the kynge and his lordes, with his quene and concubynes myght drynke therout. So they brought the golden veſſel, that was taken oute of the temple of the Lordes houſe at Jeruſalem. Then the king and his Lordes with his quene and concubynes, dronke out of them. They dronke wyne ⁊ prayſed their Idols of golde, ſyluer, copper, yron, wood and ſtone. B In the very ſame houre there appeared fyngers, as it had bene of a mans hande wrytyng, ryght ouer agaynſt the candleſtycke vpon the playn wal in the kinges palace: and the kynge ſaw the palme of the hande that wrote. *Then chaunged the kyng his countenaunce, and his thoughtes troubled him, ſo that yͤ ioyntes of his bodye ſhoke, and his knees ſmote one agaynſt the other. *Wherfore the kynge cryed myghtelye, that they ſhoulde brynge hym the charmers, Caldees, and coniurers of deuels. The kynge ſpake alſo to the wyſe men of Babylon, and ſayd: Whoſo can reade this wrytyng, and ſhew me the playne meanyng therof, ſhalbe clothed with purple, haue a cheyne of golde aboute his necke, and rule the thyrde parte of my kyngdome. Vpon this, came all the kynges wyſe men: but they coulde neither reade the wrytyng, nor ſhewe the kynge what it ſignified. Then was the kynge ſore afrayed, in ſo muche, that his coloure chaunged, and his lordes were ſore vexed. C So by reaſō of this matter, that had happened to the kynge and his Lordes, the Quene wente vp her ſelfe into the banket houſe, and ſpake vnto the kynge, ſaying: O kynge, God ſaue thy lyfe for euer. Let not the thoughtes trouble the, and let not thy countenaunce be chaunged. Let this ſame Daniel be ſent for, and he ſhall tell what it meaneth. Then was Daniel brought before the kyng. becauſe his harte was ſo proude, and hys depoſed from his kingly trone, and his maieſty from amonge men, his hearte was lyke a

And thou his ſonne (O Balthazar) for all

Now the interpretaciō of the thinge is this.
Mane, God hath numbred the kyngdome, and brought it to an ende: Thetell, thou art wayed in the balaunce, and arte founde to partes, and gyuen to the Medes ⁊ Perſes.

Then commaunded Balthazar to cloth Daniell with purple, to hange a chayne of

The .vi. Chapter.

Daniell is made ruler ouer the lordes. The Imagynacion of an acte agaynſte Daniell. The proclamacion of the acte, wherof Daniell is accuſed vnto the kynge as a tranſgreſſoure: He is put into a dēne of Lyons by the commaundemente of the kyng. He is delyuered by faypth in God: Daniels accuſers are put vnto the Lyons to be torne in ſonder. Darius by the proclamaciō of a decree, magnifieth the God of Daniell.

IT pleaſed Darius to ſet ouer his A kyngdom an .C. and .xx. Lordes, which ſhould be in all his kingdome about. Aboue theſe he ſet thre princes (of whome Daniell was one) that the Lordes might gyue accōptes vnto them, and the kynge to be vndiſeaſed. But Daniell exceaded all theſe princes and lordes, for the ſprite of God was plenteouſe in him: ſo that the kynge was mynded to ſette him ouer the whole realme. Wherefore the princes and lordes ſought, to pycke out in Daniel ſome quarel agaynſt the kyngdom:
yet coulde they fynde none occaſiō nor faute vpon hym. For why? he was ſo faythfull, that there was no blame nor diſhoneſtye founde in hym. Then ſayde theſe men: we can get no quarell agaynſt this Daniel, except B it be in the law of his God. Upon this, went the princes and lordes together vnto
the kynge, and ſayd thus vnto hym: Kynge Darius, God ſaue thy lyfe for euer. All the greate eſtates of the realme, as the Princes, Dukes, Senatours, and Iudges, are determed to put out a commaundement of the kyng, ⁊ to make a ſure ſtatute: namely, that whoſo deſireth any peticion, either of anye God or man (within theſe .xxx. dayes) excepte it be only of thee, O king: yͤ ſame perſō may be caſt into the Lyons denne. Wherfore, O kyng, confirme yͤ this ſtatute, ⁊ make a wrytyng:
yͤ the thing whiche the Medes ⁊ Perſes haue ordeyned, be not altered nor brokē.

So Darius made the wrytynge, and confirmed C it. Nowe when Daniell vnderſtode that the wrytynge was made, he went into his houſe: and the wyndowes of his wal towarde Jeruſalem ſtode open. There kneled he down vpon hys knees, thre tymes a day:
there he made hys peticion, and prayſed his God, lyke as hys maner was to do afore tyme. Then theſe men made ſearche, and founde Daniel makynge his peticion, and prayinge vnto hys God. So they came to the kynge, and ſpake before hym concernynge his commaundemente, ſayinge: O kynge, haſt thou not ſubſcribed the ſtatute, hys peticion of anye God or man but onely ſayde vnto the kynge: Daniell one of the

but maketh his peticion thre tymes a daye.
When the kyng heard theſe wordes he was to delyuer him, and put of the matter vntill the Sunne wente downe, to the intẽte that he myght ſaue hym. Theſe men perceyuyng the kynges mynde, ſayd vnto him:

knowe this (O kynge) that the lawe of the Medes and Perſes is, that the commaundement and ſtatute whiche the kynge maketh, bad them brynge Daniel, and they caſt him into the Lyons denne. The kyng alſo ſpake vnto Daniell, and ſayde: thy God, whome

vpon the hole of the denne: this the kynge ſealed with hys owne rynge, and with the

IN the thyrde yeare of the reygne A thought I was by the ryuer of Ulai. Then Eze.32 d.

I loked vp, & ſawe: and beholde there ſtode before the ryuer, a ramme, whiche had two hornes:

hornes: and theſe two hornes were hye, but one was hyer then another, ⁊ the hyeſt came vp behynde. I ſawe yͭ thys ramme puſſhed with his hornes, agaynſt the weſt, agaynſte the north, and againſt the ſouthe: ſo that no beaſtes myght ſtande before hym, nor defende them from his power: but he dyd as B him luſted, and waxed greatlye. I toke hede vnto this, and then came there an he goate from yͤ weſt ouer the whole earth, and touched not the grounde. This goate had a meruelous wrethē horne betwyxte his eyes, and came vnto the Ramme that had yͤ two hornes (whom I had ſene afore by the ryuer ſyde) and ranne fearcely vpon him with his myght. I ſawe hym drawe nye, vnto the Ramme, beynge very fearce vpon him: yea, he gaue him ſuch a ſtroke, that he brake his two hornes. Nether had the Rāme ſo much ſtrength as to ſtande before him: but he caſt hym downe, trode hym vnder his fete, and no man was able to deliuer the Ramme out of his power. The goate waxed exceadyng greate, and when he was at the ſtrongeſte, Dan.7.a. nd.11.a. Mac.1.a hys greate horne was broken alſo. * Then grew there other foure ſuch lyke in yͤ ſteade, towarde the foure wyndes of yͤ heauē. Yea, oute of one of the leaſt of theſe hornes, there C came yet vp another horne, whiche waxed maruelous greate toward yͤ ſouth, toward the eaſt, and towarde the fayre pleaſaunt lande. It grewe vp to the hooſt of heauen, wherof it dyd caſt ſome down to yͤ groūde, and of the ſtarres alſo, and trode thē vndre fete. Yea, it grewe vp vnto the prince of the hooſt, from whom the daylye offrynge was takē, and the place of his Sanctuarye caſte downe. And a certayne ſeaſon was gyuen vnto it, agaynſte the dayly offryng (becauſe of wickednes) that it myght caſt downe the veritie to the grounde, and ſo to proſpere in all thynges, that it went about. Upon thys D I hearde one of the ſaintes ſpeaking, which ſaint ſayd vnto one that aſked this queſtiō. Howe longe ſhall this viſion of the daylye ſacrifice, and of the waſtynge abhominaciō endure, that the Sanctuary and the power ſhall ſo be troden vnder foote? And he anſwered hym: Unto the euenynge and the mornynge, euen two thouſande and thre hundreth dayes: than ſhall the Sanctuary be clenſed agayn. Now whē I Daniel had ſene this viſion and ſought for the vnderſtandynge of it: beholde, there ſtode before me a thynge lyke vnto a man. And I heard a mans voice in the ryuer of Ulay whyche cryed, and ſayd: O Gabriel, make this man to vnderſtande the viſion. So he came and ſtode by me. But I was afrayed at his cōmynge, and fell downe vpon my face.

Then ſayde he vnto me: O thou ſonne of E man marcke well, for in the laſt tyme ſhall this viſion be fulfilled. Nowe as he was ſpeakyng vnto me, I waxed faynt, ſo that I ſanke downe to the grounde. But he toke hold vpon me, ⁊ ſet me vp agayne, ſayinge: Beholde, I will ſhewe the what ſhall happen in the laſt wrath: for in yͤ tyme appointed it ſhalbe fulfilled. The Ramme whyche thou ſaweſte with the two hornes, is yͤ kyng of the Medes and Perſes: but the goate is yͤ kyng of Greke lande: the great horne that ſtode betwyxte his eyes, that is the principall kyng. But where as it brake, and foure other roſe vp in the ſteade: it ſignifieth, that * 1.mac.1. out of this people ſhall ſtande vp * foure F kyngdomes, but not ſo myghtye as it. After theſe kyngdomes (whyle vngodlynes is a growyng) there ſhal aryſe a kyng of an vnſhamefaſte face, whiche ſhall be wyſe in darcke ſpeakynges. He ſhalbe myghty and ſtronge, but not in hys owne ſtrength.

He ſhall deſtroye aboue meaſure, and all that he goeth aboute ſhall proſpere: he ſhal ſlaye the ſtronge and holye people. And thorow his craftynes, falſhed ſhal proſpere in his hande: his herte ſhalbe proude, and many one ſhall he put to death in his welthyneſſe. He ſhall ſtande vp agaynſte the prince of princes, * but he ſhall be deſtroyed 2.Mac.9. 2.Thes.2. without hande. And this viſion yͭ is ſhewed vnto the, is as ſure as the euenyng and the mornynge. * Therfore wryte thou vp this * Eſay.8. ſyghte, for it will be lōge or it come to paſſe.

Upon this was I Daniel verye faynt, ſo that I laye ſycke certayne dayes: but when I roſe vp, I wente aboute the kynges buſyneſſe, and marueled at the viſion, neuertheleſſe, noman knew of it.

The. x. Chapter.

There appeareth vnto Daniell a man clothed in lynnen, whyche ſheweth hym wherfore he is ſente,

IN the thyrde yeare of kyng Cirus
A of Perſia, there was ſhewed vnto Danyel (otherwiſe called Balthazer) a matter, yea, a true matter, but it is yet a longe tyme vnto it. He vnderſtode the matter wel, and perceyued what the viſiō was. At the ſame tyme, I Daniell mourned for the ſpace of thre weekes, ſo that I had no luſt to eate breade: as for fleſhe and wine there came none wythin my mouthe: No, I dyd not once anoynte my ſelfe, tyl the whole thre weekes were out. Upon the .xxiiii. day of the fyrſte moneth, I was by the great floud, dan.7.b called *Tygrys, I lyfte vp myne eyes, and Apoca.1.c loked: and beholde, a man clothed in lynen, whoſe loines were girded vp with fine golde of Arabye, hys body was like the Chryſolite ſtone, hys face (to loke vpon) was like lyghteninge, hys eyes as the flame of fyre, hys armes and fete were lyke fayre glyſterynge metal, but the voice of his wordes was like ẏ
B voice of a multitude. *I Daniel alone ſawe Dani.5.c thys vyſyon, ‡the men that were wyth me, ‡Acte.9.a ſawe it not: but a great fearfulneſſe fell vpō them, ſo that they fled awaye and hyd them ſelues. I was lefte there my ſelfe alone, and ſawe thys great viſion, ſo longe tyl there remayned nomore ſtrength wythin me.
Yea, I loſte my coloure cleane, I waſted awaye, & my ſtrength was gone. Yet hearde I the voice of his wordes: and as ſoone as I hearde it, faintneſſe came vpō me, and I fel downe flat to the grounde vpon my face.
And beholde, an hande touched me, whyche ſet me vp vpon my knees, & vpō the palmes of my handes, ſaying vnto me: *O Daniel, Dan.9.b thou well beloued man, take good hede of ẏ wordes that I ſhal ſaye vnto the, and ſtand ryghte vp, for vnto the am I nowe ſente.
And when he had ſaid theſe wordes, I ſtode
C vp trēbling. Thē ſaid he vnto me: feare not Daniel: for why? ſence the fyrſte daye ẏ thou dyddeſt ſet thyne harte to vnderſtande, and dyddeſt chaſten thy ſelfe before thy God: thy wordes haue bene heard. And I had come vnto the, when ẏ beganneſt to ſpeake, had not the prynce ouer the kyngdome of ẏ Perſes wythſtande me .xxi. dayes. But Lo, the kinges of Perſia, and am come to ſhewe Dani.12.

the what ſhall happen vnto thy people in ẏ latter dayes. For it wylbe longe yet or the viſion be fulfilled. Nowe when he had ſpokē theſe wordes vnto me, I caſte downe my head to the grounde, and helde my tonge.
Beholde, there touched my lyppes one very like vnto a man. Then opened I my mouth, and ſayde vnto hym, that ſtode before me: o my Lorde, my ioyntes are leuſed in the viſiō D and there is nomore ſtrength within me.
Howe may my Lordes ſeruaunte then talke wyth my Lorde? ſeynge there is no ſtrengthe in me, ſo that I can not take my breathe?
Upon thys there touched me agayne, one muche like a man* & comforted me, ſaying: *Dani.9.
O thou man ſo well beloued, feare not: be contente, take a good hart vnto the, and be ſtronge. So when he had ſpokē vnto me, I recouered, and ſayde: Speake on my Lord, for thou haſte refreſſhed me. Then ſayde he:
knoweſt thou wherfore I am come vnto the?
nowe wil I go againe to fight wyth ẏ king & the prince of the Perſes. As ſoone as I go forth, lo, the prince of Grekeland ſhal come.
Neuertheleſſe I wyl ſhewe the that thynge, that is faſte noted in the ſcripture of truth.
And as for al yonder matters, there is none ẏ helpeth me in thē, but Michael youre prince.

The. xi. Chapter.

A prophecie of ẏ kinges of Perſia. Of the kingdome of Grece. Of the kyngdome of Egipt, & of the bonde thereof, and of the battell wyth the kyngdome of Syria. Of the Iewes that flye vnto the kynge of Egypte, whome Antiochus the kynge of Syria perſecuteth, whych fygureth vnto vs Antichriſt. The pryde of Antiochus.

AND in the fyrſte yeare of Darius of A Media, I ſtode by hym, to comforte hym, and to ſtrength hym, and nowe wyl I ſhewe the ẏ truth. Beholde, there ſhal ſtande vp yet thre kinges in Perſia, but the fourth ſhall be farre rycher then they all.
And when he is in the cheſeſt power of hys

the realme of Grekeland. *Then ſhal there *Dan.7.a

windes of the heauē. They that come after hym, ſhal not haue ſuche power ⁊ dominion as he: but his kingdome ſhalbe ſcatered, yea, euen among other then thoſe. And the kinge of the ſouth ſhalbe myghtyer, then hys other prynces. And one ſhall be ſtronger then he, and ſhall rule hys domynyon wyth greate power. And in the ende of yeares, they ſhalbe ioyned together, and the kynges daughter B of yͤ ſouth ſhal come to the king of yͤ North, for to make frendſhyp, but ſhe ſhal not obtayne the power of that arme, nether ſhall ſhe be able to endure thorowe hys myghte: but ſhe, and ſuche as broughte her (yea and he that begat her, and comforted her for hys tyme) ſhall be delyuered vp. Out of the braunches of her roote, there ſhal one ſtande vp in hys ſteade, whyche wyth power of armes ſhall go thorowe the kynges lande of the north, and handle hym accordyng to hys ſtrength. As for theyr Idols ⁊ princes, wyth theyr coſtly Iewels of golde ⁊ ſiluer, he ſhall carye them awaye captiues into Egipt, and he ſhall reygne more yeares then the king of the North. And when he is come into the kynges realme of the ſouth, he ſhalbe fayne to turne againe into his owne land. Wherefore his ſonnes ſhalbee diſpleaſed, ⁊ ſhall gather together a mightye greate hoſt of people: and one of them ſhal come, ⁊ goe thoroughe lyke a water floude: then ſhall he returne, and goe foorth wyth defyinge and boaſtynge, vnto hys owne lande. Then the kynge of the ſouth ſhalbee angrye, and ſhall come forth to fight agaynſt the kinge of the north: yea, he ſhal bring a great multitude of C people together, and a great heape ſhall bee geuen into his hand: theſe ſhal he cary away with great pryde, forſomuch as he hath caſt down ſo manye thouſandes: neuertheleſſe, he ſhal not preuayle. For the kynge of yͤ northe ſhall gather (of the newe) a greater heape of people then afore, ⁊ come foorth (after a certain time ⁊ yeares) with a mighty hooſt, and exceading greate good.

At theſame tyme there ſhall manye ſtand vp agaynſte the kynge of the ſouth, ſo that the wicked chyldren of thy people alſo, ſhall exalt themſelues (to fulfyll the vyſion) and thē fall. So the kyng of the north ſhall come to lay ſege, and to take the ſtrong fenſed cities: And the power of them of the ſouth ſhal not be able to abyde hym, and the beſt menne of the people ſhall not be ſo ſtrong, as to reſiſte hym. Shortelye, when he commeth, he ſhall handell hym as he lyſte, and no man ſhalbee ſo hardye as to ſtande agaynſte hym. He ſhal ſtande in yͤ pleaſaunt countrie, which thorowe hym ſhalbe deſtroyed. He ſhall ſet hys face wyth all hys power to obtayne hys kyngdome, and to be lyke it. Yea, that ſhall he do, and geue hym vnto the daughters amonge wemen, to deſtroye hym. But he ſhal fayle, nether ſhall he obtayne hys purpoſe. After this ſhall he ſet his face vnto the Iles, and take many of thē. A prynce ſhal ſtoppe him to do him a ſhame, beſide the cōfuſion yͤ els ſhal come vnto him. Thus ſhal he turne agayne to his owne lande, ſtomble and fal, D and be nomore founde: ſo he that came vpō hym and dyd hym vyolence, ſhall ſtande in his place, and haue a pleaſaunte kyngdom: and after fewe dayes he ſhall be deſtroyed, ⁊ that neyther in wrath, nor in battell. In his ſteade there ſhall aryſe a vyle perſone, not holden worthye of a kynges dygnitie: this ſhal come in peaceably, ⁊ obtayne the kingdome with fayre woordes: he ſhall fyght agaynſte the armes of the myghtye (and deſtroye them) yea, ⁊ agaynſt the prynce of the couenaunt. So after that he hath takē truce with hym, he ſhall handle dyſceytfullye that he may gette vp and ouercome hym wyth a ſmall flocke, and ſo with craftyneſſe to gette hym to the fatteſt place of the lande, and to deale otherwyſe, then eyther his fathers or graundfathers dyd. For he ſhall deſtroy the thing that they had robbed ⁊ ſpoyled, yea, ⁊ al theyr ſubſtaunce, ymagynyng thoughtes E agaynſt the ſtrong holdes, ⁊ that for a time. His power and heart ſhalbe ſtiered vp with a great army, agaynſt the king of the ſouth, where thorow the king of yͤ ſouth ſhalbe moued then vnto battel, with a great ⁊ mighty hoſte alſo. Neuertheleſſe he ſhall not be able to ſtand, for they ſhal conſpyre againſt him. Yea, they that eate of his meate ſhall hurte him: ſo yͤ his hoſte ſhal fall, ⁊ many be ſlayne downe. Theſe two kynges ſhalbe minded to do miſchiefe, and talke of dyſceyte at one table, but they ſhall not proſpere: for why? yͤ end ſhal not come yet, vnto the time appointed. *Then ſhal he goe home agayn into his owne lande with great good, and ſette hys hearte agaynſte the holy couenaunt: he ſhal be buſy agaynſte it, and then returne home. At the tyme appoynted, he ſhall come agayn and goe towarde the ſouth. So ſhall it happen otherwyſe then at the fyrſte, yet once agayne. And why? *the ſhyppes with Italians ſhall come vpon hym, that he maye bee ſmytten, and turne agayne: that he maye take indygnacyon agaynſte the couenaunte of holyneſſe, to medle agaynſte it.

*2 Mac.

Nu. 24.

Yea, he ſhal turne him, and drawe ſuch vnto
F hym as leaue the holy couenaunte. He ſhall ſet mighty mē to vnhalowe the Sanctuary of ſtrength, to put downe the dayly offryng,
and to ſet vp the abhominable deſolacion.
And ſuche as breake the couenaunt, ſhall he flatter wyth fayre wordes. But the people that wyll knowe theyr God, ſhall haue the ouerhande & proſper. Thoſe alſo that haue vnderſtandyng among the people, ſhall enfourme the multitude: and for a long ſeaſon they ſhall be perſecuted wyth ſwearde, wyth fyre, with captiuitie, & with the taking away of theyr goodes. Nowe when they fal, they ſhall be ſet vp wyth a lytle helpe: but many ſhall cleaue vnto them faynedlye.
Yea ſome of thoſe which haue vnderſtādíng ſhall be perſecuted alſo, that they maye be tryed, purified and clenſed, tyll the tyme be out: for there is yet another tyme appointed.
2.teſ.2.a. The kyng ſhall do what hym lyſt *he ſhall already. He ſhal not regarde the God

In hys place ſhall he worſhip the myghtye of Danyel.

The booke of the Prophete Oſeas.

¶The firſt Chapter.

The tyme wherein Oſeas prophecyed. Oſeas by takyng an harlot to his wyfe, sygnifyeth the ydolatry of the people. The deſtruction of the offſpryng of Jehu, and of the Iſraelytes, is prophecyed.

A THis is the woorde of the Lord that came vnto Oſeas the ſonne of Beery*in the dayes of Oſeas, Joathan, Ahas, and Jezekias
kinges of Juda, & in the time of Jeroboā the ſonne of Joas king of Iſrael. Fyrſt whē the Lord ſpake vnto Oſeas, he ſayd vnto him: Go thy way, take an harlot to thy wyfe, & get chyldrē by her, for the land hath cōmytted greate whoredom againſt the Lord. So he wēt & tooke Gomer, the doughter of Deblaim, which conceiued and brought forth a B ſon. And the Lord ſayd vnto him: cal his name Jezrael, for J will ſhortly auenge the bloud of‡ Jezrael, vpon the houſe of Jehu, & will bryng the kyngdome of the houſe of Iſrael to an ende. Then will J breake the bow of Iſrael in the valley of Jezrael. She conceiued yet agayne, and bare a doughter: And he ſayd vnto hym: Call her name Loruhamah (that is, not obtayning mercye:) * for J will haue no C pitie vpon the houſe of Iſrael, but forget them, and put them cleane out of remembraunce.
*Neuertheles, J wil haue mercy vpon the houſe of Juda, and wil ſaue them euen thorowe the Lord theyr God.
But J wyll not delyuer them thorowe any bowe, ſwearde, battayle, horſes, or horſemenne. Nowe when ſhe had wayned Loruhamah, ſhe conceyued agayne, D and bare a ſonne. Then ſayde he: call his name Loamye. For why ? ye are not my people: therefore wyll not J be your God. And though the numbre of the children of Iſrael be as the ſande of the ſea, which can neyther be meaſured nor told,
yet in the place where it is ſayde vnto them: *ye be not my people: euen there *Ro. 9. c. ſhall it be thus reported of them: *they be *John.1.a the children of the lyuyng God. ‡ Then ‡Eze.37.c ſhall the children of Juda, and the children of Iſrael, be gathered together againe, and choſe themſelues one head,
and then depart out of the land: for great

The.ii.Chapter.

The people is called vnto repentaunce.

TEll your brethren, that they are my A people: and your ſyſters, that they haue obtayned mercye. As for your mother ye ſhall chyde with her, and reproue her, *for ſhe is not my wyfe, neyther and her aduoutrye from her breſtes. Yf no, J ſhall ſtrippe her naked, and ſet her ſhall laye her waſte, and make her lyke a wyldernesſe, and ſlay her for thyrſt. J ſhal haue no pytie alſo vpō her children: *for John.8.d they be the chyldren of fornicacion.

Theyr mother hathe broken her wedlocke, and ſhe that bare them*is come to 4.re.16.a confuſyon. For ſhe ſayde: J wyll go after my louers that geue me my water and my bread, my woll and flaxe, myne oyle and my drynke. But J wyll hedge her way with thornes, and ſtoppe it, that ſhe B ſhall not fynde her fote ſteppes, & though ſhe runne after her louers, yet ſhall ſhe not gette them: ſhe ſhall ſeke them, but not fynde them. * Then ſhall ſhe ſaye: Leui.15.c well, J will go turne agayne to my firſte houſbande: for at that time was J better at eaſe then nowe. But this woulde ſhe not know, whereas J yet gaue her corne, wyne, oyle, ſyluer, and golde,* whiche Eze.16.b ſhe hath hanged vpon Baall.
Wherfore nowe wyl J go take my corne and wyne agayne in theyr ſeaſon, and fette againe my woll and my flaxe which J gaue her to couer her ſhame. * And Jere.13.e nowe wyll J dyſcouer her foolyſhneſſe euen in the ſyght of her louers, & no man ſhall delyuer her oute of myne handes. C Moreouer, J wyll take awaye all her

And therefore ſhake of thy greate heuyneſſe and put awaye the multitude of ſorowes: that the myghtye maye be mercyfull vnto the: and that the hyeſt maye geue the reſte from thy laboure and trauayle. And it happened, yͭ when I was talkynge wyth her, her face dyd ſhyne and glyſter, ſo that I was afrayed of her, and muſed what it myghte be. Then was I afrayed, and cryed, wͭ

O ſhall my vnderſtandynge be dyſceaued, and my mynde: But nowe I beſeche the, that thou wylte ſhewe thy ſeruaunte of thys wondre. He aunſwered me then, and ſayd heare me, and I ſhall tell the wherfore thouarte afrayed, for yͤ hyeeſt hathe opened manye ſecret thynges vnto the.

He hathe ſene yͭ thy wayes are ryghte, and that thou takeſte ſorowe continuallye for thy people: and makeſt greate lamentacion for Sion: and therefore vnderſtande the viſion, whych thou ſaweſt a litle whyle a go after this maner. Thou ſaweſt a woman mournyng and thou haſte comforted her. Neueretheleſſe nowe ſeeſt thou the lykeneſſe of that woman nomoare, but thou thoughteſt there was a citie buylded: and lyke as ſhe tolde the of the fall of her ſonne: ſo is this the annſwere. The woman whome thou ſaweſt is Sion: and where as ſhe tolde the, that ſhe hath bene thyrtye yeares vnfruytefull and barren, thoſe are the thyrtye yeares wherin there was no offeringe made in her. D

But after thyrtye yeares Salomon buylded her and offerd, and then bare the barren a ſonne. And where as ſhe tolde the: that ſhe noriſhed hym wyth laboure, that was the dwellynge of Jeruſalem. But where as ſhe tolde that her ſonne died when ſhe came into her chambre, that is the fal of Jeruſalem. And thou ſaweſt her lykenes howe ſhe mourned for her ſonne: & what els happened vnto her, I haue ſhewed yͤ. And nowe GOD ſeeth, that thou art ſory in thy mynde, and ſuffereſt from thy hert for her, & ſo hathe he ſhewed the her cleareneſſe, & the fayreneſſe of her beauty.

And therfore I bad the remayne in the felde where no houſe is buylded. For I knewe that the hyeſte wolde ſhewe thys vnto the: therefore I commaunded the to go into the felde, where no fundacion nor buylding is. For in yͤ place where the hyeſt wyll ſhewe hys citie, there ſhalbe no mans buyldynge. And therfore feare not, and let not thyne herte be afrayed, but go thy waye in, and ſe the glorious fayre buyldynge and howe greate it is and howe great thou thinckeſt it, after the meaſure of thyne eyes, & then ſhalte thou heare as muche as thyne eares may comprehẽd For thou arte bleſſed aboue many other and art called wyth the hyeſt amõgeſt the fewe. But to morowe at nyghte thou ſhalt remayne here: and ſo ſhall the hyeſt ſhewe the viſions of hye thynges, whych he wyll do vnto them that dwell vpon earth, in the laſte dayes. So I ſlept the ſame nyght, lyke as he commaunded me.

¶ In thys chapter and in the two nexte enſuynge he intreateth of certayne viſions / and the interpretacions thereof.

A THen ſawe I a dreame: and behold there came vp from yͤ ſee an Aegle whiche had twelue wynges, ⁊ thre heades: And I ſawe, and behold he ſprede his wynges ouer all the earth, and all the wyndes of the ayre blewe in them, ⁊ ſo they were put together agayne.

And I behelde, and oute of hys fethers there grewe out other lytle contrarie fethers, the hedes reſted, the heades in the myddeſte was greater then the other, yet reſted it wyth yͤ reſidue.

Moreouer I ſawe, that the Aegle flewe wyth hys wynges, and raygned vpon earthe and ouer al them yͭ dwelte vpon the earthe: And I ſawe that all thynges vnder heauen were ſubiecte vnto hym, and no man ſpake agaynſte hym:no not one creature vpon earth. I ſawe alſo that the Aegle ſtode vp vpon hys clawes, ⁊ gaue a ſounde wyth hys feathers, ⁊ a voyce ſayinge after thys maner:watche not all to geather, ſlepe euery man in hys owne place, ⁊ watch for a time, but let yͤ heades be preſerued at the laſte. Neuertheleſſe, I ſawe, that the voyce went not oute of hys heades, but frō the myddeſte of hys bodye. And I nombred hys contrarye fethers, and behold, there were .viij. of them. And I loked. And beholde vpon the ryght ſide there aroſe one fether, ⁊ raygned ouer all the earth: And it happened, yͭ when it raygned, the end of it came, ⁊ the place therof appered nomore. So the nexte folowynge ſtode vp, ⁊ raygned ⁊ had a greate tyme: ⁊ it happened, yͭ when it raygned, the ende of it came alſo lyke as the fyrſte, ſo that it appered nomore.

B Then there came a voyce vnto it, ⁊ ſayde Heare thou that haſte kepte in yͤ earth ſo long. Thys I ſaye vnto the: before thou begynneſte to appeare nomore. There ſhall none after the attayne vnto thy tyme. Then aroſe the thyrde ⁊ raygned as the other afore, ⁊ appeared nomore alſo. So wente it wyth all the reſydue one after another, ſo that euerye one raygned, ⁊ then appered nomore. Then I loked, ⁊ behold in proceſſe of tyme the fethers that folowed were ſet vp vpon the ryghte ſyde, yͭ they myghte rule alſo: and ſome of them ruled, but wythin a whyle they appered no moare: for ſome of them were ſet vp, but ruled not. After thys I loked. And behold the twelue fethers appered nomore nor the two winges, ⁊ there was nomoare vpon the Aegles body but two heades that reſted, and ſyxe fethers. Then ſaw I alſo that the ſyxe fethers were parted in two, and remayned vnder yͤ heade, that was vpon the righte ſyde, for yͤ foure contynued in theyr place. So I loked, ⁊ beholde, they that were vnder the wynges, thoughte to ſet vp thē ſelues, ⁊ to haue the rule. Then was there one ſet vp, but ſhortly it appered nomore, ⁊ the ſeconde was ſoner awaye then the fyrſte. And I beheld, and loo, yͤ two thought alſo by them ſelues to raygne, ⁊ when they ſo thought, beholde, there awaked one of the heades that were at reſt: namelye, it that was in yͤ myddeſt, for that was the greater of the two heades. And then I ſawe, that the two heades were fylled wyth hym, and the heade was turned wyth them, and were by hym, and dyd eate vp the two vnder winges that wold haue raigned.

But thys heade put the hole earth in feare, and bare rule in yt, ouer all thoſe that dwelt vpon earth wyth muche laboure, and he had the gouernaunce of the worlde, ouer all the foules that haue bene. After thys I loked, ⁊ beholde yͤ head that was in yͤ myddeſt, ſodaynely appered no more, lyke as yͤ wynges thē came the two heades, whych ruled vpō earth, ⁊ ouer thoſe that dwelte therin. And I behelde, and lo, the heade vpon yͤ ryghte ſyde deuoured that was vpō the lette ſyde. And I hearde a voice, whyche ſayde vnto me: loke before the, and conſidre the thynge that thou ſeeſte. Then I ſawe, ⁊ beholde, as it were a Lion yͭ roareth, rennynge haſtelye oute of the woode, and he ſente oute a mans voyce vnto the Aegle, and ſayde: Heare thou: I wil talke wyth the, and the hieſt ſhal ſaye vnto the: Is it not thou that haſte the victorie of the foure beaſtes, whom I made to raygne vpō earth and in my worlde, and that the ende of theyr tymes myght come thorow them: C

And the fourth came, and ouer ranne al the beaſtrs yͭ were paſt, ⁊ had powre ouer the worlde with great fearfulneſſe, ⁊ ouer the hole compaſſe of the earth wyth the mooſte wycked laboure: and ſo longe tyme dwelte ye vpon the earth wyth dyſceate, and yͤ earthe haſte thou iudged not wyth truth. For thou haſt D troubled the meke: thou haſt hurte the peaceable and quiet: thou haſte loued lyers, and deſtroyed the dwellynges of them that brought forth fruyte, ⁊ haſte caſt downe the walles of ſuche as dyd the no harme. Therfore is thy wrongfull dealynge ⁊ blaſphemye cum vp vnto the hyeſt: ⁊ thy pryde vnto the myghtie. The hyeſt alſo hath loked vpon the proude times: ⁊ beholde they are ended and theyr abominacions are fulfylled. And therfore appere nomoare thou Aegle, and thy horible winges, ⁊ thy wycked fethers, ⁊ thy vngracious heades, and thy ſynful clawes, and al thy vayne body, that the earth may be refreſhed, and come agayne to her ſelfe: when ſhe is delyuered from thy violence: ⁊ that ſhe maye hope for the iudgemente and mercie of hym that made her.

The xij. Chapter.

A AND it happened when the Lyon ſpake theſe wordes vnto yͤ Aegle, I ſawe, and beholde yͤ heade that afore had the vpper hande, appered nomore: nether dyd the foure wynges appeare any more yͭ came to hym and were ſet vp to raygne: and theyr kyngdome was ſmal and full of vproure. And I ſawe and behold they appered nomore, and the whole bodye of the Aegle was brente, and the earth was in greate feare. Then I awaked oute of the traunce of my mynde, and from greate feare, and ſayde vnto my ſpirite: Loo, thys haſt thou geuē me in that thou ſearcheſte oute the wayes of the hyeſt: loo, yet am I wery in my mynde, and verye weake in my ſpirite, and lytle ſtrength is there in me, for yͤ greate feare that I receyued thys nyght. Therfore nowe I wyll beſeche the hyeſt, that he wyll comforte me vnto the ende: and I ſayde LORDE LORDE, yf I haue founde grace before thy ſyghte, and yf I am iuſtified wyth yͤ before manye other, aud yf my prayer become vp before thy face, comforte me then, and ſhewe me thy ſeruaunte the interpretacion aud playne difference of thys horible ſyghte, that thou mayeſte perfectly comforte my ſoule: for thou haſte iudged me worthy, to ſhewe me the laſt of tymes.

And he ſayde vnto me: thys is the interpretacion of thys ſyghte. The Aegle whome thou ſaweſt come vp from the ſee, is the kingdome *whiche was ſene in the viſion of thy brother Daniel, but it was not expounded vnto hym, for nowe I declare it vnto the. Dani.7.a B Beholde, yͤ dayes come, that there ſhall ryſe vp a kyngedome vpō earth, and it ſhalbe feared aboue al kyngedomes that were before it. In yͤ ſame kyngedome ſhall twelue kynges raygne one after another. For the ſeconde ſhall begynne to raygne and ſhall haue moare tyme then the other twelue: and thys do the twelue wynges ſignifie, whyche thou ſaweſt: As for the voyce that ſpake, and yͭ thou ſaweſte not goo oute from the heades, but from yͤ body: it betokeneth, that after the tyme of yͤ kyngedome there ſhal aryſe greate ſtryuynges, ⁊ it ſhal ſtande in paryl of fallynge Neuertheleſſe, it ſhal not yet fall, but ſhalbe ſet into hys begynnynge: And yͤ eyghte vnder wynges whyche thou ſaweſte hange vnto yͤ wynges of hym, betoken, that in hym there ſhall aryſe eyghte kynges, whoſe tyme ſhalbe but ſmal, and theyr yeares ſwyft, and two of them ſhal peare. But when the myddeſte tyme commeth, there ſhalbe foure kepte for a tyme vntyll thyre tyme begynneth to come, that it maye be ended: but two ſhalbe kepte vnto the ende.

C And where as thou ſaweſte thre heades reſtynge: thys is yͤ interpretacion. In hys laſte, ſhall yͤ hyeſt rayſe vp thre kyngdomes, and call many agayne into them, and they ſhall haue the dominion of yͤ earth, and of thoſe that dwell therein wyth moche laboure, aboue all thoſe that were before them. Therfore are they called the heades of the Aegle: for it is they that ſhall brynge forthe hys wyckedneſſe agayne, and that ſhall perfourme and finiſhe hys laſte. And where as thou ſaweſte, that the greate heade appered nomoare, it ſignifieth, that one of them ſhall dye vpon hys bead, and yet wyth payne: ⁊ the two that remayne ſhalbe ſlayne wyth the ſwerd. For the ſwearde of the one ſhal deuour the other: but at the laſt, ſhal he fal thorowe yͤ ſwearde him ſelfe.

And where as thou ſaweſt two vnder winges vpon the heade, yͭ is they, whome yͤ hyeſte hath kepte vnto their ende: thys is a ſmall kyngdome and full of trouble. The Lyon whome thou ſaweſte ryſynge vp, oute of the woode, ⁊ roarynge ⁊ ſpeakyng vnto the Aegle, and rebukynge hym foꝛ hys vnryghteouſneſſe, is the wynde whyche the hygheſt hath kepte foꝛ them ⁊ foꝛ theyꝛ wyckedneſſe vnto yͤ ende: he ſhal repꝛoue them, ⁊ rente them aſundꝛe befoꝛe them. Foꝛ he ſhall ſet them lyuynge in the Judgemente, and ſhall rebuke them yͭ ar fau-

D tie: yͤ reſidue of my people whiche ſhall eſcape vnto min endes ſhall he delyuer wyth trouble. And ſhall make thẽ ioyefull, vntyl yͤ cõmyng of the day of iudgement: wherof J haue ſpoken vnto yͤ frõ the beginning. Thys is yͤ dreame that thou ſaweſt: and thys is the interpꝛetacion. Thou only haſt ben mete to knowe the ſecret of the hyeſt.

Therfoꝛe wꝛyte all theſe thynges yͭ thou haſte ſene in a booke, ⁊ hyde them, ⁊ teache them the wyſe in yͤ people whoſe hertes thou knoweſt maye compꝛehende ⁊ kepe theſe ſecrettes. But wayte thou heare thy ſelfe yet ſeuen dayes mo, yͭ it maye be ſhewed yͤ whatſoeuer yt pleaſeth the hygheſte to declare vnto the: ⁊ wyth that he wente hys waye.

And when al the people perceaued, that the ſeuen dayes were paſt, ⁊ J not come againe into yͤ citie, they gathered them al together, from the leeſt vnto yͤ mooſte, ⁊ came vnto me, ãd ſayde: what haue we offended the: and what euell haue we done agaynſte the, that thou foꝛſakeſt vs, and ſytteſt here in thys place: Foꝛ of all the people, thou onely arte lefte vs, as a grape of the vine, and as a candle in a darcke place, ⁊ as an hauen ⁊ ſhippe pꝛeſerued from yͤ tempeſt. Haue we not els aduerſitye ynough, but thou muſt foꝛſake vs: Were it not better foꝛ vs, that we had ben bꝛente with Sion: Foꝛ we are not better then they that dyed there: ⁊ they wepte, wͭ loude voyce. Then aunſwered J them, ⁊ ſayde: Be of good comfoꝛte, O Jſrael, ⁊ be not heuy thou houſe of Jacob: foꝛ the hygheſt hathe you in remembꝛaunce, ⁊ the myghtye hath not foꝛgotten you in temptacion. As foꝛ me, J haue not foꝛſakẽ you, neyther am J departed from you: but am come into this place to pꝛaye, becauſe of the miſerie of Jſrael, that J myghte ſeke mercy foꝛ the lowe eſtate of youre Sanctuarie. And nowe go youre waye home euery man and after theſe dayes wyll J come vnto you: So the people went theyꝛ waye into the citie, lyke as J commãded them: but J remayned ſtyl in the felde ſeuen dayes, as the Angel bad me, ⁊ dyd eate onely of the floures of the felde, and had my meate of the herbes in thoſe dayes.

AND it happened after yͤ ſeuen A
dayes, that J dꝛemed a dꝛeame by nyghte. And beholde, there aroſe a wynde from the ſee, that it moued all the floudes therof. And J loked and beholde, the man was ſtrong, ⁊ in creaſed wyth the cloudes of heauen: and when he turned hys countynaunce to conſider, al the thynges trymbled yͭ were ſene vnder hym: ⁊ when the voyce wẽt out of hys mouth, all they bꝛent that heard hym, lyke as the earth when it feleth the fyꝛe.

After theſe J ſawe, and beholde, there was gathered to geather a multitude of men oute of nombꝛe, from the foure wyndes of the heauen, to fyghte agaynſte the man that came out from yͤ ſee. And J loked and behold, he graued hym ſelfe a great mountayne, and flewe vp vpon it. But J wold haue ſene the border oꝛ place, wher oute the hyll was grauen, and J coulde not.

J ſawe after theſe, that all they whyche came to fyght a gaynſte hym, were ſoꝛe afrayed and yet they durſte fyght. Neuertheleſſe, when he ſawe yͤ fearceneſſe and violence of yͤ people he nether lyfte vp his hande noꝛ helde a ſwearde noꝛ any weapẽ: but onely (as J ſawe) he ſente oute of hys mouth as it had bene a blaſte of fyꝛe ⁊ oute of his lyppes yͤ wynde of yͤ flame: ⁊ oute of his tong he caſte out ſparckes ⁊ ſtoꝛmes, ⁊ they were all myxte together: yͤ blaſte of fyꝛe, yͤ wynde of the flammes, and the greate ſtoꝛme, ⁊ fell wyth a ruſhe vpon yͤ people, whyche was pꝛepared to fyght, ãd bꝛent them vp euery chone, ſo that of yͤ innumerable multitude there was nothynge ſene, but onely duſte ⁊ ſmoke. When J ſawe thys, J was afrayed.

Afterwarde ſawe J the ſame man come downe from the mountayne, and B callynge vnto hym another peaceable people, and there came muche people vnto hym: ſome were glad, ſome were ſoꝛye, ſome of them were bonde, ſo that they were caryed and broughte forthe.

Then was I ſycke thorowe greate feare, ⁊ I awaked, and ſayde: thou haſte ſhewed thy ſeruaunte all thy wonders, from the begynning ⁊ haſte counted me worthy, that thou myghteſt receaue my prayer: ſewe me now yet the interpretacion of thys dreame. For thus I conſidre in my vnderſtandynge: wo vnto them that ſhalbe lefte in thoſe dayes, and much more wo vnto them yͤ are not lefte behynde, for they that were not lefte were in heuynes:

Nowe vnderſtande I the thynges yͤ are layed vp in the latter dayes, whiche ſhall happen vnto them, and to thoſe yͤ are not lefte behide. Therfore are they come into great parylles and many neceſſities lyke as theſe dreames declare. yet is it eaſyer, that he whyche ſuffereth hurte, come in theſe, then to paſſe awaye as a cloude oute of the worlde, and not to ſe the thynges that ſhall happen in the laſte.

C Then aunſwered he me, and ſayde: The interpretacion of the ſyghte ſhall I ſhewe the, and I wyl open to the, the thynge yͤ thou haſt required. For thou haſte ſpoken of them that are lefte behynde, ⁊ thys is the interpretacion. He that hath ſufferid payne in yͤ tyme ſhal ſaue hym ſelfe. They that be fallen into harme, are ſuche as geue worckes and faythe vnto the mooſte myghtye. Knowe thys therfore, that they whyche be lefte behynde are moare bleſſed then they that be deade. Thys is yͤ meanynge of the viſion. Where as thou ſaweſt a man commyng vp from the depe of yͤ ſee, the ſame is he whome GOD yͤ hyeſt hath kepte a great ſeaſon: whyche by hys owne ſelfe ſhall delyuer hys creature ⁊ he ſhall ordre them that are left behynde. And where as thou ſaweſte, yͤ oute of hys mouth there came a blaſt of wynd, fyre and ſtorme: ⁊ howe that he lyft vp neyther ſwerd nor weapon, but that the ruſhynge in of hym deſtroyed the hole multitude yͤ came to fyghte agaynſt hym: it ſignifieth, that yͤ dayes come wherein GOD wyll delyuer them that are vpon earth, ⁊ in a traunce of mynde ſhal he come vpon them yͤ dwel in yͤ earthe. And one ſhal vndertake to fyght agaynſt another, one citie agaynſt another, one place agaynſt an Whē this commeth to paſſe, then ſhal be ſeen that I ſhewed yͤ before: ⁊ then ſhal my ſone be declared, whome thou ſaweſt clyme vp as a man. And whē all yͤ people heare hys voyce, euery man ſhall in theyr owne land leaue yͤ battaile yͤ they haue one againſt an other: and in numerable multitud ſhalbe gathered together as they that be wyllyng to come, ⁊ to ouercome hym by fyghtynge. But he ſhall ſtande vpon the toppe ef yͤ mounte Sion. But they gaue them thys counſayle, that they ſhulde leaue the multitude of the Heathen and to goo forth in to a farther countrye, where neuer mankynde dwelte: yͤ they myght there kepe theyr ſtatutes, whych they neuer kepte in Exodi.3.a.

they were paſſed ouer, Ioſu.3.d. for thorowe the countrye, there was a great way: namely of a year, ⁊ a halfe iourney for the ſame region is called Aſareth. Then dwelt they there vntyll yͤ latter tyme: ⁊ when they come forth agayne, the Heygheſt ſhal hold ſtyl the ſprynges of the ſtreame agayne, yͤ they may go thorowe: therefore ſaweſt thou yͤ multitude wyth peace. And they yͤ be lefte byhynd of thy people, are thoſe yͤ be foũde within my border Nowe whē he deſtroyeth the multitude yͤ is gathered together, he ſhal defende hys people that remayne, ⁊

Then ſayde I: O LORDE LORDE, ſhewe me thys, wherfore haue I ſene yͤ man commynge vp from yͤ deape of the ſee: And he ſayd vnto me: Lyke as thou canſt neyther ſeke out nor knowe theſe thynges that are in the depe of the ſee, euen ſo mayſt thou not ſe my ſonne, or thoſe that be wyth hym, but in the tyme of the daye. Thys is the interpretacion of the dreame which thou ſaweſt, therfore thou onely arte lightened, for thou haſt forſaken thyne owne law, ⁊ applyed thy diligence vnto myne, and ſought it. *Thy lyfe haſte thou ordred 4.Re.3.a. in wyſdome, and ‡haſte called vnder- Pro.7.a. ſtandinge thy mother, and therefore haue I ſhewid the, the treaſure of yͤ Hygheſt. After thre dayes, I wyl ſhewe the more and talke with the more at large: yea, heuy and wõderous thynges wyll I declare vnto the.

Then wente I forth vnto the feld, geuyng prayſe and thanckes greatly vnto GOD. becauſe of thes wonders whych he dyd in tyme, and becauſe he gouerneth the ſame, and ſuche as is in tyme, and there I ſat thre dayes.

The xiiij. Chapter.

¶GOD appereth to Eſdras in the buſhe and ſheweth hym what he ſhal do.

A VPon yͤ thyrde day I ſat vnder an Oke tree, then came there a voyce vnto me out of the buſche and ſayd: Eſdras Eſdras: And I ſayde: heare am I LORDE, ⁊ ſtode vp vpon my fete. Then ſpake he vnto me: *in the buſh dyd I Exodi.3.a. appere vnto Moſes, and talked wͭ him when my people ſerued in Egypte. And ſent hym, ⁊ led my people out of Egypt, ⁊ brought hym vpon the mount Sina, where I held hym by me a longe ſeaſõ, ⁊ tolde hym my wonderous worckes, and ſhewed hym the ſecretes of the tymes and the ende, ⁊ commaunded him ſaying Theſe wordes ſhalt thou declare, and not hyde them: And nowe I ſaye vnto the: that thou laye vp in thyne herte the dreames that thou haſt ſene, and the interpretacions whych I haue ſhewed the, for thou ſhalte be receaued of all, thou ſhalt be turned, and remayne wyth my counſayle, and wyth ſuch as be lyke the, vntyll the tymes be ended. For yͤ worlde hath loſte hys youth, and the tymes begynne to waxe olde. For the tyme is deuided into twelue partes, and ten partes of it are gone alredy, and halfe of the tenth parte yet remayneth there, the whyche is after the haſte of the tenthe parte.

Therfore, prepare and ordre thy houſe, and reforme thy people: comfort ſuche of them as be in trouble: ⁊ tell no- B we of the deſtruccion: let go frome the, mortall thoughtes: caſte awaye yͤ burdens of man: put of the weake nature: laye a ſyde yͤ thoughtes that are mooſt heuy vnto the, and haſte yͤ to flye from theſe tymes: for ſuch euel and wyckedneſſe as thou haſt ſene nowe happen, ſhall they do muche whorſe. *For the weaker that the worlde and the tyme Mat.24.a. is the more ſhal ſynne and wickedneſſe 1.Ioan.2.c. increaſe in them yͤ dwell vpon earthe. For yͤ truthe is fled farre away: iniquite is harde at hand. For now haſteth yͤ viſion to come, that thou haſte ſene.

Then aunſwered I before the, and ſayde: Beholde LORDE, I wyll goo as thou haſte commaunded me, ⁊ refourme the people which are preſent. But they yͤ ſhall be borne afterwarde, who wyl exhorte or rebuke them: Thus the world is ſet in darkenes: and they that dwell therin, are wythout lyghte, for thy lawe is brẽte: wherefore nomã knoweth yͤ thynges that are done of the, or yͤ ſhalbe done. yf I haue founde grace before the, ſende the holy gooſt into me and I ſhall wryte all that hath bene done in the worlde, ſyns the begynnynge whych was wrytten in thy lawe yͤ men maye fynde the path, ⁊ that they which wyl lyue in the later dayes, may lyue.

And he aunſwered me ſaying: Go thy way gather the people together, ⁊ ſay vnto them yͤ they ſeeke the not for fourtye dayes, but loke thou haue many boxe tables, and take wyth the Sarea, Dabria, Salemia, Echanus, and Aſiel, teheſe fyue, whych are redy to wryte ſwyftly, and come hether, and I ſhall lyght a candle of vnderſtãdynge in thyne hert, whych ſhall not be put out tyll the thinges be perfourmed which thou ſhalt wryte. And them ſhalt thou declare ſome thynges openly vnto the perfeckt, and ſome thinges ſhalt thou ſhewe ſecretly vnto yͤ wiſe. To morowe this houre ſhalt thou begine to wryte.

Then wente I forth (as he commaũded me) and gathered all the people together and ſayd Heare theſe wordes, O Gen.47.a. Iſrael: *Oure fathers at yͤ begynnyn were ſtraungers in Egypt frõ whence they were deliuered, and receaued Deut.4.d. the lawe of lyfe *whych they kepte not, whych ye alſo haue tranſgreſſed after them. And when this lande, ⁊ the lande of Sion was parted among yon by lot, youre fathers and ye youre ſelues alſo, haue done vnrighteouſneſſe, and haue not kept the wayes whych the Hyeeſt commaunded you. And for ſomoch as he is a ryghteous Iudge, he toke from you in tyme the thynge that he had geuen you. And nowe are ye here ⁊ your brethren amõge you. Therfore yf ſo be that ye wyll ſubdue your owne vnderſtandynge, and refourme youre hert ye ſhal be kept alyue, ⁊ after death ſhal ye optayne mercy. For after death ſhall yͤ iudgement come, when we ſhall lyue agayne: and then ſhal the names of the ryghteous be manifeſt, ⁊ the worckes of the vngodly ſhalbe declared. Let no mã therfore come nowe vnto me, nor aſke any queſtiõ of me theſe fortye daies.

So I toke the fyue men (as he cõmaunded D me) and we wente into yͤ felde, and remayned there. The nexte daye a voyce called me ſaying: Eſdras* Ezech.3.a. open thy mouth, and drincke that I Apoc.10.b. geue the. Then opened I my mouth, and beholde: he reached me a ful cuppe whyche was ful as it were with water, but the colour of it was lyke fyre. And I toke it and drancke. And when I had droncke it, my hert had vnderſtanding, and wiſdome grewe in my breſt: for my ſpirite was kept in remembraunce, and my mouth was opened, and reſtrayned nomore. The Hygheſt gaue vnderſtandynge vnto the fyue men, yͭ they wrote the hye thynges of the mighte, whyche they vnderſtode not. But in the nyghte they dyd eate bread, as for me I ſpake in the daye, and helde not my tonge by nyghte. In fourtye dayes, they wrote two hundred and foure kookes.

And it happened when the fourtye dayes were fulfylled, that yͤ Hyeſt ſpake, ſayinge: The fyrſte that thou haſte written ſpeake openly that the worthy and vnworthy maye reade it. But kepe the .lxx. laſt, that thou mayeſt ſhewe it onely to ſuch as be wiſe among thy people. For in the, is the ſprynge of vnderſtandyng, the fontayne of wyſdome, the ſtreame of knowleg. And I did ſo.

The xv Chapter.

¶The puniſhement that euell people ſhall haue: whych GOD commaundeth Eſdras to ſhewe vnto them.

Beholde, ſpeake thou in the A eares of my people the wordes of prophecye, whych I wil put in thy mouth, ſaieth the LORDE: and cauſe them to be written in a letter, for it is the truth. Feare not the imaginacions agaynſt the. Let not the vnfaythfulneſſe of them trouble the, that ſpeake agaynſt the. For all the vnfaythfull ſhall dye in theyr vnfaythfulneſſe. Beholde, ſayth yͤ LORD I wyll brynge plages vpon the worlde, yͤ ſwearde, hunger, death, and deſtrucciõ, for wyckedneſſe hath the vpperhande in all the earth, and theyr ſhamefull workes are fulfylled.

Wherfore ſayeth the LORDE: I wyl hold my tonge nomore vnto theyr wyckedneſſe, whyche they do ſo vngodly: neyther wyll I ſuffre them in the thynges, that they deale wythal ſo wyckedly. Beholde,* the innocent bloud of the Apoc.6.b. and.19.a. ryghteous complayne continually, to me ⁊ therfore (ſayth yͤ LORDE) I will them auenge ⁊ receaue vnto me all the innocent bloude from amonge them.

*Beholde, my people is led as a flocke Pſa.44.c. Roma.8.b. 1.Cor.4. of ſhepe to be ſlayne. I wyll not ſuffre them nowe to dwell in Egypte but wyll brynge them oute wyth a myghtye hand and a ſtretched out arme and ſmyte it wyth plages as afore. And wil deſtroye all the lande of it. Egypt ſhall mourne, and the fundacions of it ſhal be ſmitten wyth the plage and puniſhemente, that GOD ſhall brynge vpon it.

They yͭ tyl the grounde ſhal mourne, for theyr ſeedes ſhalbe deſtroyed, thorowe yͤ blaſtig, hayle, ⁊ horyble ſtarre falling. Wo worth yͤ world ⁊ thẽ yͭ dwell therin, for yͤ ſwerd ⁊ theyr deſtruccion draweh ny, and one people ſhal ſtãd vp to fyght agaynſt an other, ⁊ ſweardes in theyr handes. For mẽ ſhalbe vnſteadefaſte and ſome ſhall do violence vnto other: they ſhall not regard theyr kynge ⁊ princes, the wayes of theyr doinges ⁊ handlynges ſhalbe in theyr power. A man ſhal deſire to go in to the citie ⁊ ſhall not be able. For thorowe theyr pryd the cities ſhalbe brought in feare, the houſes ſhall ſhake, and men ſhalbe afrayde: A man ſhall haue no pitie vpō hys neyghboure, but one ſhal prouoke an other vnto battayle to ſpoyle theyr goodes, becauſe of the honger of breade, and becauſe of the greate trouble.

B Beholde, I gather and call together all the kynges of the earth, whych are from the vp ryſynge, from the South, from the Eaſt, and Lybanus to turne vnto them, and reſtore yͤ thynges that they haue geuen them. Like as they do yet thys daye vnto my choſen, ſo wyl I do alſo, ⁊ recompenſe them in theyr boſome. Thus ſayeth yͤ LORD GOD: My ryghte hand ſhal not ſpare the ſinners, ⁊ my ſweard ſhall not ceaſe ouer them yͭ ſhed innocent bloud vpon earth. The fyer is gone out frō hys wrathe, ⁊ hath conſumed the fundacions of the earth, ⁊ thē ſinners like yͤ ſtrawe yͭ is kindled. Wō worth them yͭ ſynne ⁊ kepe not my commaundementes ſayth the LORD: I wyll not ſpare thē. Go your waye ye chyldren from violence, defyle not my Sanctuarie: for the LORDE knoweth all them yͭ ſynne agaynſt hym, and therfore deliuereth he them vnto death ⁊ deſtruccion: For nowe are yͤ plages come vpon the world, and ye ſhal remayne in them. For GOD ſhal not deliuer you becauſe ye haue ſynned agaynſte hym.

E Behold, an horrible viſion commeth from the Eaſt, where generacions of Dragons ſhal come out, and the people of the Arabies wyth many charetes, ⁊ the multitude of them ſhalbe as yͤ wynde vpō the earth, that al they whych do heare thē raginge in theyr wrath maye feare ⁊ trimble. And as the wylde Boores oute of the woode, ſo ſhall they goo oute, and wyth greate power ſhal they come fightynge wyth thē: ⁊ ſhal waſte the porcion of the Aſſyrians Lande.

F And then ſhall the Dragons haue yͤ vpper hande, and not remembre theyr byrth, and ſhall tnrne about ſwearing together in great power to perſecute them. But theſe ſhalbe afyayed, and kepe ſilence at theyr power, and ſhall flee: and oue out of the lande of the Aſſyrians ſhalbe ſege them ⁊ conſume one of them, ⁊ in theyr hooſte ſhalbe feare and drede, ⁊ ſtryfe amonge theyr kynges.

Beholde, cloudes from the Eaſte, and from the North, vnto the South, and they are verye horrible to loke vpō, full of wrath and ſtorme. They ſhall ſmyte one vpon another: and they ſhall ſmyte the great ſtarre to the earthe and theyr one ſtarre alſo: and the bloud (for the greate ſlaughter) ſhalbe as depe as frō the belye doune, and the fylth of man like vnto the Cameles lytter: And there ſhalbe great fearfulnes and trembling vpon erth, and they that ſee the wrath, ſhall be afrayde, and a trymblyng ſhall come vpon them.

And then there ſhal come great raynes from the South, ⁊ frō the North, and parte from the Weſte: ⁊ the wynde from the Eaſt ſhal be of great poure ⁊ ſhall ſhut them vp agayne and yͤ cloud whych was rayſed vp in wrath, and yͤ ſtarre to feare the Eaſte ⁊ Weſt wynd, ſhalbe deſtroyed: and yͤ greate cloudes ſhalbe lyfte vp, ⁊ the myghtye cloudes ful of wrath and the ſtarre: yͭ they maye make all the earth afrayed, and them yͭ dwel therin, ⁊ that they may poure out ouer all places an horible ſtarre fawlinge fyer and hayle flyinge, ſweardes, and many waters: that all feldes maye be full, and all ryuers: ⁊ they ſhal breake downe the cities and walles, mountaynes ⁊ hylles, all trees, woode, and the graſſe of the medowes and all theyr frute. And they ſhal go ſtedfaſte vnto Babylō, ⁊ make her afrayde: they ſhal come to her ⁊ beſege her, the ſtarre ⁊ al wrath ſhal they poure out vpō her.

G Then ſhall the duſte ⁊ ſmooke go vp vnto the Heauen, and all they that be aboute her: ſhallbe wayle her: and they yͭ remaine vnder her ſhall do ſeruice vnto them that haue put her in feare. And thou Aſia, that comforteſte thy ſelfe alſo vpon yͤ hope of Babylon, and arte a worſhyppe of her perſone: Wo be vnto yͤ thou wretch, becauſe thou haſte made thy ſelfe lyke vnto her, ⁊ haſte dect thy daughters in whordome, that they myght triumph and pleaſe thy louers, which haue alway deſired to commit whordome wyth the: thou haſte folowed the abominable citie in al her workes and inuencions.

Therfore ſayth GOD: I wil ſend plages vpon the wedowhod: pouerte, hunger, warres and peſtilence, to waſt thy houſes wͭ deſtruccion ⁊ death, ⁊ yͤ gloglorie of thy power ſhalbe dryed vp as a floure, when the heate riſethe that is ſente ouer the? Thou ſhalte be ſycke as a poore wyfe that is plaged ⁊ beaten of wemen: ſo that the myghtye and louer ſhall not be able to receaue the. Wolde I hate the ſayth the LORDE? yf thou haddeſt not alwaye ſlayne my choſen, exaltynge the ſtroke of thy handes, and ſayd ouer theyr death when thou waſt droncken: ſet forth the bewetye of thy countinaunce?

H The rewarde of thy whordome ſhalbe recompenſed the in thy beſome.

Lyke as thou haſt done vnto my choſen, ſayeth the LORD, euē ſo ſhall GOD do vnto the, and ſhal delyuer the into a plage, Thy chyldren ſhall dye of hunger, and thou ſhalt fal thorowe yͤ ſwearde. Thy cities ſhalbe broken downe ⁊ all thyn wiche ſhall be in the feld ſhall periſhe wͭ the ſwearde alſo. They yͭ be in the mountaynes ſhal dye of hunger, ⁊ eat theyr owne fleſh, ⁊ drycke theyr owne bloude for very hūger of breade ⁊ thruſt of water. Thou vnhappy ſhalt come thorowe yͤ ſee, and receaue plages agayne.

In the paſſage they ſhal caſte downe yͤ ſlayne citie, ⁊ ſhal roote out one part of thy lāde, ⁊ conſume yͤ porcion of thy glorie. Thow ſhal be vnto thē like ſtubble, ⁊ they ſhal be vnto yͤ like fyre, ⁊ ſhal conſume the: thy cities ⁊ thy lande, thy woode ⁊ thy fruytful trees ſhall they burne wͭ the fyre. Thy chyldrē ſhal they carye awaye captiue, and looke what thou haſte, they ſhall ſpoyle it and marre the bewtye of thy face.

The .xvj. Chapter.

¶ The Heathen ſhalbe puniſhed.

A WO be vnto the Babylon ⁊ Aſia, wo be vnto yͤ Egypte ⁊, Syria girde youre ſelues wͭ clothes of ſake and heare, ⁊ mourne youre chyldren, beſory for youre deſtrucciō is at hande. A ſweарde is ſet vpon you, ⁊ who wyll turne it backe? A fyre is kindled amonge you, ⁊ who wyl quench it? Plages are ſente vnto you, ⁊ what is he yͭ wyl dryue thē awaye? May any man dryue away an hōgry Lyon in yͤ woode? Or maye anye man quench the fyre in ſtubble when it hath begūne to burne? Maye one turne agayne yͤ arowe, yͭ is ſhot of a ſtrōge archer? The myghtye LORD ſendeth, the plages, ⁊ what is he yͭ wil dryue thē awaye? The fyre is kyndled ⁊ gone forth in hys wrathe, ⁊ what is he yͭ wil quenche it? He ſhal caſt lyghteniges, ⁊ who ſhall quenche it? He ſhal thōder, ⁊ who ſhall not be afrayde? The LORD ſhall threaten, ⁊ who ſhal not vtterly be beatē to pouder at hys preſence, The earth quaketh, ⁊ the fundacions therof: yͤ ſee aryſeth vp wͭ waues from yͤ depe, ⁊ the floudes of it are vnquiet and yͤ fyſhes therof alſo before the LORDE ⁊ before the glory of hys power. For ſtronge is hys ryghte hande yͭ holdeth the bowe, hys arowes that he ſhoteth are ſharpe and ſhall not myſſe, whē they begynne to be ſhote into the endes of yͤ worlde.

B Beholde, the plages are ſent ⁊ ſhall not turne agayne, tyll they come vpon earth. The fyer is kyndled and ſhal not be put out, tyll it conſume the fundaciōs of yͤ earth. Like as an arowe whyche is ſhote of a myghtye archar, returneth not backeward: euē ſo the plages that ſhalbe ſente vpon earth, ſhall not turne agayne. Wo is me, wo is me, who ſhall delyuer me in thoſe dayes? There ſhall come vpon vs ſorowes and great morninge, hunger, dathe, and warres alſo and the powers ſhal ſtande in feare: And there ſhal come euels, ⁊ they ſhal tremble euery one. What ſhal I do in theſe thynges, when yͤ plages come? Beholde, hunger, ſhaughter trouble, ⁊ anguyſhe are ſent, as ſcourges for a mēdemēt. But for all theſe thiges they ſhal not turne from theyr wyckednes, nor be alway mindfull of the ſcourges.

C Behold vytayles ſhalbe ſo good cheape vpon earth, yͭ they ſhal thincke them ſelues to be in good caſe, and euen then ſhal miſchefe growe vpon earth: warres, dearth, ⁊ greate dyſquietnes. For many of them that dwell vpon earthe ſhall periſhe of hunger, and the other that eſcape the hunger, ſhall the ſwearde deſtroye: and yͤ deade ſhalbe caſt out as donge: and there ſhalbe no man to conforte them. For the earth ſhalbe waſted, and the cities ſhalbe caſt downe: there ſhalbe no man lefte to tyl yͤ earth ⁊ to ſowe it. The trees ſhall geue frute, ⁊ who ſhal plucke them of ⁊ gather thē? The grapes ſhalbe rype, and who ſhal treade them? For all places ſhalbe deſolate of men, ſo yͭ one man ſhal deſire to ſe another, or to heare hys voice. For of one whole citie there ſhalbe thne lefte, & two in the felde, whych ſhall hyde thẽ ſelues in the thycke buſhes, & in yͤ clyffes of ſtones, lyke as when there remayne there or foure olyues vpon the olyue tree, or as when a vineyarde is gathered, there are lefte ſome grapes of them that diligently ſoughte thorowe the vinearde.

Euen ſo ſo in thoſe dayes there ſhalbe thre or foure lefte for them that ſearche theyr houſes wyth the ſwearde.
And the earth ſhalbe lefte waſte, & the feldes there of ſhall waxe olde: and her wayes & all her pathes ſhall growe ful of thornes, becauſe no man ſhall trauaile there thorowe.

The daughters ſhall mourne, hauynge no bryd gromes: the wemen ſhal make lamentacion, hauynge no huſbandes, theyr daughters ſhall mourne hauinge no helpe of theyr bridegrome In yͤ warres ſhal they be deſtroied, & their huſbandes ſhall periſhe of hunger. O ye ſeruauntes of yͤ LORDE heare theſe thynges, and marcke them. Beholde, yͤ worde of the LORDE. O receaue it: behold the plages drawe nye, and are not

when the childe commeth to the byrth, they tary not yͤ twyncklynge of an eye.
Euen ſo ſhall not the plages be ſlacke

The ende of the fourth booke of Eſdras.

The booke of Tobias.

The fyrſte Chapter.

¶ Tobias beinge taken preſoner / forſaketh not the lawe of truth. The mercy ãd charyte of Tobias: and the maners of hym in hys youth. He taketh Anna to wyfe / by whom he hath a ſonne named Tobias. He ſuccoureth Gabel with monye. He and hys are fayue to flye / but after the death of Sennacherib they returne a gayne.

A TObias was of the tribe & citie of Nephthalim wich lyeth in the hye countries of Galile aboue Aſer, the waye towarde the weſt hauyng ẏ citie of Sephet vpon the lefte ſyde. Though he was taken pryſoner in the dayes of Salamanaſar kynge of the Aſſyrians, neuertheles beinge in captiuite, he forſoke not the waie of truthe. In ſo muche that what ſoeuer he mighte get he parted it dayly wyth hys felowe priſoners and brethren that were of hys kynred. And though he were yonger thē all the tribe of Nephthalim yet do not he behaue hym ſelfe childyſhly in hys worckes. And when all the other wente to Baal the golden calue, which Ieroboam the kynge of Iſrael had made, he hym ſelfe alone fled all theyr companies, and gat hym to Ieruſalem vnto the temple of the LORDE, and there worſhypped the LORDE GOD of Iſrael: faythfully offering all his fyrſte frutes and tythes, ſo that in the thyrde yeare he miniſtred all ẏ tythes vnto ſtraũgers & to ſuche as he thoughte good. Theſe and ſuch lyke thynges dyd he obſerue accordynge to the lawe of GOD when he was yet but yonge. B

But when he was a man, he toke out of hys owne tribe a wyfe called Anna, and of her he begat a ſonne, whome he called Tobias after hys owne name, & taugh him from hys youth vp, to feare GOD, and to refrayne from al ſynne.

Nowe when he wyth hys wyfe, hys ſonne and wyth all hys kynred was come into captiuite vnto the citie of Niniue, what tyme as they al dyd eate of the meates of the Heathen, he kept hys ſoule, and was neuer defyled in theyr meates. * And forſomuch as he was myndfull of the LORDE in all hys herte, GOD gaue hym fauoure in the ſyghte of Salmanaſar ẏ kynge, whych gaue hym power to go where he wolde, and ſo had he libertie to do whatſoeuer hym lyſte.

C So wente Tobias vnto all them ẏ were in pryſon, and comforted them, & gaue them wholſome exhortaciõs. And when he came to Rages, a citie of the Meedes, hauinge ten talẽtes of ſyluer of the kynges gyfte aud ſawe a mõge a great company of people of his kenred one Galleus which was of hys owne tribe beynge in neceſſitie he gaue hym the ſayde weyght of ſyluer vnder an hande wrytynge.

After a longe ſeaſon when Salmanaſar the kynge was deade, and Sennacherib hys ſonne reygned in hys ſteade which hated the children of Iſrael. Tobias went dayly thoroweoute all hys kynred, and comforted them, and gaue his goodes to eueryone of thẽ, as much as he might. He fed the hungry, clothed yͤ naked, and buryed the deade and ſlayne, and that diligently.

And when Sennacherib the kynge came agayne and fled out of Iewrye (what tyme as GOD puniſhed hym for blaſphemie) in his wrath ſlew many of yͤ cyldrẽ of Iſrael. And Tobias buried their bodies priuely. But when it was told the kynge, he cõmaunded to ſlaye him, ⁊ toke a waye all hys goodes. Neuertheles, Tobias wͭ hys ſonne and wͭ hys wyfe fled hys waye in to mounte Ararath, for there were many yͭ loued him. But after. xlv. dayes yͤ king was ſlayne of his owne ſonnes. And when Sarchidonus (wiche did ſuccide his father) had geuẽ Achiacarus Tobias brothers ſonne many offices of honor: ⁊ had made hi his cupeberer, chefe ſtuorde, chefe Auditor, maſter of yͤ ſignate ⁊ vicegerent to his one perſon Achiacarus ſpoke unto the kynge for his vncle Tobias. Then came Tobias againe to hys houſe, and all hys goodes were reſtored to hym.

The. ij. Capter.

¶Tobias byddeth ſuch of his frendes as feare God to a feaſt/ He is reproued of his frendes. He feareth God more then the kynge. He becommeth blind by the permiſſion and ſufferaunce of GOD Hys kinſfolkes moke hym.

AFter those thynges vpon a ſolemne daye of the LORD Tobias made a goode feaſte i his houſe, and ſayde vnto his ſonne: Go thy way and bryng hether ſome of oure tribe, ſuche as feare GOD, that they maye make mery wͭ vs. And when he was gone, he came agayn, and tolde hys father, yͭ one of yͤ children of Iſrael lay ſlayne vpon yͤ ſtrete. And immediatly he leapte from his table, lefte yͤ feaſt, came faſting to yͤ dead coarſe, toke hym ⁊ bare him preuily into hys houſe, that when yͤ ſũne was downe, he myghte ſafely bury hym. And when he had hyd yͤ coarſe, he dyd eate hys meate wͭ mourning ⁊ feare, remembring yͤ wordes, yͭ the LORDE ſayde by the Prophete Amos: youre hie feaſtes ſhalbe turned to ſorow and heuineſſe.

But when the Sune was downe, he went hys waye ⁊ buryed him. Then all hys neyghboures reproued hym, ſayinge: B It is not longe ſence it was cõmaunded to ſlaye the becauſe of thys matter, and haſte ſcarſe eſcaped yͤ daũger of death, ⁊ burieſt thou yͤ deade agayne? Neuertheleſſe, Tobias fearinge GOD moare then yͤ kynge, toke the bodies of the ſlayne, ⁊ hyd thẽ in hys houſe, ⁊ buryed them at mydnyght.

It happened vpon a daye, that he had buryed the deade, ⁊ was werye, came home, ⁊ layde hym downe by yͤ wall ãd ſlepte, And whyle he was a ſlepe, there fell downe vpon hys eyes warme dunge oute of the ſwalowes neſte, ſo yͭ he was blynde. Thys temtacion did GOD ſuffer to happen vnto hi, yͭ they whych came after, myghte haue an example of hys pacience lyke as of holye Iob. For in ſo muche as he euer feared GOD frõ hys youth vp, ⁊ kept hys commaundementes, he grudged not againſte GOD that yͤ plage of blindenes chaunſed vnto hym, but remayned ſteadfaſte in the feare of GOD, and thanked GOD al the dayes of hys lyfe. D

For lyke as bleſſed Iob was had in dirision of kynges, euen ſo was he laughed to ſcorne of hys eldres and kynſfolkes, whyche ſayde vnto hym: where is thy hope, for yͤ whych thou haſte done almes, and buryed the deade? But Tobias rebuked them, and ſpake: Sai not ſo for we are the chyldren of holye men, ⁊ looke for the lyfe, whyche GOD ſhall geue vnto them that neuer turne theyr beleue from hym. Anna hys wyfe wente daylye to the weauynge worke: and looke what lyuyng ſhe coulde get with the laboure of her handes, ſhe broughte it. And it happened that ſhe toke a kyd and brought it home.

¶ The prayer of Tobi. Sara the daughter of Raguel: is ſclaundred of her fathers ſeruaūte. The prayer and faſtynge of Sara. And alſo the innocencye and chaſtytie of her. The prayers of Tobias and Sara are hearde.

A WHen Tobias toke yt heuily, & wyth teares: beganne to make hys prayer ſaynge: O LORDE, thou arte ryghteous, and all thy iudgementes are true: yee, all thy wayes are mercy, faythfulneſſe & iudgemente. And nowe O LORDE be myndefull of me, and take no vengeaunce of my ſynnes, nether remember my miſdeades, nether yͤ myſdeades of my elders. Fyr we haue not ben obediente vnto thy commaundementes, therfore are we ſpoyled, broughte into captiuite, into deriſion, and ſhame vnto al nacions, amnoge whome thou haſte ſcatered vs. And nowe O LORD, thy iudgemētes are great for we haue not done accordynge to thy commaundementes, nether haue we walcked innocētlye before yͤ. And now O LORD, deale wyth me accordynge to thy wyl, ād commaunde my ſpirite to be receaued in peace, for more expediēte were it for me to dye, then to lyue.

B At the ſame tyme it happened that Sara the daughter of Raguel at Rages a citie of yͤ Medes was ſclaundred of one of her fathers handmaydes: namelye, that ſhe ſhulde haue had ſeuen huſbandes, whych as ſone as they were gone in vnto her, were ſlayne of the deuell called Aſmodeus. Therefore, when ſhe reproued the maiden for her faute, ſhe aunſwered her ſayinge: GOD let vs neuer ſe ſonne nor daughter of yͤ more vpon earth, thou kyller of thy huſbandes. Wylt thou ſlai me alſo, as thou haſt ſlaine ſeuē men? At thys voyce wēte Sara into an hye chāber of her houſe, & thre dayes & thre nyghtes ſhe neyther eate nor drācke, but contynued in prayer & beſoughte GOD wͭ teares yͭ
C ſhe wolde delyuer her frō thys rebuke.

Upon the thyrde daye it chaunſed, yͭ when ſhe had made an ende of prayer, ſhe prayſed the LORDE ſayinge: Bleſſed be thy name, O GOD of oure fathers, whych when thou arte wroth, ſheweſt mercy, and in tyme of trouble thou forgeueſt the ſinnes of them, yͭ cal vpon the. Unto the O LORDE turne I my face, vnto the lyfte I vp myne eyes I beſeche the O LORDE, loſe me oute of yͤ bondes of this rebuke, or elles take me vtterlye awaye from the earth. Thou knoweſt LORDE that I neuer had deſire vnto man, and that I haue kepte my ſoule cleane from all vnclenlye luſte: I haue not kepte companie wͭ thoſe that paſſe theyr time in ſport, nether haue I made mi ſelfe partaker wͭ them that walke in light behauour Neuertheleſſe an huſbande haue I conſented to take, not for my pleaſure, but in thy feare.

Nowe parauenture ether haue I bene vnworthy of thē, or elles were they vnmete for me, for thou happely haſt kept me to another huſbande. For whi: thy counſell is not in the power of man But whoſoeuer loueth the and ſerueth the aryghte, is ſure of thys, that yf hys lyfe be tempted and proued, it ſtandeth in the tryinge: and yf he endure in pacience, he ſhall haue a rewarde & be hyghlye crowned: and yf he be in trouble, GOD (no doubte) ſhall delyuer hym, ād yf hys lyfe be in chaſteninge, he ſhall haue leaue to come vnto thy mercye.

For thou haſt no pleaſure in oure dānacion: and why? after a ſtorme thou makeſt the wether fayer and ſtyl: after wepinge and heuines thou geueſt great ioye. Thy name O GOD of Iſraell be praiſed for euer. At the ſame tyme were bothe theyr prayers herde in the ſyght of the maieſtye of the hyeſt GOD. And Raphael the holy Angel of the LORDE was ſent to helpe them both, whoſe prayers came at onetyme together before GOD,

¶The obedience of yonge Tobias to hys father/

Then anſwered Tobias hys A father and ſayde: father: all yͭ thou haſt commaunded me, wyll I do ⁊ yͭ diligently. But howe I ſhall require thys money I cã

And as for the waye thether I neuer knewe it. Then hys father aunſwered hym, and ſayde: I haue hys handewry hym immediatly he ſhal paye the. But go thy waye nowe, and get the ſome faithfull man to go wyth the for an hy-

Tobias out, and in yͤ ſtrete he founde a frayre younge man ſtandyng, gyrded vp, and as it were one ready to take hys iourney. And he knewe not that it was an Angell of GOD, but ſaluted hym and ſayde: From whẽce arte thou good yonge man He aunſwered: Of yͤ chyldren of Iſrael.

And Tobias ſayde vnto hym: kno weſte thou the waye that leadeth vnto the countrie of the Medes? He aunſwe pray the tary for me, tyll I haue told my father theſe thynges. Then wente Tobias in, and tolde his father all. At

Nowe when yͤ Angell came in, he ſalu

I ſhall paye yͤ the hyre. And the Angell ſayde vnto him: I ſhall leade thy ſõne ſayde to hym: tel me I prai the of what

But that I make yͤ not careful, I come of yͤ Stoke of Azaria ⁊ greate Ananias thy brothers. And Tobias anſwered: thou arte come of a great kynred: but I pꝛaye the be not diſeaſed that I deſiꝛe to knowe thy kinred. The Angel ſayd vnto hym: thy ſonne ſhall I leade foꝛth ſafely and bꝛyng hym hole to the agayne.

Then anſwered Tobias ⁊ ſayde: wel go on youre waye, and GOD be in youre iourney, and hys Angel bear you cōpany. So when they had prepared all thynges, that thei wolde take with thē in theyꝛ iournye, Tobias bad hys father and his mother farewell, and they wēte on theyꝛ waye both together. Nowe when they were gone, hys mother beganne to wepe, and ſayde: The ſtafe of oure age haſte thou taken awaye, ād Tobi.10.a. ſente hym from vs. Wolde GOD that mony had neuer bene, foꝛ the whyche thou haſte ſente hym awaye. yf we had bene contente wyth our pouertye, this had bene greate ryches vnto vs yͭ we ſawe oure ſonne here. The vi. Chapter.

¶ Yonge Tobias is delyuered from the fyſh by the Angell / The Angell exhoꝛteth Tobias to take Sara to hys wyfe.

A SO Tobias wente on hys waye and a dogge folowed hym, and the fyꝛſte nighte they abode by the water of Tigris. Then wēte he oute to waſſhe his feete, and beholde there came foꝛth an hoꝛible fyſſh to deuoure hym. Of whō Tobias was afrayde: and cryed wyth a lowde voyce, ſayinge: LORDE he commeth vpon me. And the Angell ſayde vnto hym: Take hym by the gyll, and dꝛawe hym to the. And he dyd ſo, and dꝛewe him vpon the lande. And the fyſſhe beganne to leape at hys feete.

Then ſayde the Angell vnto hym: take oute the bowels of thys fyſſhe, ⁊ as B foꝛ the herte, yͤ gaul and the lyuer, kepe them by the. Foꝛ theſe thynges are neceſſary and good foꝛ medicine. Tobias dyd ſo, and roſted the fyſſhe, and they toke hym wyth them in theyꝛ iourney: yͤ reſydue they ſalted, as much as was ſufficiente foꝛ them, tyll they came to Raga a citie of the Medes. Then Tobias aſked the Angel, and ſayde vnto hym: I pꝛay the bꝛother Azaria tell me whereto are theſe thynges good of the fyſſhe, yͭ thou haſte bydden me kepe.

The Angell aunſwered hym, ⁊ ſayde: yf thou layeſt a pece of the herte vpon the coales, the ſmoke therof dꝛyueth awaye all maner of euell ſpiꝛites, whether it be from man oꝛ from woman, ſo that from thence foꝛth the ſame ſhal come nomoꝛe vnto thē. The gaul is good to annoint oꝛ to ſtꝛyke the eyes withal where as there is any blemyſſh in thē, ſo that they ſhalbe hole. C

And Tobias ſayde vnto hym, where wylt thou that we remayne? The Angel aunſwered and ſayde: Here is a nie kynſmā of thyne, one Raguel by name, which hath a daughter called Sara, ⁊ hath nether ſonne noꝛ daughter but her. All hys good belongeth vnto the if thou muſte mary her, and therfoꝛe deſiꝛe her of her father, and he ſhal geue her the to wyfe. Then anſwered Tobias and ſayde: As I vnderſtane, ſhe hath ben maryed vnto. vij. huſbandes, and they alare dead: and I haue herde ſay that the deuel ſlewe them. I am afrayd therfoꝛe, leſt ſuche thynges happen vnto me alſo: which yf it came to paſſe (ſeing I am the only ſōne of my father and my mother) I ſhulde bꝛynge them i theyꝛ age wͭ ſoꝛowes to theiꝛ graues.

Then ſayde the Angell Raphel vnto D hym: Heare me and I wyll tell yͤ what they be, of whom the deuyl hath power Namely, they that receaue maryage of ſuche a facion, that they ſhute GOD out from them, and from theyꝛ hert ād geue them ſelues to theyꝛ owne luſt, euen as it were an hoꝛſe ⁊ mule, whiche haue no vnderſtandynge: vpon ſuche hath the deuyll power. But when thou takeſt her, and arte come into the chamber, wytholde they ſelfe from her thꝛe dayes, and geue thy diligence vnto nothynge but vnto pꝛayer wyth her.

And in the fryſte nyghte, roſt the lyuer of yͤ fyſhe, ⁊ yͤ deuyll ſhalbe dryuen a waye. The ſeconde nyght ſhalte thou be receauid into the cõpany of the holy patriarkes. The thyrd nyght ſhalte thou optaine yͤ bleſſing of GOD, ſo that whole chyldren ſhalbe borne of you. After the thyrde nyghte take the mayden in the feare of GOD: and more for yͤ deſyre of children, then for any fleſhly luſte: that in the ſeed of Abraham thou mayeſt optayne yͤ bleſſynge in chyldren

The vij. Chapter.

¶Yonge Tobias and the Angel come to the houſe of Raguel. He requireth Raguels daughter to wyfe/and obtayneth her.

A Then went they into Raguel, which receaued them ioyfully And when Raguel loked vpõ Tobias he ſaid vnto Anna his wyſe. Howe like is this yonge man vnto my ſyſters ſõne? And whẽ he had ſpoken this he ſayd whẽce be ye good brethrẽ? They ſayde Of yͤ tribe of Nephtalim oute of yͤ captiuitie of Nineue. Thẽ ſayd Raguel vnto them: knowe ye my brother Tobias? Thy ſaid: yee, we knowe him wel. And whẽ they had ſpoken much good of hym, yͤ Angel ſayde vnto Raguel. Tobias of whome thou aſkeſt is thys yonge mans father.

Then Raguel bowed hym ſelfe downe and wepte, toke hym aboute yͤ neke ⁊ kyſed him, ⁊ ſayde: GODS bleſſyng haue thou my ſonne, for thou arte the ſonne of a good vertuous man. And Anna B his wyſe, ⁊ Sara his daughter wepte alſo. Nowe when they had talked together, Raguel bad kyll a wether, ⁊ to make a feaſt: And when he prayed them to ſyt downe to dyner, Tobias ſayde: I wyl nether eate nor drike here this day except thou fyrſt graũt me my peticion ⁊ promiſe me to geue me thy daughter Sara. Whẽ Raguel herde this he was aſtounid: for he knewe, what had happened vnto yͤ other. vij. men yͭ went in vnto her, ⁊ he began to feare, yͭ it ſhulde chaũce vnto hym alſo in lyke maner

And whyle he ſtode ſo in doubte, ⁊ gaue the yonge mã no anſwere, yͤ Angell ſayde vnto hi Feare not to geue hi thy daughter, for vnto thys man yͭ feareth GOD belongeth thy daughter to wyſe, therfore might none other haue her.

Then ſayde Raguel: I doubt not but GOD hathe accepted my prayers and C teares in hys ſyghte: ⁊ I truſte he cauſed you to come vnto me for the ſame intente, yͭ thys daughter of myne myghte be maried in her owne kynred, accordynge to the lawe of Moſes.

And nowe, doubte thou not, but I wyll geue her vnto the. Soo he tooke yͤ ryghte hande of his daughter and gaue her into the ryght hande of Tobias and ſayde.

The GOD of Abrahã, yͤ GOD of Iſahac, ⁊ the GOD of Iacob, be wyth you, ioyne you together, and fulfyl hys bleſſynge in you. And thei toke a letter and made a wrytynge of the maryage: And then made they merye, ⁊ prayſed GOD.

And Raguel called Anna hys wyſe vnto hĩ, ⁊ bad her prepare another chãbre, and thether he broughte Sara his daughter, ⁊ ſhe wepte. Thẽ ſayde he vnto her: Be of good chere mi daughter, yͤ LORDE of Heauen geue the ioye, for yͤ heauyneſſe that thou haſte ſuffred.

¶The Angell byndeth the euyll: Tobias exhortethe hys wyfe to prayer/and they praye thre dayes before they lye together.

Nowe, after that they had ſupped, A they broughte the yonge man into her. Then thoughte Tobias vpõ yͤ wordes of yͤ Angell: ⁊ tooke oute of hys bagg, a pece of yͤ leuer of yͤ fyſhe, ⁊ layd it vpõ the hote coles. So the Angell Raphael toke holde of the deuyll, ⁊ ſente hym awaye and bounde hym in the wylderneſſe of yͤ hyer Egypte. Then ſpake Tobias vnto yͤ virgin, ⁊ ſayde: Vp Sara, let vs make oure prayer vnto GOD to daye, tomorowe, ⁊ ouermorowe: for theſe nyghetes wyll we recõſile oure ſelues wͭ GOD, ⁊ when the thryde holye nyghte is paſte, we ſhall ioyne together in the dutye of maryage. For we are the chyldren of holye mẽ, and we may not come together, B as the Heathen, that knowe not GOD.

Then ſtoode they vp bothe together, and beſoughte GOD earneſtlye, that he wolde preſerue them. And Tobias ſayde: O LORD GOD of oure fathers, praiſed be thou of heauen and earth of yͤ ſeeweles, ⁊ floudes, ⁊ of all thy creatures yͭ be therein. Thou madeſt Adam of the *moulde of the earth, ⁊ gaueſt hym Eua for an helper. And nowe LORD thou knoweſt

And aboute the cocke crowyuge it happened, that Raguell called hys ſeruaundes, and they wente wyth him to make a graue. For he ſayde it is chaunſed it did vnto the otther ſeuen men, that made the graue, Raguel came agayne to hys wyfe, and ſayd vnto her: ſende one and broughte good tidynges. Thẽ Raguel and Anna hys wyfe prayſed the thou haſte dealte mercyfully with vs,

And immedyatlye, Raguel commaunded his ſeruauntes to fyl the graue
that they had made wyth earth afore

a feaſte, and to make ready all thynges that were neceſſarye for meate, to two fat knye alſo, and foure wethers to be ſlayne and meates tobe prepared for all his neighbours and frẽdes. And Raguel charged Tobias to remaine wͭ him two wekes. As for al the good yͭ he made thys wryttynge, that the halfe

¶ Tobias and his wyfe are ſad for the taryinge of theyr ſonne. Raguel ſendeth agayne Tobias wyth his wyfe.

Then Tobias comforted her ⁊ ſayde:

toke, and drewe from his eyes: ãd immediatly he receaued his ſyght.

Then they prayſed GOD, he and hys D wyfe and all they that knewe hym. And Tobias ſayd: O LORD GOD of Iſrael,
I geue the prayſe ⁊ thanckes, for thou haſt chaſtened me, and made me hole.
